The epidemic of colds which is sweeping the country has led health officials to start an educational cam

"Check your sneeze"—"Every sneeze is a public danger"—"Sn results it threatens.

A prominent feature of the
is the education of the public to necessity of treating every case of

PEACE WITH SOVIET SOON REPORTED ALLIED INTENT

London Hears Blockade of Russia May Be Lifted Within Three Weeks; Yudenitch's Reversals Factor.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Dec. 31.—(Delayed.) As the result of a complete aboutface on the part of European statesmen, early peace with Russia may now be expected. According to information obtained from an authoritative source within a fortnight or three weeks at the outset, the Allied blockade of Russia will have been lifted and entrance into and departure from that country will be just as easy and free as is the case elsewhere.

Contrary to reports generally circulated that the Copenhagen conversations between Max Litvinoff, the soviet envoy, and James O'Grady, M.P., who had been appointed by the British Foreign Office to negotiate with the Bolsheviki on the exchange of prisoners, broke up a week ago because Litvinoff insisted on discussing peace and other matters instead of prisoners, it is learned that the negotiations proceeded with such smoothness that an agreement was reached on nearly every point.

O'Grady and Litvinoff left Copenhagen December 20 to confer with their respective governments. O'Grady leaves London again next Saturday, and with Litvinoff will dot the "i" and cross the "t's" of a general understanding with the Bolsheviki.

During the recent conferences between Premiers Lloyd George and Millerand and other representatives of the Allied nations the Russian situation was again reviewed thoroughly, and it was felt necessary to reconsider the attitude toward the Bolsheviki. As reported December 27, the terms of peace offered by the Bolsheviki commissioner was received by the Premier on the second day of their conference.

REVERSALS BRING ACTION.

Following the military reversals suffered by Gen. Yudenitch southwest of Petrograd and Admiral Kolchak on the Siberian front, and with the beginning of Gen. Denikine's retreat in Southern Russia, it was understood the Allied powers felt they were forced to admit that the Bolsheviki constituted an actual de facto government of Russia, whether that admission was welcome or not.

Before the Premier's conference adjourned, an agreement was reached definitely to pursue a policy of non-intervention in Russia. Further discussion on the subject led to the conclusion that the only logical thing to do in this situation would be to abolish the blockade altogether.

Private advices from Southern Russia, particularly in the Black Sea region, where British trade envoys are already seeking an opening, have led many British men of high standing to the belief that the "one side is about as bad as the other." These reports, together with a growing belief that Gen. Denikine is doomed to be overcome by his overwhelming number of adversaries, have served as an answer to Premier Lloyd George's question, "What is Russia?"

BUSINESS NECESSITY.

European statesmen now prefer to make peace with the Bolsheviki within the next few weeks. Business men returning from Southern Russia report that the whole area behind Gen. Denikine's lines is flooded with profiteers and speculators of all descriptions whose only thoughts are of their own pockets.

The significance of today's developments in the Allied attitude toward Russia was enhanced by the radio message from Gen. Denikine protesting against the efforts being made to promote an agreement between the anti-Bolshevik and the soviet government.

ED-ESTHONIAN ARMISTICE SIGNED.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

DORPAT (Esthonia,) Wednesday, Jan. 1.—The first step toward peace between Esthonia and soviet Russia was taken tonight by signing of a preliminary armistice, to exist for one week, stipulating immediate cessation of hostilities and covering points concerning Esthonian independents and military guarantees during the frontiers.

The agreement, which may be terminated on twenty-four hours' notice by either side, is to become effective January 3. Unless action is taken to terminate it, the agreement automatically renews itself after seven days.

The agreement consists of five documents and includes a map defining the frontiers. An interesting clause binds Esthonia from all obligations to Russia resulting from former connections with that country. In signing the agreement it was set for 1 o'clock in the afternoon, but it was not until nearly 8 o'clock in the evening the conferees agreed in adjusting all details.

The text of the clause recognizing Russia says:

"In accordance with the principles proclaimed by the soviet government of right of all nations to a free determination of their nationality, even to complete separation from the state to which they belong, Russia recognizes without reservation the independence of the Esthonian state and freely abandons for all time all sovereign rights which belonged to Russia with respect to Esthonias' land and people. In accordance with former declarations, as well as those rights which under international treaties belong to land and peoples shall be obligations whatever with respect to Russia because of the former connections of Esthonia with Russia."

The agreement stipulates that during cessation of hostilities the respective armies shall remain on the territory held by each and that the land between them shall be considered a neutral zone.

The frontier is fixed at ten kilometers eastward of Lake Peipas, crossing Lake Peipas and Lake Pskov, and running thence southward to the east of Isbersk. The present Esthonian military line is left approximately intact. The frontier settlement is regarded as an important Esthonian victory.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—The capture of Yekaterinoslav, on the Southern Russian front, and Novomoskovsk, fifteen miles northeast of Yekaterinoslav, is announced in a Bolshevik official statement issued today.

The Reds also are fighting fiercely for possession of Tcherkassy, on the Dneiper, ninety-five miles southeast of Kiev. They have occupied Marinsk, east of Tomsk, on the Siberian front, the statement adds.

IRKUTSK BESIEGED.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

IRKUTSK, Dec. 28.—Irkutsk is in a state of siege. Martial law was declared following an uprising of social revolution troops December 24, during which they captured the railway station, but were unable to take the city from the Kolchak forces. Order is being preserved by Czecho-Slovak troops. The Americans in Irkutsk are safe, and will be evacuated to Verkhne-Udinsk, 160 miles east of Irkutsk.

ATIONAL CENSUS ON TODAY

HINGTON, Jan. 1.—An army of enumerators will begin at once tomorrow to count the men, women and children of the United States and to collect certain information about the resources of the country.

Taking of the fourteenth census is expected to require about two years before figures showing the total population, probably will not be completed until the end of April. The cost is expected to show a total of from 110,000,000 to 115,000,000, as compared with 94,000,000 in 1910. The estimated population, July 1, 1919, was 106,871,284. Taxes will be collected by 372 supervisors and forwarded to headquarters, where 4000 tabulating machines will work. Totals for each of the items on the cards will be computed by specially designed machines. Officials expect to be able to make a preliminary estimate of the population of the larger cities in March, but returns for the country districts will not be completed until later.

The census also includes collection of data on farms, forests and oil production. The fourteenth decennial census is the first to be taken during the winter months. For the first time women have been employed as supervisors. Maximum pay allotted by law is 4 cents a person, with a higher rate for farmhands. Congress appropriated $22,000,000 for the work.

The first census, taken in 1790 during the administration of George Washington, showed the population was 3,000,000.

FOREIGN LOAN GERMAN HOPE SAYS EBERT CABLE TO TIMES.

The following cabled message under date of December 31 at Berlin has been received by the Los Angeles Times and the New York World as a New Year's expression from President Ebert of the German republic:

BERLIN, Dec. 31 (delayed.)—In reply to your request for a statement on Germany's prospect for the coming year I feel compelled to say that in view of our present condition I view the near future with considerable anxiety.

Militarism and imperialism having definitely been replaced in Germany by the principles of a democratic government and the League of Nations idea, a new regime, it is true, has been firmly established and is supported by an overwhelming majority of our people. However, on the one hand the obligations imposed upon Germany at Versailles to deliver for trial in foreign courts a number of German officers and officials, if insisted upon, may cause serious turmoil, even civil war. On the other hand, our economic situation points in the direction of a crisis of such severity that the very foundations of the young republic may be shattered.

The population at large is severely suffering from the manifold evil consequences of the starvation blockade, while the factories, despite the growing desire of the workmen to work full time, are mostly idle for the lack of raw materials. The worst feature, however, is our financial situation, particularly the fact that, without sufficient reason, German money has sunk in foreign markets to a small fraction of its pre-war value and is, therefore, unsuitable for purchasing in sufficient quantities the much-needed foreign foodstuffs and raw materials.

Admittedly, the gold cover of our notes is far below the safety mark indicated in the text-books of political economy. However, Germany still possesses one great asset which ought to offer as good a guarantee for her economic renaissance as billions in gold bars, namely, the German people's honest will and their singular capacity to work. I firmly hope that on the strength of that guarantee it may be possible for us to secure within the immediate future an adequate foreign loan which alone can help us out of unprecedented difficulties.

Individual suffering in Germany has already been greatly relieved by generous American gifts which will never be forgotten. May the same spirit of generosity and co-operation upon which the salvation not only of Germany, but the whole of Europe depends, render us the vitally necessary assistance to put us on our feet again.

[Signed] EBERT.

BREAK NEWS-PRINT RECORD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—Consumption of news-print paper in the United States during the last three months reached a record-breaking point, along with prices, the Federal Trade Commission reported in a summary today. The average cost of news print at mills at the beginning of December was $3.90 a hundred, the commission reported, against $3.75 a year ago. In 1916 the price was $1.88, the lowest in several years.

High prices failed to cut down consumption, however, and the commission estimated that in 1919 14 per cent. more news print was used than in 1918. During the fourth quarter of 1919, particularly, news print consumption was running up, and the commission said that the increase then over the similar period in 1918 would be between 25 and 30 per cent. In November, 1919, the 727 publishers reporting to the commission used 161,602 tons of news print, compared with 123,874 tons in November, 1918.

Espee Offices Robbed.

STOCKTON, Jan. 1.—The local ticket offices of the Southern Pacific Company was held up this evening by a lone masked bandit and the ticket agent, W. L. Bealand, forced at the point of a revolver to turn over all currency in sight, which amounted to about $275. The hold-up occurred shortly after the 5 o'clock train had pulled out and the ticket agent was closing up for the night. The bandit appeared suddenly at the window and thrust the revolver in the face of the agent, demanding the money. All currency in sight was handed over and the bandit appeared satisfied. As the robber turned to walk away he encountered a man in the waiting-room. He promptly turned the gun on him and ordered the man to turn his back. He then rushed to the door and escaped in the darkness.

Reds to Visit White House.

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—Thousands of radicals from all parts of the country are planning a descent on the White House lawn on Lincoln's Birthday, to appeal to President Wilson for the release of "political prisoners" from Federal penitentiaries. Announcement of the proposed demonstration was made today by the People's Freedom Union, the organ which planned the "amnesty walk" on Fifth avenue on Christmas Day, which was broken up by the police.

Bishop Cantwell Officiates.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 1.—Four monsignors of the archdiocese of San Francisco were invested with the insignia of the office of domestic prelate, to which they recently were raised by Pope Benedict XV, at an impressive ceremony in St. Mary's Cathedral, here today. The Most Reverend Archbishop Hanna conferred the new honors upon the four priests, who are the Rt. Rev. P. L. Ryan, vicar-general; the Rt. Rev. M. D. Connolly, the Rt. Rev. C. A. Ram and the Rt. Rev. J. M. Gleason. Following the investiture a pontifical high mass was celebrated by Bishop J. J. Cantwell of Los Angeles and Monterey.

Auto Wrecked; Two Dead.

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 1.—Virginia Bramham, 38, of Taft, Cal., pipe-line contractor, and Miss Margaret Cunningham, 27, nurse, of Bakersfield, were instantly killed, and Thomas Williams, a cook, employed by Bramham, was seriously injured about 6 o'clock tonight when the automobile, driven by Bramham, collided with a truckload of oil pipes on the county highway about four miles east of Taft. Both machines were going toward Taft. The driver of the truck, whose name has not yet been learned, hearing the crash, stopped his truck and, jumping off, hastened to give aid, and was himself run down by a car coming from the opposite direction. He sustained a broken leg and internal injuries. The car did not stop. Bramham founded the Virginia Pipe Line Company. His two brothers, Hamilton and Carsey Bramham, are his partners. The Bramhams are well known throughout the California, Texas and Oklahoma oil fields.

Miss Cunningham had resided in Bakersfield about a year. She was a native of Ireland.

The truck was owned by a pump company and was en route to Taft from Bakersfield.

Rob Baker Residence.

Burglars robbed the residence of Milo A. Baker, vice-president and superintendent of the Baker Iron Works, at 1346 South Westlake avenue, of $110 worth of jewelry last night. The family was away at the time. The burglars entered by jimmying a rear window and left through a second-story window, sliding down a pillar of the porch to the ground, according to detectives from University Station.

Johnson and Borah Out for Revenge.

Disgruntled Bitter-Enders Seek to Bring Shame to Their Party.

Reactionary Movement Would Make League an Issue of Presidential Campaign.

BY ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—Hiram Johnson, realizing the impossibility of being seriously considered as the possible nominee of the Republican party for so high an office as President, is out to wreck the party, if he can.

With Senator Borah and others of the "battalion of death" he is starting to inject into the next national campaign the issue of the League of Nations. Defeated on every hand and deserted by Republicans of brains in the Senate—Knox, Lodge and Penrose—Johnson, in order to keep a little of the limelight upon his diminishing career, is determined to cause as much trouble for decent Republicans as he can.

Johnson and Borah are starting out to organize the most reactionary movement since civilization began. They insist that the United States shall not assume its full responsibilities to the world, but should return to its isolation and ignore the obligations thrust upon America by the world war. Any man who desires to become a candidate for the Republican nomination, they insist must be harassed by fossilized reactionaries like Johnson and Borah, who declare that the world has not moved since the United States came to be.

Part of the barrage of Hiram the Hungry and William the Promiser against those men with clean minds and records for achievement who aspire to be President by the grace of the Republican party is to heckle them on the League of Nations question.

The first shot is a letter signed by William the Promiser and addressed to Gov. Lowden of Illinois. It is the first of a series of letters to be concocted by this pair of bitter-enders, whose idea of the United States is an insular shell into which the country can crawl and hibernate for another hundred years.

The letter is such an assumption of arrogance and reactionary un-Americanism that it is here printed to show with what determination two disgruntled Senators of the United States will go to ruin their party—a party for which neither one of them will remain loyal and regular long enough to stand and be counted.

TEXT OF LETTER.

The letter:

"My dear Gov. Lowden:

"I understand you are a candidate for the Presidency. Your distinguished services as Governor of your State justify you in aspiring to and your friends in urging your nomination for this high office. As a candidate I assume from your past public record that you are quite willing to share any opinions you may have upon public questions with the people whose suffrages you solicit.

"I am sure you will agree with me further that party platforms are not quite so important as the views and convictions of the successful candidate. The things which distinguished Mr. Roosevelt's administration were found in no platform. The things which characterize Mr. Wilson's reign are apparently in conflict with the platform upon which he was elected. The fact is that the issues of the campaign are made after the campaign opens and the policies of the administration are made after the inaugural ball is over. From all of which it follows that the most vital thing in connection with the coming campaign is the individual views of the respective candidates upon living issues.

"For nearly a hundred and fifty years we have in this country regardless of parties, adhered to a distinct foreign policy—no entangling alliances or partnerships with foreign powers in American affairs. Under this policy we have grown to our present commanding position in the world of affairs. If you should be nominated and elected President and sit in the place of Washington and Jefferson, of Jackson and Lincoln, all of whom earnestly and consistently sustained this policy, would you exert your influence and the influence of your administration to maintain this foreign policy or would you consent in any way to its

WEIRD TALE OF HIGH FINANCE BARED; L. A. SCIENTIST LOSER

Heir With Draft for $2,000,000 Is Sought.

Savant Scholar of This City Appeals to Authorities.

After weeks of personal investigation and voluminous wire and cable correspondence, Dr. I. D. Opat, a bacteriologist and Shakespearean scholar, with offices in the Lankershim building, stated last night that he will today lay before the District Attorney's office the extraordinary details of a transaction revolving around a "$2,000,000 draft on Lloyd's," and which Dr. Opat says cost him approximately $4000, in addition to other financial losses, yet undisclosed.

The announcement was made by Dr. Opat, following a consultation with Lieut. Harvey Davis, of the police department, and communications by Lieut. Davis with the police in New York and other cities. The details of the amazing financial operations in which Dr. Opat says he and other local business men were involved, following an offer by a mere rivaling Mark Twain's famous "Million-Pound Note" sketch.

The "$2,000,000 draft on Lloyd's," source of the trouble, was prominently displayed by one Gustave Schulman, recently heralded here as a young and fortunate heir to the "estate of Frederick Goldsmith," banker and mining man of somewhere in England. To find Mr. Schulman and the "$2,000,000 draft," Dr. Opat has spent more than $200 in telegrams and cables, made a personal trip to New York and Chicago, and says he now is ready to ask the authorities to take a hand in the situation.

Three California banks, one nationally-known financial institution in New York, local attorneys, store managers, and business men, all took a turn at the "$2,000,000 draft," with, they say, uniformly negative results.

OPAT'S STORY.

Dr. Opat's story is complex, yet simple. He is a man of various attainments in science, literature, and art. It was through the latter that he and Mr. Schulman, the mysterious young millionaire, came in contact. They met in San Francisco, both on the way to Los Angeles. Mr. Schulman had the magic draft. And along with it he had a long clipping from the Los Angeles Examiner, of September 8, telling graphically and in detail of the difficulty experienced by Mr. Schulman in cashing it at the Alexandria Hotel at the time of his arrival there.

Dr. Opat is an artist of long training on the stage, in Russia and here. He long ago hoped to have an opportunity to produce Shakespeare on the screen, and sought some one who would back him in the production for the sake of art rather than box office only. Mr. Schulman became interested and promised Dr. Opat to back him, on the condition that he (Opat) make good, and allow Mr. Schulman alone to handle the business end of the venture. Dr. Opat agreed.

After arrival in Los Angeles there was a little hitch in the plans. Mr. Schulman had the "$2,000,000 draft," but had difficulty in cashing it. He took Dr. Opat with him to banks, to an attorney's office, to the tiffany studios, Dr. Opat says, where he said he had selected $75,000 worth of furniture, and to other places, where in some form or manner the draft was mentioned, and where, Dr. Opat says, Mr. Schulman was treated with great consideration.

ADVANCES MONEY.

Just four days elapsed between Mr. Schulman's arrival in Los Angeles and his departure. Because of the difficulty in cashing the 400,000-pound sterling draft, Dr. Opat says, he advanced the money to launch the venture. On the day of his departure, Mr. Schulman was given another large sum of money by Dr. Opat, the latter says, to pay expenses to Washington, D. C., where the troublesome matter of paying the income tax on the draft, before it could be collected, was to be adjusted by Mr. Schulman.

That was September 17. Mr. Schulman was seen to the station, where accompanied by a young woman, whom he introduced as his wife, he boarded the train and promised Dr. Opat to return soon and get things humming. That was the last seen of Mr. Shulman by Dr. Opat.

After a long wait, Dr. Opat engaged Attorney Ray Howard to do

FOCH SAYS DIVINE INSPIRATION LED HIM TO DEFEAT GERMANS AND WIN VICTORY GOD WILLED.

PARIS, Jan. 1.—In a remarkable interview published here today Marshal Foch says he was divinely inspired to defeat the Germans and that the Allied victory was willed by God.

"When," says Marshal Foch, "in a historic moment a vision is given to a man and when in consequence he finds that this vision has determined movements of enormous importance in a formidable war, I believe that this vision—and I think I had it at the Marne, on the Yser and on March 21—comes from a providential power, in the hand of which one is the instrument, and I believe that the victorious decision was sent from on high by a will superior and divine."

In religion Marshal Foch is a devout Catholic.

The Allied leader also reveals that from boyhood, when he saw Germany defeat France, he had lived for but one purpose and that was to humble the power that had humbled his country.

All the world knows Marshal Foch as a soldier. The Allied statesmen and the Germans, too, have come to know him as no mean diplomat. But how many know him as philosopher? This is the side of his character which is pictured by his acquaintance, Andre Demaricourt, in the Echo de Paris:

"From the age of 17," Foch says, "I dreamed of revenge, after having seen the Germans at Metz. And when a man of ordinary capacity concentrates all of his faculties and all of his abilities upon one end and works without diverging he ought to be successful. There are, of course, conditions. He ought to be objective and never subjective. I contend he ought not to get lost in passing impressions. Facts alone count and he ought to devote himself to facts.

"How, then, did I win the war? I did it by smoking my pipe. I mean to say in not getting excited, in reducing everything to its essential, in avoiding useless emotions, in concentrating all my strength on my job.

BATTLE OF NATIONALISM.

"Was this job difficult? Possibly it was. Our war, you see, was a very curious war. It was a battle of governments. To speak only of ourselves—we had confronting our French republic, with its profound national sense, the Kaiser, a man not very intelligent, a bluffer, a man of hasty action, and for that reason a bad judge of his acts. The Kaiser served us in good stead for an express train was intrusted to the stage-coach driver.

"I am often asked if I really believed the war would be a long one. I knew nothing about that. It was not my business. I have always sought to do my work according to formula. When one philosophizes too much on the consequences of the act he things he ought to perform one loses his feeling, also his strength.

"I permitted myself two emotions because they were agents of power. It was necessary to face the idea of defeat and to face the idea of victory.

"The idea of victory—it had to be at all costs. I wished it, yes, but that was easily said. To gain it it was necessary to recognize that the war of humans never changes in essence. It varies only in its tools. On the Marne I had been beaten and I said to myself, 'I will be beaten four times, if need be, but I will survive.'

"Above everything the will to conquer is based on confidence. But this will is nothing if it does not know how to use the means and I do not speak only of myself, when I say that it is there that hangs the success or failure of a chief from the intellectual point of view.

"Do not speak to me of glory, of beauty, of enthusiasm. They are only words. Guard yourself in France against these expressions. They are useless. They are lost strength. The war is finished. That is one expression that is good, but epithets as well as fancy phrases are worth nothing. Nothing survives except facts because facts alone count.

"Here is one fact that gives me satisfaction. It was the meeting at Rethondes. That was an act. That act marked the composition of the German empire and I saw Ersberger with rage seize his pen and sign that act. And then I was content to have willed it and to have known how to employ the means for the business was done."

BUENOS AIRES, Wednesday, Dec. 31.—A fire thirty miles in width in the neighborhood of San German, a town on the line between Buenos Aires province and the Pampa territory, has been extinguished. Six hundred acres of wheat were destroyed. It is believed to have been set by agitators.

Kings and Premiers Wish Well for Uncle Sam.

Hands Across the Sea at Dawn of Glorious Era.

Praise of World to Wilson in His Wheel Chair.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1. — New Year's greetings from the heads of a number of foreign governments were received today by President Wilson. Messages came from England, Belgium, Luxemburg, Sweden, Italy and several other European countries and from most of the South American republics.

The President spent more than two hours in his wheel-chair on the south portico of the White House.

New Year's Day was quietly observed here today. In official circles there was the usual round of social functions, although at the White House, there was no formal celebration because of the illness of the President. Secretary of State Lansing and Mrs. Lansing were the hosts at a luncheon for the diplomatic corps, and receptions were held by Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Daniels, Secretary of War and Mrs. Baker and Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Crowell.

Messages to the nation were issued last night by Vice-President Marshall and several members of the Cabinet in all of which was expressed a note of optimism.

RECORD NEW YORK CROWD.

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—Celebration of the advent of the New Year continued until dawn in the hotels and restaurants along the "Great White Way," the revelers taking advantage of what they considered the last opportunity to celebrate in the hilarious manner traditional to New York. Police and other observers said the crowds were equal in size and spirit to those of former years.

While unnumbered thousands paraded broadly with all sorts of noise-makers, others who with forethoughtedness had purchased stocks of wines and liquors before July 1 were making merry in hotels and restaurants.

Much of the liquid refreshment was sent in advance by truck and limousine after reservations had been made. A heavy profit through "corkage" and "cooling" charges was reaped.

Crowds on the streets were more orderly than in former years. Few arrests were made.

The celebration was not confined to places of merriment. The chimes of hundreds of churches rang out as the old at midnight, while thousands of whistles shrieked an accompaniment. Many thousands attended watch-night meetings in the churches. A chorus of 1000 voices sang at Madison Square Garden, while a pageant was presented.

Theaters were crowded beyond capacity, notwithstanding the fact that many houses have had doubled the price of admission. Two roof gardens charged $11 a seat for their midnight shows.

MUCH CHICAGO BOOZE.

CHICAGO, Jan. 1.—Chicago's noisy young New Year, nursed last night on hip-pocket bottles, showed no signs of being as dry as Congress and the Supreme Court had forecasted.

Cafes became cafeterias last night, and serve-yourself-service apparently proved adequate to produce all the traditional joys of the New Year welcome.

Illinois search-and-seizure law went by the boards. Hip-pocket flasks were fashionable, but thirstier ones transported their select private stocks to downtown eating places in suitcases, baskets, grip bags and in one case even a trunk was used.

Police threats of enforcement of the drastic search law failed of execution. Chief Garrity made the rounds at midnight and in a famous downtown hotel delivered a short speech to the revelers.

"I am glad to see everybody is having such a good time," he said.

On the streets the merry revelers were as numerous as ever in the early evening, but a driving snowstorm later drove the majority to cover.

Authorities throughout the country today gravely awaited reports from New Year's Eve revels for confirmation or refutation of their predictions that the wave of deaths from wood alcohol poisoning which took a toll of approximately 125 lives during the Christmas holidays would be revealed.

Chicopee, Mass., and the Connecticut Valley with fifty deaths today still led all localities that suffered from the Christmas flood of fake whisky. In Chicago thirty-two deaths attributable to wood alcohol poisoning had occurred since December 1.

Fully awakened to the dangers of consuming the poisonous beverage, city, State and Federal officers from New York to San Francisco today were directing their efforts toward eliminating sales of the liquid.

SAN FRANCISCO AFTERMATH.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 1.—The New Year's Eve celebration in San Francisco was particularly luckless one for automobilists, approximately twenty accidents occurring and seventeen cars being stolen. In one mishap an unidentified woman was seriously injured and is not expected to live.

Benjamin Allman, a mechanic, was burned to death while trying to extinguish a fire in his home.

Whisky substitutes intended for New Year's celebrators, contained crude oil, embalming fluid, oil of peppermint, and oil of carmine, chemical analysis revealed.

ST. LOUIS DRY AND QUIET.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 1.—St. Louis's New Yea's Eve celebration was said to have been the "driest" in its history. While dining rooms of hotels and cafes were crowded, most of the revelers contented themselves with cider. Some, however, brought their own liquor and were charged "corkage." There was only a little noise.

CONSCIENCE MAKES ANGELENO PAY.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Jan. 1.—A new account was recently opened in the ledger of the Colorado Midland Terminal Railway under the caption "Conscience Fund." The first entry was $5 cents.

The remittance was from a resident of Los Angeles, who, in an explanatory letter, declared that while walking from Manitou to Divide, a distance of twenty-one miles, he "jumped a ride" on the Midland, and rode into Divide. The incidsnt occurred twenty years ago.

POWDER EXPLOSION AT HERCULES ROCKS TOWNS

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 1.—With a roar that was heard for many miles, two tons of black powder stored in a magazine of the Hercules Powder Company's plant here exploded shortly after 4 p.m. today. No one was injured. The force of the blast shook surrounding towns in the bay region.

Officials of the company after an investigation advanced the theory that the powder was exploded by a stray bullet from a hunter's rifle. The plant was shut down for the New Year holiday. A crew of half a dozen men ordinarily was employed at the magazine.

HENRY FORD OUT FOR PRESIDENT!

Going After the Republican Nomination in Earnest.

Will Repeat Attempt Made in 1916 Convention.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—According to information reaching prominent Republicans in New York, Henry Ford, the automobile manufacturer, will enter the Michigan Republican primaries as a contestant for the delegates from the State for the Republican nomination for President.

This is what Mr. Ford did in 1916 when he entered the Republican primaries against Michigan's favorite son for that year, Senator William Alden Smith, and, much to the chagrin of the Republican organization leaders, he captured the delegation, beating the Senator by about 20,000 in the State.

It was said today that Mr. Ford's lieutenants are pursuing the same tactics now that they used four years ago. The Republican leaders four years ago clung to the belief up to the last minute that Mr. Ford was not in earnest in seeking the Republican indorsement and the delegates from his home State. They managed to keep the office of the Secretary of State open until the last minute in order to take care of his declination which he did not file. The Michigan delegation not only presented his name in the Chicago convention, but they voted for him twice.

HAS A LIMITATION.

The primary law in Michigan was changed this year so as to prevent Mr. Ford or anyone else from running on two tickets, as he did in the 1916 primaries against Senator Newberry, but the law permits anyone to enter the primaries of one party. Mr. Ford was the candidate of the Democrats in Michigan in 1918 primaries. His townsmen are nearly all Republicans and they do not relish the idea of having him run as a Democrat in a year that promises so well for the Republicans.

If Mr. Ford decides to take another flyer in politics, contesting for the Michigan Republican Presidential delegates, he will complicate the Michigan situation, which is somewhat complicated now, owing to the indictment of Senator Newberry and more than a hundred of supporters for alleged election law violations. If he enters the Republican primaries and beats the regular organization candidates he will, in the judgment of his supporters, be in position to say to the Republican leaders in the national convention that the friends of Senator Newberry have been repudiated by the Republican voters and that Mr. Ford is the Republican leader of Michigan.

WILSON REMAINS SILENT.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—Denial is made that President Wilson will write a letter announcing he is not a candidate for re-election, to be read at the Jackson-day dinner, January 8. Joseph P. Tumulty tells friends there was nothing in the report. Col. House has been taking the position for some time that the President should announce that he was not a candidate, in order to permit public sentiment among Democrats all over the country to crystalize on some other man. In talks with friends, Col. House had referred to a time when the President, then in Paris, was on the brink of making the announcement he was not a candidate for re-election. At that time the announcement, it was thought, might have resulted in the President having a more united country behind him in his negotiations at Paris.

REFUSED TO TAKE TIP.

During the President's swing around the circle some of his advisers took the position if he would announce flatly that he was not a candidate it would aid him in his efforts to force the treaty through the Senate. This phase of the situation was so manifest that it was presented by several writers for papers friendly to the League as the most interesting news development of the trip. But the President, although stating he would make any sacrifice to assure ratification of the treaty, did not take the step urged on him by these advisers.

This is recalled here because the same logic which prevented the President from making an announcement at Paris and which restrained him from announcing it on the Pacific Coast during his trip, applies today with much greater force.

That logic is the moment the President makes a definite announcement he is not a candidate he loses his grip on the Democratic Senators. It is more true today than when he was in Paris, or on the Pacific Coast, because the Democratic Senators are showing many signs of breaking away from the President on the treaty and reaching a compromise with the Republicans and regardless of whether that compromise is entirely satisfactory to the President or not.

WAR HANDS KNOCKOUT TO LAURA JEAN LIBBY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 1.—Perhaps it was the war which led to serious thinking, but whatever the cause, librarians say Laura Jean Libby and other writers of her style are fading in popularity among the young girls.

American people are reading more and better books, noticeably since the war. Library workers from all over the country, who have just concluded a four-day session here, say 1919 was a banner year for libraries. Miss Pearl Field, head of the circulation department of the Chicago library, put the case thus:

"The frivolous young girls who formerly read nothing but Laura Jean Libby and Elinor Glyn are now seeking the highest types of fiction. We have observed a marked increase of interest in better literature in all classes. There are more young men, especially ex-service men, in pursuit of technical knowledge to refit themselves for higher classes of work.

Librarians from other cities verified these statements.

BRAZIL WISHES US "HAPPY NEW YEAR."

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 1.—Azevedo Marques, Foreign Minister, sends through the Associated Press the following New Year's greetings to the people of the United States.

"The Minister of State for Foreign Relations of Brazil greets most cordially the government of the United States of America in the person of her illustrious President, Mr. Wilson, and sends good wishes to the American people, wishing them every happiness of the New Year."

abandonment or its substantial modification?

"Do you believe, in other words, that the time has come when we should abandon the policy of no entangling alliances, or partnerships with European powers, and enter into alliances or understandings with European powers?

"I ask these questions because, regardless of what may or may not be in the platforms, the next administration will have to meet this issue in different ways. It might be possible to avert in a campaign although the outlook for that is not promising, but it will not be possible to avert during the next administration. Powerful forces in this country, co-operating with equally powerful and persistent forces in Europe are determined to draw the United States into associations and partnerships with Europe, to embroil us in all European turmoils and conflicts, to utilize our young men in policing the territories and fighting the racial and dynastic battles of the old world, and placing upon our taxpayers the burden of the financial and economic life of both Europe and Asia, and these forces will continue their efforts to bring about these things after the election. If they cannot do it in one way they will do it in another. If they cannot succeed by open argument they will endeavor to succeed by secret and indirect agreements. We, many of us, feel therefore that we would like to know what your views are upon this problem and what it will be your purpose to do should you be honored by an election as President.

"May I not give you an illustration? A short time ago the bodies of 116 American boys were brought back from the frozen regions of Russia, where they had died of disease and in battle. Last week we were further advised by the press that 200 wounded American soldiers had arrived at Vladivostok and were in the hospital and were ill-y cared for. We are not at war with Russia. The American people do not want to go to war with Russia, and yet these things are being done in violation of the Constitution of the United States without an authority of Congress and against the wishes of the American people. These things are being done because the representatives of the five great nations, including the United States, sitting in secret session at Versailles, decided for secret reasons to do them. No American father or mother whose boys are being thus sacrificed are permitted to know why the sacrifice is being made.

"This is but an intimation of what is to happen should we consent to abandon our traditional foreign policy and enter into understandings and combinations which would embroil us in all European conflicts and turmoil. Our young men would be asked to sacrifice their lives in just such secret and unconscionable affairs as this in Russia. And Mr. Taft, as I understand from his public statement, is in favor, if necessary, of conscripting our young men for that kind of service.

"Are you in favor of any such policy, or of any alliance, league or partnership which may lead to such a programme? What is to be your policy with regard to such affairs?

"Less important, but not unimportant, is the fact that into this Russian surmoil we have poured several hundred million dollars of the money of an already overtaxed people, and millions more are to be used in the same way. Under this new departure our men and our money are to be called into the service in the foreign situations and, if we are to judge the future by the past, in absolute violation of most fundamental principles of the American republic. I think you will agree with me, therefore, that these are matters upon which the people are entitled to a candid and open statement as to the attitude of every man who aspires to the high office of President. I do not assume for a moment, indeed, knowing you as I do, I could not assume that upon so vital a question you should desire for any reason to remain silent.

"I wish to say further that those for whom I speak, and I particularly, have no intention of confining these and similar questions to yourself.

"Very respectfully,

"WILLIAM E. BORAH."

HINT GOV. FRAZIER SEEKS THIRD TERM.

FARGO (N. D.) Jan. 1.—What is regarded as being an indication that Gov. Frazier will seek a third term is included in a statement published today by the Courier News, Non-Partisan League newspaper, here, that Frazier's name is being "considered" again for the Governorship. John Nyagan, State Commissioner of Agriculture, also is mentioned as a likely candidate.

Gov. Frazier was nominated for President of the United States by the South Dakota Non-Partisan League proposal meeting a month ago, but yesterday, the last day, he had not filed the required acceptance.

JAP DISTURBED BY SIGNS HERE.

Warns His Countrymen of American Suspicions.

Thinks China Policy Jeopardizes Friendship.

Consul-General at New York Pleads for Amity.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—The relationship between Japan and the United States "is in considerable danger" and it is urgently necessary that the relations between the two countries be placed on a more amicable basis than at present, in the opinion of M. Yada, Japanese Consul-General at New York, who is now on leave in Japan, according to advices from Tokio. He is quoted by the Asahi as saying:

"The Shantung amendment, as propounded by the Republicans, is no doubt intended for the purpose of vexing the President, but primarily it must have originated with their disgust of Japan's policy toward China. America has been watching Japan's attitude towards China with suspicion, and her suspicion has increased since the conclusion of the Chino-Japanese agreement of 1915.

"America has always suspected Japan's territorial ambitions in China, and, although Japan's paramountcy in China is recognized by European countries, this has never been recognized by America. It is true that America was induced to recognize Japan's special interests in China, but a clear definition of 'special interests' still remains to be explained.

RELATIONS STRAINED.

"Frankly speaking, the relationship between Japan and America is in considerable danger, and it is urgently necessary that the relations between the two countries be placed on a more sound, friendly basis. In order to reach a mutual understanding, nothing would be more important for the two peoples than to meet in a friendly way and to discuss the situation in a full and frank manner.

"This is work that should not be left to Ambassadors and other official but politicians, business men and other publicists should unite for the attainment of a common object. A proposal is now afoot to organize a committee consisting of politicians, business men and representatives of other classes, and the committee will be dispatched to America charged with a mission of restoring friendly relations between America and Japan by means of speeches and interviews."

KOREANS TO REVOLT.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—Dispatches from Seoul, via Honolulu, declaring that a revolt is imminent in Korea are correct, according to the Korean commission in Washington, which further asserted that the circumstances surrounding the arrest by the Japanese of Prince Yi Kang, fifth son of the Korean Emperor, were such that they completed the last link in the chain of evidence tending to show that the Japanese disposed of the old Emperor so that their control of the Koreans would be complete.

The Emperor of Korea died January 20, but his death was kept a secret by the Japanese authorities in Seoul, whose prisoner he was from 1905," the Korean commission says. "The truth concerning the death of the Emperor is that he was either murdered or given the alternative of suicide. It may be recalled that the Queen of Korea was murdered by the Japanese.

BARBARIC BRUTALITY.

"When the death of the Emperor was finally permitted to be known the entire world was surprised by the account of a revolution in Korea, and the demand of the Koreans for a republic. The revolters, lacking arms and ammunition and, in fact, basing their demand for freedom on a programme of passiveness, were massacred, beaten, tortured and executed by the Japanese. The latter, in an attempt to cloak their woeful mismanagement of the country and to shield the inherent viciousness of the military system sought a pretext for the revolt, the Christian missionaries in Korea were accused of aiding the rebellion and some of them were compelled to undergo the cruel treatment of the Japanese military authorities.

DOG GUARDS MASTER'S CORPSE THREE NIGHTS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX, Jan. 1.—How a shepherd dog stood guard over her master's body for two days and three nights to protect it from prowling animals and birds of prey has been revealed here by Humane Officer J. W. Canning.

Ermos F. Williams, son of J. H. Williams, of Phoenix, died July 15, last, while herding goats and sheep in the mountains about fifty-six miles north of here. He fell over as though from heart disease, his father heard afterwards.

A Mexican herder called Lady, the shepherd dog, to the body, and said: "Stay with him." The Mexican walked toward Phoenix until he met an American, who telephoned news of the death to the youth's father.

Williams started from Phoenix at once. Because of hard rains and washouts, he had difficulty in getting into the mountain fastnesses where the flocks pastured. Finally, he reached the spot where the body lay, the dog still on guard. She growled viciously as he approached, he said, but as soon as she saw he meant no harm, licked his hand. She was half-starved and gaunt with thirst, but when he tried to drag her to a place to drink, she resisted fiercely and ran back to the boy's body. There she stayed until neighbors had been summoned to take the body to Phoenix.

HIGH FINANCE TALE IS BARED.

a little investigating. Mr. Howard was the attorney who was to handle the business for him, Mr. Schulman said, but Mr. Howard, when asked last night about the matter, said he did not know much about the young man, other than that he was sent to his office, and talked about the draft and all that sort of thing.

LETTERS AND CABLES.

The telegrams and letters received by Messrs. Howard and Opat, in the investigation that followed the young millionaire's disappearance, and which will be submitted to the District Attorney today, include the following:

"Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank, Dec. 20, 1919.

Dr. I. D. Opat, Lankershim Building, Los Angeles, Cal.

Dear Sir: At your request we sent and received the following cables to Lloyd's Bank, Ltd., London, translated below. Sent: 'Do you know anything about draft drawn on yourselves or your credit check £400,000 sterling? Answer by telegraph.'

"Received: 'Distinctly know nothing about drafts. For our information who draws drafts and where issued?' Yours truly, [Signed] "RALPH DAY,

"Assistant Cashier."

The draft, Mr. Schulman told Dr. Opat, was to be paid through the Anglo and London-Paris National Bank of San Francisco and the Chase National Bank of New York. The following was received from them:

"Ray Howard, Los Angeles, Cal. Telegram received. We have not collected anything for Gustave Schulman and have no relations whatever with him.

[Signed] "THE CHASE NATIONAL BANK."

A long letter from E. W. Wilson, vice-president of the San Francisco Bank, in answer to his telegram, told the following to Mr. Howard:

"Upon inquiry in the exchange department and elsewhere I can find no trace of ever having known of it, outside of the statement made by Mr. Schulman." (Here follows a statement uncomplimentary to Mr. Schulman.) This was a letter sent following Mr. Howard's personal visit to San Francisco when he took up the matter with the bank there.

The law firm of Bailey and Bailey in Washington, who were to fight his income tax case, Mr. Schulman told Dr. Opat, the latter says, sent the following:

"Mr. Ray Howard, Attorney at Law, Los Angeles, Cal.:

"Your wire received. We do not know Gustave Schulman, never heard of him, and do not know his address or whereabouts.

"BAILEY AND BAILEY."

BONDS GONE.

Another phase of the case which the District Attorney's office will be asked to investigate is the disappearance from Dr. Opat's room at the Stowell Hotel of a large sum in Liberty Bonds and certain receipts which Mr. Schulman gave Dr. Opat for his money. These papers were missed from Dr. Opat's trunk shortly after Mr. Schulman left Los Angeles, Dr. Opat says.

Attorney Howard last night explained he was interested in learning more of Mr. Schulman's whereabouts, but denied that he had lost anything. "I gave that man very little of my services, and certainly did not give him any money," he said.

A Los Angeles business man, who is reported to have lost a large amount of money in a transaction similiar to that of Dr. Opat's, and the manager of the Tiffany studios could not be reached last night for their version of the case.

"It's hard to break into the films as an ordinary actor, there is a way to become a star, but it's very dangerous to be a producer," was the philosophical remark of Dr. Opat last night. "I delayed giving out my unfortunate relations with Schulman hoping I could by my own efforts locate him. I dislike publicity that must inevitably follow disclosures of this kind. I am turning all telegrams and correspondence over to the authorities."

GIGANTIC AND ASTOUNDING.

During the Year 1919, The Los Angeles Times Printed More Lines of Paid Advertising Than Any Other Newspaper in the World, With But One Exception, and Surpassed Its Own 1912 Unequaled Record of 18,479,300 Lines.

The newspaper advertising record for another year has been written. The official returns are in, and every newspaper in the world, with but a single exception, fell behind The Times, as usual, in the volume of advertising printed in 1919.

With the single exception of the record of the Chicago Tribune for 1919, The Times' advertising record for 1919 of 20,192,061 lines was never before equaled in any single year in the history of the world by any other newspaper at home or abroad.

A total volume of 10,232,292 lines of paid advertising was printed in the Sunday Times alone in 1919, which is more than six metropolitan newspapers out of every ten in America print three hundred and sixty-five days in the year.

In the local field The Times in 1919 led the Los Angeles Examiner in paid advertising by the enormous total of 6,789,830 lines. In "Want" or "Liner" advertising The Times led the Examiner by 2,581,306 lines, and printed 390,781 more separate advertisements or practically double the number, published by that newspaper.

The assessed property valuation of Los Angeles county is greater than that of any other county in the United States, and greater than that of several entire States, and The Times' advertising supremacy is due to the fact that persons who spend money for newspaper publicity realize that The Times is the open door through which they can trundle their goods into Southern California and Pacific Coast homes.

The following tabulation contains the figures received by wire to date of the newspapers making the best records in the cities named:

FEWER FEEBLE-MINDED IN DRY NATION, CLAIM

SPOKANE, Jan. 1.—Decrease 25 per cent. in the number of cases of feeble-mindedness and epilepsy during the next twenty years as a result of prohibition was predicted by Dr. S. C. Woodruff, superintendent of the State Custodial School at Medical Lake, in a summary of the year's work at the Institution, made public here tonight.

This percentage of cases is due to alcoholic excesses in parents, Dr. Woodruff said, as found at the Medical Lake School and similar institutions throughout the country.

BRITAIN LOSES GREAT ESTATES

Quiet Revolution Takes Place Throughout Land.

New Taxation Compels Division of Vast Holdings.

Nobility Cannot Keep Ancestral Domains Intact.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—A peaceful revolution is going on in the English countryside. The last revolution of the kind occurred when King Henry VIII broke up the monasteries and gave the abbey lands to his favorites restoring the feudal system.

Now the wheel is taking a turn still further back. Before the feudal Lords were the free yeomen farmers of England, men who owned and worked their own land and owed allegiance to no man but the King. Today the yeomen of England are coming back to their own.

The descendants of King Henry's new men of 500 years ago are selling out. They are selling out because it no longer pays to be a landlord.

The English landlord exercises a real control over the use of his land. Often he was an agricultural expert himself. Always his agent was. One land agent, Rowland Prothero, who managed the Duke of Bedford's estates, was chosen by Prime Minister Lloyd George to reorganize the farming of England during the war and is now Minister of Agriculture. The great landlords prevented bad and careless farming, developed new methods and experimental work.

TAXES CAUSE SALES

The big landlords are selling out because of the new public policy of developing the independent free holding farmer. That policy was begun by Lloyd George's famous death duties act in 1914 when he was Chancellor of the Exchequer. It was admittedly designed to break up the great estates, and so effective is it that three deaths in a family in about ten years would nearly wipe out an estate. One death even is crippling, and generally compels sale of part of landed estate to pay the inheritance tax.

The process has been accelerated by war taxation, and for months past the real estate column of the London Daily papers have been full of announcements of the sale of the great estates. In nearly every case they have been bought by the actual tenants, and in nearly every case, too, this has been due to the fact that every facility was given by the landlords for the tenants to arrange easy payments.

DUKE OF RUTLAND SELLS.

One of the most sensational of these sales took place just before Christmas when the Duke of Rutland sold an estate of 15,000 acres in Leicestershire and Derbyshire, a few weeks before he had sold another estate in Rutland. Both of these estates had been in the family for 600 or 700 years. The Duke said, was because he liked to sell, but because, as he said frankly, he could not afford to go on owning the land.

The best return he had received from it during recent years had been between 1¼ and 2 per cent. on his capital. Often he received nothing, and in more than one year the cost of repairs, hedging, ditching, and other necessary outgoings left him with an actual loss on his land holdings.

DIVIDE BIG ESTATES.

Other big sales recently are by the Duke of Bedford in Cambridgeshire of about 20,000 acres, Lord Harewood's sale of 9000 acres in Yorkshire, the Duke of Beaufort's sale of his Badminton property of about 4000 acres and including half a dozen villages. Sir Watkin Williams Wynne sold 25,000 acres in Montgomeryshire, Mr. Walter Long over 1000 acres in Merionethshire, the Duke of Sutherland, his Trentham estate at Stoke-on-Trent. The Duke of Grafton sold his Wakefield estate. Then there are 1000 acres of the Earl of Harrington's Cheshire estates, 4000 acres of the Rolleston Hall estate of Sir Oswald Mosley in Derbyshire, and 2000 acres of Lord Hindlip's Alsop-En-le estate, also in Derbyshire.

All told, more than 750,000 acres have changed hands this year and it is expected that before the end of next year more than 2,000,000 acres of old family estates will have been sold.

FROM SOCIETY TO JAIL.

Ex-Convict Leads High Life in Denver by Means of Forgery.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

DENVER, Jan. 1.—A. L. Moore's career in Denver society circles ended yesterday with his arrest on a charge of forgery. He was captured after a chase by employees of a bank where he attempted to cash a $150 check bearing the signature of a prominent Denver man. Officials are attempting to connect him with recent bank swindles here totaling $40,000.

Moore began his society career shortly after his arrival in Denver October 22, when he registered at a fashionable hotel. His entry was through a Red Cross worker whose acquaintance he made during the recent Red Cross drive.

In his trunk was found a discharge certificate from the Arkansas penitentiary. Sheafs of checks, some of which bore the signature of prominent citizens, also were found in his trunk. He had more than $4000 in his clothes.

LITTLE ROCK (Ark.) Jan. 1.—A. L. Moore, arrested in Denver charged with forgery, was released from the Arkansas State penitentiary on Jan. 1, 1918, after having served a four year sentence for burglary and grand larceny. He embezzled several hundred dollars, it was charged, from the Twin City Bank of North Little Rock, where he was employed as assistant cashier.

SPOKANE, Jan. 1.—Decrease of 25 per cent. in the number of cases of feeble-mindedness and epilepsy during the next twenty years as a result of prohibition was predicted by Dr. S. C. Woodruff, superintendent of the State Custodian School at Medical Lake, in a summary of his year's work at the institution, made public here tonight.

This percentage of cases is traced to alcoholic excesses in parents, Dr. Woodruff said, as found at the Medical Lake School and similar institutions throughout the country.

BRITAIN LOSES GREAT ESTATES.

Quiet Revolution Takes Place Throughout Land.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—A peaceful revolution is going on in the English countryside. The last revolution of the kind occurred when King Henry VIII broke up the monasteries and gave the abbey lands to his favorites, restoring the feudal system.

Now the wheel is taking a turn still farther back. Before the feudal lords were the free yeomen farmers of England, men who owned and worked their own land and owed allegiance to no man but the King. Today the yeomen of England are coming back to their own.

The descendants of King Henry's new men of 500 years ago are selling out by act. They are selling out because it no longer pays to be a landlord.

An English landlord exercises a personal control over the use of his land. Often he was an agricultural expert himself. Always his agent was. The land agent, Rowland Prothero, who managed the Duke of Bedford's estates, was chosen by Prime Minister Lloyd George to reorganize the farming of England during the war and is now Minister of Agriculture. The past landlords prevented bad and careless farming, developed new methods and experimental work.

TAXES CAUSE SALES

The big landlords are selling out because of the new public policy of developing the independent free owner farmer. That policy was begun by Lloyd George's famous land duties act in 1914 when he was Chancellor of the Exchequer. It was admittedly designed to break up the great estates, and so effective is it that three deaths in a family in the last ten years would nearly wipe out an estate. One death even is sufficient, and generally compels the sale of part of landed estate to pay the inheritance tax.

The process has been accelerated by war taxation, and for months the best estate columns of the London Daily papers have been full of announcements of the sale of great estates. In nearly every case the lots have been bought by the actual tenants, and in nearly every case, where this has been due to the fact that every facility was given by the landlords for the tenants to arrange the payments.

SALE OF RUTLAND SELLS.

One of the most sensational of the sales took place just before Christmas when the Duke of Rutland sold an estate of 15,000 acres in Lincolnshire and Derbyshire. A few weeks before he had sold another estate in Rutland. Both of these estates had been in the family for 600 or 700 years. The Duke did not because he liked to sell, but because, as he said frankly, he could not afford to go on owning the land.

The best return he had received from it during recent years had been between 1½ and 2 per cent. on his capital. Often he received nothing. There is more than one year the cost of repairs, hedging, ditching, and other necessary outgoings left him with an actual loss on his land holdings.

DIVIDE BIG ESTATES.

Other big sales recently are by the Duke of Bedford in Cambridgeshire of about 20,000 acres, Lord Harewood's sale of 9000 acres in Yorkshire, the Duke of Beaufort's sale of the Badminton property of about 50,000 acres and including half a dozen villages. Sir Watkin Williams Wynn sold 25,000 acres in Montgomeryshire, Mr. Walter Long over 20,000 acres in Merionethshire, the Duke of Sutherland, his Trentham estate at Stoke-on-Trent.

The Duke of Grafton sold his Euston estate. Then there are the sales of the Earl of Harrington's Cheshire estates, 4000 acres of the Palterton Hall estate of Sir Osbert Mundy in Derbyshire, and 2000 acres of Lord Hindlip's Alsop-En-le-Dale estate, also in Derbyshire.

In all, more than 750,000 acres have changed hands this year and it is reported that before the end of 1920 more than 2,000,000 acres of family estates will have been sold.

RETURNS ON INCOME TAX DUE.

Filing Is Obligatory Between January 1 and March 15; Ordinary Taxpayer's Quota Will Be Smaller Than Last Year; Rules for Exemption.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1. — With the opening of the new year comes the first date for the filing of income-tax returns.

Heavy penalties are imposed for those who fail to file their returns between January 1 and March 15. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return or, if it is desired to make the payments in four installments, the first must be paid by March 15, the second by June 15, the third by September 15 and the fourth by December 15. The period for which the income tax is assessed is the calendar year of 1919.

The ordinary taxpayer will not be obliged to pay quite as much as last year, although the rate still is far greater than pre-war rates.

EXEMPTIONS UNCHANGED.

The exemptions of $1000 for single persons and $2000 for married persons and heads of families remain the same as for 1918. The normal rate for 1919 is 4 per cent. on the first $4000 of net income above the exemptions and 8 per cent. on the remaining net income. Last year the normal rate was 6 and 12 per cent. respectively.

Surtax rates are the same as last year. They started with 1% per cent. on the amount of net income between $5000 and $6000 and increased by steps of 1 per cent. for each $2000 of net income up to and including 48 per cent. on net income in excess of $98,000 and not over $100,000. The surtax on net incomes over $100,000 and not over $150,000 is 52 per cent.; on net incomes over $150,000 and not over $200,000 it is 56 per cent.; on net incomes over $200,000 and not over $300,000 it is 60 per cent.; on net incomes over $300,000 and not over $500,000 it is 63 per cent.; on net incomes over $500,000 and not over $1,000,000 it is 64 per cent., and on net incomes over $1,000,000 it is 65 per cent.

Besides the exemption of $1000 for single persons and $2000 for married there is an additional exemption of $200 for each dependent under 18 years of age.

OBLIGED TO FILE.

Every person whose income equaled or exceeded $1000 for single persons or $2000 for those who are married must file a return, regardless of whether the income is large enough to require the payment of the tax.

Forms for making returns will be available at offices of collectors of internal revenue and deputy collectors, postoffices and banks. What is known as form 1040-A is for use of those with incomes of $5000 or less, while form 1040 is for those with larger incomes.

Taxpayers must report under gross income salaries, including bonuses, interest received on notes and from bank deposits, dividends on stocks, profits from the sale of property, profits from stock market transactions, income from fiduciaries, partnership profits and royalties from mines, oil wells, patents, copyrights and franchises.

ITEMS NOT TAXABLE.

Items which are not taxable and need not be included in the return are property received by gift or inheritance, proceeds of life insurance policies, return of premiums on life insurance, endowment or annuity contracts, amounts received through accident or health insurance or under workmen's compensation acts, interest on obligations of any State or any city, town, county or village, interest on Liberty Bonds to the par value of $5000, interest on securities issued under the Federal farm loan act, and amounts received during the war by persons in the active military or naval forces up to $3500 in addition to personal exemption.

RULE ON DEDUCTIONS.

Deductions from gross income in determining net income include all business expenses in the conduct of a business, trade or profession. A reasonable allowance is made for depreciation of business property.

Contributions or gifts to charitable, religious or educational societies may be deducted to an amount not exceeding 15 per cent. of the taxpayer's income.

The following table shows the amount of income tax the average married person must pay for the calendar year of 1919 based on the reduction in the normal tax. The rates for the current year are to be 4 per cent. on the first $4000 of net income above the exemption, which is $2000 for married persons and $200 for each child, and $1000 for single persons, and 8 per cent. on the net income in excess of $4000 minus the exemptions. The rates paid on the 1918 income were 6 per cent. and 12 per cent. respectively. Surtaxes remain the same as last year. On the basis of the reduced normal tax the married person will pay as follows:

CANADIANS KICK OVER HIGH EXCHANGE RATES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

OTTAWA (Ont.) Jan. 1.—As a result of many Western people who in years past spent their winter in California refusing to go south this winter on account of the high exchange rate, ap association is being formed with headquarters in Winnipeg to encourage the idea of keeping Canadian money at home until it is accepted at face value in the States.

Col. C. W. Rowley originated the idea. The railroads are to be asked to co-operate in Canadian coast cities as a substitute for those on the prairies who think a warmer climate is necessary to their health.

It is estimated that $40,000,000 each winter is spent in California and Florida by Canadians who can find the same climate on the Canadian Pacific Coast, among their own people, who will not discount their money.

"Our Money at Face Value, or We Keep It" is the slogan. The idea is expected to result in encouraging the purchase of domestic products in preference to those of any country that discounts the Canadian dollars.

The month of December shows the greatest number of corporation filings since 1914, when 320 corporations were formed. A great many of the corporations formed during the month were Japanese land-owning companies.

ITALY AT NEW YEAR'S IN GIFT-GIVING MOOD.

KING RECEIVES HIGH DIGNITARIES AT PALACE; MANY SOCIAL AFFAIRS.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

ROME, Jan. 1.—New Year's Day was celebrated in Italy with almost the same ceremonies as Christmas, there being a general exchange of presents, with dinners and other social affairs.

The King received the high dignitaries of State at the Quirinal Palace, beginning with the wearers of the Annunziata collar, who rank as his cousins. The members of the Cabinet, the Senators, deputies and other officials followed. The diplomatic corps will be received by the King and Queen Friday evening.

The most notable event of the day was the address of Camille Burrere, the French Ambassador, during a reception to the French colony, at which he said he had never practiced what is described as secret diplomacy. He hoped he would never commit such a sin, he declared.

BRYAN TO SWAT PALMER'S BOOM.

Commoner Swings Big Blackthorn Over Democrats.

Shut from Jackson Dinner, He Arranges Another.

Orator's Adherents "Springing from the Grass."

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—William J. Bryan, thrice candidate for the Presidency on the Democratic ticket, is sending orders along the lines to his lieutenants in a way to make the heads of the McAdoo and Palmer men swim.

Col. Bryan has made it plain to his friends, both east and west, that Atty.-Gen. Palmer is the man to beat, and the Bryan men, who are "springing out of the grass," are training their guns on Mr. Palmer.

The friends of Mr. Bryan have discovered that Tumulty, the President's secretary, is working for the Attorney General, and that the Jackson dinner in Washington on January 8 is to be a Palmer rally. In order to make it so, the friends of Col. Bryan said yesterday that former Secretary McAdoo has decided to stay away from the dinner.

TUMULTY SHUT HIM OUT.

Tumulty, it is charged, has commandeered the greater portion of the dinner tickets in the interest of Mr. Palmer, leaving the Bryan men on the "outside breastworks." As a counter-offensive the Bryan men made plans for another Jackson dinner at Washington on the same night, with Mr. Bryan as the speaker. Harry W. Walker, Bryan's old lieutenant in New York, returned from New York, from a trip up-State, and when asked what he had discovered, said:

"I found that Brady Traction and Light interests, which practically dominate the Democratic State machine, are busy all over the State in the interests of Atty.-Gen. Palmer. They are openly working for him, apparently having been tipped off from Washington that he is one of the best.

"The western part of the State is favorably impressed with the candidacy of James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany. Unless the Murphy machine gets a strangle hold on the delegation from this State, Judge Gerard will have many delegates."

BRYAN STRONG IN NEW YORK.

County Clerk William F. Schneider, who took a leading part in beating the Tammany ticket last November, said that with a clean-cut issue between Charles F. Murphy and William J. Bryan in the primaries, the Bryan men would capture half the delegates in this city and more than half of those from up-State. Frank H. Warder, secretary of the Bryan League, said:

"There are so many of Col. Bryan's friends going to Washington on January 8 to witness the great comeback of the Commoner, but a percentage of them will be able to secure tickets to the banquet to be held by the national committee in honor of Jackson's birthday.

"Hence arrangements are being made to have an additional banquet, which will be addressed by Col. Bryan before he speaks at the Jackson dinner. There is a precedent for this. At the Jackson banquet in 1912 the Wilson League held a separate banquet which was addressed by the then Gov. Wilson."

W. H. Anderson of the Anti-Saloon League, uttered a veiled threat that the Prohibitionists will swing to Bryan.

DEATH SPARES ARIZONA MINER IN EXPLOSION.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

KINGMAN (Ariz.) Jan. 1.—Dan Vidale is alive and little injured, after a remarkable experience, in the explosion at his feet of a box containing 115 fulminate of mercury blasting caps, ignited by a spark from a nearby forge, set at the mouth of a tunnel of the Utazona mine. Only a few feet away was a box of giant powder, set near the forge for thawing, but the dynamite was not affected.

Another remarkable accident was that in which E. W. Koppe was struck and almost scalped by a gasoline barrel's explosion. The barrel was being tested, after repair, and failed to hold the air pressure applied. Koppe was sent to Los Angeles, believed in serious condition, but is reported convalescing.

Cattleman Killed in Auto Wreck.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 1.—Charles Sebastian, a well known cattle buyer, was found dead yesterday in the wreck of a light auto truck about ten miles west of Woodland. His feet were caught in the steering wheel of the wrecked car. Death was caused by strangulation and there was not a scratch on the body, authorities say. The machine apparently skidded on the road made slippery by the heavy fog, turned turtle and righted itself badly damaged. As the machine turned over Sebastian was twisted up with the machine and strangled.

GRAB 200 CHICAGO REDS.

CHICAGO, Jan. 1.—Raids resulting in the arrest of 200 or more Industrial Workers of America, communists and other radicals were carried out today under the direction of State's Attorney Hoyne, who tonight in a statement attacked Atty.-Gen. Palmer for the failure of the Department of Justice agents to co-operate. Agents of the military intelligence branch of the Central Department of the Army aided the county prosecutor.

Mr. Hoyne said the raids had been timed for 4 p.m. New Year's Day. He said he had recently gone to Washington to confer with government officials. At noon today, after receipt of a personal letter from Atty.-Gen. Palmer, asking him not to proceed with the plan, Federal Department of Justice Agents withdrew, Mr. Hoyne said.

"Apparently Atty.-Gen. Palmer or some of his friends are playing petty politics with the situation and are pursuing a 'pussyfoot' policy," said Mr. Hoyne. "Expressing my opinion as a citizen and a Democrat, I do not believe Nero or any other fiddler can be elected President of the United States."

Edward G. Brennan, chief of the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice, refused to comment on the absence of his men in the raids.

The prosecutor asserted that daily in Chicago, members of the radical organizations addressed meetings urging their hearers to "await the one big day" and that their purpose was nothing less than overthrow of the government. Mr. Hoyne declared that the I.W.W., the communist party and the communist labor party members and anarchists and syndicalists were distributing tons of seditious literature. He said today's raids were only the beginning of his drive which he declared was intended to extirpate all radicals from Cook county. His investigation, he said, had disclosed that the leading agitators "in this criminal conspiracy" centered their activities in Chicago, New York, Boston, Cleveland, Detroit and Seattle.

Mr. Hoyne declared his men had been armed with 200 search-warrants, and that in addition a number of warrants charging conspiracy had been issued by Judge Hugo Pam of the criminal court. Four men were arrested on the latter warrants today. Among them was George Andreitchine, an I.W.W., released on bond some time ago from Leavenworth penitentiary, pending decision on the appeal of ninety-two I.W.W. convicted of violation of the espionage law.

Anne Grovarsky, 34, was the only woman arrested. She and twenty-seven men were taken from I.W.W. headquarters. James Crowley, secretary of the I.W.W., also was arrested.

HOPI INDIANS DRAG MISSIONARY IN DUST.

DEMAND EXPULSION OF MENNONITE ON GROUND OF RELIGIOUS FREEDOM.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

FLAGSTAFF (Ariz.) Jan. 1.—The Hopi (or Moqui) Indians again have declared their dislike for the white man's religion, thus demonstrating a hard-and-fast conservatism that has endured since the white man came.

They fought against the coming of Spanish friars from the Rio Grande and expelled Padre Garces on July 4, 1776, a day otherwise noted in American annals.

Their last manifestation of this sort has been directed against the Mennonite missionary, one Fry, who has been rewarded for his efforts in their behalf by being lassoed and dragged in the mud, behind horses down a village street. Then their victim was released and ordered to leave the Indian country. The demand was not obeyed, possibly because the roads to the Santa Fe railroad at the time were impassable after storms.

ASK FOR IMMUNITY.

The Indians, mainly young bucks, appeared fully aware of the seriousness of their offending, for they rode away in a body to the house of the agent, where they called for the expulsion of missionaries from the reservation, on the ground that religious freedom is guaranteed them by the Federal government.

The Hopi (whose name signifies "peaceful people") usually are considered the gentlest Indians of the Southwest. Their last outbreak, a dozen years ago, was when, after hundreds of their people had died of smallpox, they defied the agent when he tried to vaccinate the survivors. There had to be resort to arms, a squadron of negro cavalry sent in to enforce the decree, and to clean up the villages, where sanitation had been sadly neglected.

CORDWOOD PROFITEERS INFEST ARIZONA TOWN.

STOVEWOOD COSTS MORE IN JEROME THAN PINE LUMBER BY THE FOOT.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

JEROME (Ariz.) Dec. 31.—Investigation is being made into the cordwood profiteering that has been known in Jerome since the advent of cold weather.

One tale was of the purchase of eight sticks of firewood for $5. Dealers, for short-length stovewood, have been charging at the rate of $42 a cord. The supply has been of the most transient sort, and every load has been snapped up by the chilled population at whatever price. In several cases it was found that it would have been cheaper to have bought pine lumber at the going price of $70 a 1000 feet.

The snowfall caused the taking of keen interest in all the unoccupied frame houses of the camp. In one case only a vacant lot was discovered by a citizen who had believed himself possessed of a barn, in which there had been lumber valued at $1800. Some of the lumber was discovered built into Mexican homes near by, and it is assumed that the remainder went to keep that section of the town warm.

The explanation made by several of the individuals arrested was that the barn was in the pathway of destruction from the United Verde steam shovels and that they considered they were doing the owner a service in clearing the property of the obstruction.

MERCHANT VIGILANTES OPEN WAR ON THIEVES.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 1.—Rendered desperate by constantly recurring robberies, merchants and residents of the northwest side of the city have formed a vigilante association and armed themselves with shotguns, loaded with large buckshot. Every store and residence has been provided with pushbutton alarms, buttons in the floor and walls where they can be touched with foot or hand, and when one of these is sounded, it calls into action every member of the association.

Robers who clean up a store or dwelling and start gaily away in a stolen car will probably run into a rain of buckshot at the first corner and the rain will grow heavier as they proceed.

At the corner stores the proprietors have provided riot guns and sirens that will be set shrieking when the alarm is set off.

The Montana company had a capital and surplus of $500,000 and will continue in existence pending disposition by the stockholders of the assets that have accrued.

CROOKEDEST RAILROAD SOON TO BE SCRAPPED.

ON UNITED VERDE ENGINEER "COULD BORROW TOBACCO FROM CABOOSE."

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

JEROME (Ariz.) Dec. 31.—"The crookedest railroad in the world" is about to be scrapped. Application has been made to the State Corporation Commission for discontinuance of service on the United Verde & Pacific Railroad, a twenty-six-mile narrow-gauge, operated since November, 1894, between Jerome and Jerome Junction, at the latter point connecting with the main line of the Santa Fe, Prescott & Phoenix system. The stock of the road is understood to have been held solely by former Senator W. A. Clark, who is said to have received large returns on his investment during the early days of the road's operation. These returns, however, mainly came through the operation of the United Verde copper mine, in which Clark was and is principal stockholder.

This line is the one renowned in western story on which the engineer could borrow a chew of tobacco from the conductor in the caboose at 4 dozen curves on the way through the Black Hills. There were many forty-five degree curves, but these later were straightened a bit. Cars occasionally rode over the rails and deposited themselves in the canyon below, where a great boiler lay for many months before means could be evolved for rolling it back up the hillside. At one time shear-geared locomotives were tried in an effort to find something that would conquer the curves and grades.

The present terminus of the line in Jerome is within the area of the mine's steam-shovel demolition. More important is consideration of the fact that the road now has nothing much more than Prescott passenger traffic, for freight hereafter will be brought in by a broad-gauge extension of the Santa Fe's Verde Valley road, saving the expensive transfer to the smaller gauge cars at the junction point.

A very large part of the original cost will be returned by the salvage, at the present cost of steel.

SHIPPING BOARD AUDIT UNCOVERS $100,000,000.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—It was disclosed here today that more than $100,000,000 in outstanding amounts due to the U. S. Shipping Board from operators of the board's ships has recently been collected as a result of an audit of the operators' books, some of which had never before been subjected to an accounting by the Shipping Board.

The big sum has been collected in cash, it is announced, by Col E. H. Abadie, who conducted the audits under direction of Chairman John Barton Payne.

Col. Abadie declined today to set the exact amount collected, saying that announcement would have to be made by Chairman Payne, but he did state that it would reach over the hundred million mark.

Shipping Board officials say there has been no willful intention of the operators to hold out money from the board, but that the fault has been with the board because of the shortage of help, especially in auditors. It was asserted that there never has been a real attempt to get the money in.

WERE SECRET VOYAGES.

During the war it was almost impossible to keep a check on the ship operators, because their voyages were intentionally sequestered, and it is understood that even officials of the board could not obtain information on the sailing of ships. This precaution was taken so as to preclude any possibility of information falling into the enemy's hands.

The practice of the board has been to place the ships in the hands of operators as the agents of the board, the board standing all losses and benefiting by all profits. A working sum, however, was allowed the operators, and in some instances this was said to be much larger than necessary.

Chairman Payne is expected to make a full statement of the audit when he returns from a holiday outing in North Carolina tomorrow.

DEMANDS AMERICANISM BE TAUGHT IN SCHOOL.

IMPERIAL COUNTY LEGION WOULD MAKE IT A COMPULSORY COURSE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 1.—The interpost council of the American Legion of Imperial county, in a letter to Will C. Wood, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, has recommended that 100 per cent. Americanism be taught to all pupils in the public schools for forty-five minutes each week, that no pupil be allowed to leave the sixth grade until he or she is able to recite the national anthem from memory, and that salutes to the flag be taught to pupils just as they are in the military service.

Supt. Wood will reply to the effect that splendid service to Americanism would be rendered by the council if they would insist that all children be required to attend school in Imperial county, he said. At the present time there are hundreds of children of school age not receiving an education.

Georgiana Carden, attendance agent, has just returned from Imperial Valley and reports that in one school, twelve children were compelled to sit on the floor, as all other space was utilized.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 1.—A report from headquarters of the American Legion here yesterday showed that at the close of the year 6666 charters of the organization had been issued. It was announced 360 applications for charters are pending. Thirty-six charters have been granted to posts in Illinois, in the past ten days, it was stated. Other States with good showings in that period included California with ten.

MILK INSPECTOR TO ACCEPT OFFER HERE.

PORTLAND OFFICIAL TELLS OF OFFER TO TAKE CHARGE OF CITY DEPARTMENT.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Jan. 1.—Dr. D. W. Mack, chief milk and dairy inspector of Portland, announced today that he will probably accept an offer from the city of Los Angeles to occupy a similar position there, at a better salary than is being paid by Portland.

Dr. Mack entered the city service May 1, 1909, and was made chief dairy and milk inspector in 1913. It is mainly through his efforts during the past eleven years that Portland has obtained the purest milk supply of any city in the United States, a fact attested by the winning of first award medals at national dairy shows, as well as milk contests conducted in the West.

Dr. Mack was one of the authors of the Portland meat inspection ordinance and it was because of a long and earnest fight conducted before the City Council by him that the meat inspection system was adopted. Should Dr. Mack accept the offer from the southern city, he has been told that it is probable that the milk and meat departments of Los Angeles will be combined with the position of chief of the consolidated bureaus given to him.

City Health Officer Parrish said tonight that he would regret losing the services of Dr. Mack and announced that he would take immediate steps to have the City Council meet the salary offer made by officials of Los Angeles in the hope of inducing him to stay.

SAYS RAILROADS MUST SPEND $3,000,000,000.

RAILROAD HEAD DECLARES NATION SHOULD HAVE ADEQUATE FACILITIES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. PAUL, Jan. 1.—Three billion dollars must be spent by the railroads of the United States "within the next few years" to provide first-class passenger and freight facilities, was a declaration made today by Howard Elliott, president of the Northern Pacific Railroad, who came from New York for conference with railroad officials.

"Difficult and serious as is the plight of the railroads and of the owners of $20,000,000,000 of railroad property, it is not more serious than the condition facing the country," Mr. Elliott said.

"Transportation facilities must be made available not only for the present volume of business, but for the increases that a progressive nation like the United States needs each year.

"Since the government took control only 100,000 new freight cars have been bought, so that at the end of 1919 there probably are not more than 3,400,000 freight cars in the country—slightly more than in 1915. It is not too much to say that probably $3,000,000,000 should be spent for cars, engines and shop facilities by American railroads within the next few years, if the country's transportation needs are to be met."

Mr. Elliott left for Chicago tonight. He did not make any announcement regarding reports circulated in railroad quarters here that the leading roads of the country were planning to make important statements regarding broadened passenger services when private ownership is restored. There have been reports that the schedules to the Pacific Coast, via various routes, are to be shortened and that trains de luxe and extra-fare trains will be put into service.

CARELESSNESS IS UNIVERSAL.

Redlands Reporter Proves by Janitors.

Caretakers Find Many Articles of Value.

Discoveries Range from Pistols to Handkerchiefs.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Jan. 1.—A symposium of statements from the janitors of churches and public buildings in Redlands developed some startling facts as to carelessness of American people. The statements were answers to questions as to articles they had found in the buildings or in the seats following a big meeting.

The most valuable article found was a fur collar worth several thousand dollars.

The most noticeable article found was a package in which there was some well-aged limburger cheese.

The oddest thing the janitor of a big church ever found in the seats following a service was a big revolver.

The thing that was never found was the mate to a glove, more than one glove is never lost, according to the janitors.

The janitor of the church said, "I find many hankerchiefs of course, and other articles of women's apparel. Years ago I found in one of the seats a well-filled flask. I also found a man who had gone to service well heeled for he left his calling card in the shape of a business looking revolver in the seat. I never found him and made no effort to do so. A large package found at the time of the flurry over bombs being sent through the mails aroused my suspicions, but it proved to be only a cabbage and some liver. Once I found a full can of tobacco, in the seat, and that also came in handy."

The janitor of one of the public buildings made complaint as follows: "For years I have been living in hopes that some day I would find two gloves. I have a box filled with gloves, but no two of them are mates. I have given up hope for I see that women never lose more than one glove. That box has some exquisite hankerchiefs in it and some day I may decide to have an auction sale."

The theater janitors said that they very seldom find anything of value in the seats. "Women are more careful in the theaters than they are in church, why we do not know. Once in a great while we find a purse, but if there is any sum of money in it the owner is sure to turn up before we get a chance to spend it. I once found a baby carriage in the lobby and I was overjoyed that the mother had not forgotten her baby. I am a bachelor and that would have been embarrassing."

The janitor of another big auditorium said, "I noticed at a meeting one day that a woman sat all alone in one part of the room. No one was near her. When the crowd left and I was turning up the seats I found the reason. The woman had left a package with some limburger cheese in it. I do not believe that she forgot it."

GRIEF CAUSES DEATH.

Aged Rancher Follows Brother to The Grave.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TULARE, Jan. 1.—Grief over the death of his brother was the principal cause of the death of Samuel Blake, who passed away in a hospital late last night, according to his physicians. He was 70 years of age.

For more than fifty years he and his brother John had lived alone on their ranch in the Woodville district east of here, after having driven across the plains from their home in Missouri. He was taken ill immediately after the death of his brother. He is survived only by his two nieces, Mrs. G. W. Bauman and Mrs. J. W. Strugeon, both of this place.

SANTA BARBARA HAS BIG WATER SUPPLY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA BARBARA, Jan. 1.—A $2,000,000 water system, completed, is this city's New Year's gift. Gibraltar dam, a concrete structure 175 feet in height has just been completed, and with the next storm will begin impounding a lake four miles long, that will give Santa Barbara a daily water supply of 4,000,000 gallons. The water will be carried through a tunnel which pierces the Santa Ynez Mountain range, and will supply this city and Montecito. It is estimated that the impounded waters will be sufficient to care for a city of 40,000 population through two seasons of drought, and therefore places Santa Barbara beyond all danger of water famine.

TULARE COUNTY TO IMPROVE ROADWAYS.

COMPLETE SURVEYS TO MAKE HIGHWAY SYSTEM COMPLETE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, Jan. 1.—Surveys are being completed and plans and specifications will be adopted as rapidly as possible for the construction of roads supplemental to the recently-completed State and county highway systems. The funds for these connecting links will be raised by a special tax levy of $1.50 per $100 valuation.

Specifications which are being prepared by County Surveyor Moyre approximate those for the State highways, except that the subgrade is somewhat deeper, to allow for macadamizing of the shoulders after the cement paving is completed.

Bids are to be called at the January meeting of the Board of Supervisors for the Woodville-Poplar road, the first to be ordered built from the proceeds of the new tax.

SUBMIT PLANS FOR NEW PUBLIC MUSEUM.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, Jan. 1.—Thomas Jacob, member of the Tulare County Forestry Board, has submitted to the Board of Supervisors a plan for establishment of a museum in Mooney Park, the county playground, near here.

The plan involves the reforestation of about four acres to the south of the present park and the erection of the building south from the recently-completed pavilion in the park grounds. Mr. Jacobs estimates the work can be done for about $20,000.

"ACCIDENTAL DEATH."

Jury Fails to Find Details of School-Teacher's Death.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

INDIO, Jan. 1.—The Coroner's jury, which sat yesterday to inquire into the death of Miss Adell Ward, who died in the conflagration which destroyed her home Monday morning, brought in a verdict of accidental death. Miss Ward came here last September to take the principalship of the Indio grammar school, and only a few days ago purchased the bungalow, in which she lost her life. How the fire started is not known, as Miss Ward lived alone, but the general belief is that it was probably caused by the explosion of an oil stove. Miss Ward's only relative, as far as can be learned, is a brother living in South Dakota, who has been notified of the occurrence.

REDLANDS CHURCHES IN WEEK OF PRAYER.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Jan. 1.—The churches of this city have joined in a week of prayer, which will begin on Sunday and in which practically all the churches will have a part. The service Monday will be at the Christian Church and Rev. W. C. Waggener will be in charge. Tuesday the service will be at the First Methodist Church, with Dr. A. R. Schultz as the leader. The Wednesday service will be at the First Presbyterian Church, where Dr. H. C. Ide will lead. On Thursday Rev. C. F. Seitter will be the leader in a service at the Baptist Church. The last service will be on Friday, with Rev. S. F. Langford leading. It will be in the Congregational Church.

NEW NATIONAL BANK.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

COACHELLA, Jan. 1.—This city is to have a new bank, to be known as the Coachella National Bank. The principal interest in the new venture will be owned by J. C. Odell, a capitalist, who is about to begin work on a cotton gin in the Perris Valley. Sufficient Coachella Valley citizens have subscribed for stock, so that five of them will be on the board of directors. The capitalization will be $25,000.

NEW SCHOOL SITE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENTURA, Jan. 1.—Options have been secured on the block lying just west of the old Courthouse and a proposition is to be submitted to the people for a bond issue for the purchase and erection of a new ward school there. There is little doubt that the issue will carry as the schools are overcrowded and the general sentiment appears to be in favor of a new ward school.

RANCHER INJURED.

Pulls Beneath Heavy Car— May Not Recover.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 1.—Ex-Mayor Anton Konda, wealthy orange grower, is a patient in a local hospital, where he is suffering from grave injuries received in an automobile accident on the county highway north of here.

Driving home in a heavy fog from his orange grove in the Zante district north of here, he missed the paved roads and overturned his heavy car into a dry irrigation ditch, being pinned beneath the tonneau of the machine. He suffered injuries to his spine, with possible internal complications.

STARTS BIG LAWSUIT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENTURA, Jan. 1.—Miles Balcolm has instituted suit in the Superior Court here against the F. A. Shipley Company for the recovery of 61,285 pounds of lima beans and 1445 pounds of splits. Their value is set at $6981.24. Balcolm wants either the beans or the money. The action is said to arise out of a dispute as to whether or not the beans were delivered to the warehouse.

MRS. R. HARRIS GAINED 30 LBS.
We So Rundown She Almost Gave Up.
Is Well and Strong Since Taking Tanlac.
"Will Praise It Long As I Live," She Says.
"I have not only gained thirty pounds in weight, but I am enjoying so much better health than I have in years. I feel just like a new person," said Mrs. Rosa E. Harris, 444 Twenty-fifth avenue, North Seattle, Wash., recently. Continuing, she said:
"For three years I suffered so much from stomach trouble and had become so badly run down, that I had given up hope of ever getting any better. My appetite was extremely poor, and I had to force down every mouthful I ate, and most of the time I could not even retain it. I would become so badly nauseated. The least little thing I ate would sour, gas would form and press against my lungs so badly it was all I could do to get my breath and I would have such intense smarting pains in my stomach they would nearly kill me. I was also badly constipated and had to take some sort of laxative most every day. My kidneys bothered me a good deal and I suffered with pains across the small of my back, and, at last, had pains all through my body nearly all the time. My head ached so bad nearly all the time, I thought it would burst wide open and at times I would become so dizzy I would have to grab hold of something to keep from falling, and I would feel just like I was going to faint and black spots would dance before my eyes. I was so nervous the least little thing would upset me and at night I was so restless I could get but little sleep as I would roll and toss from one side of the bed to the other all night long, and in the morning I would feel so tired and exhausted it was all I could do to get out of bed. I lost wel bt so much I soon became so weak I could not do my housework, it being all I could do to get about at all.
"I had been so much about the good Tanlac was doing others, and, as many of my friends had praised it so highly, I decided to try it. Well, as I had given up all hope of ever finding anything that would help me, you can imagine my surprise when I began to get better as soon as I had taken only a few doses of Tanlac. My appetite improved and it was soon better than it had ever been, and nothing I ate gave me a particle of trouble afterward. I continued taking it until I was rid of all my troubles. I am never bothered with pains in my stomach or back, and in fact, never have a pain of any kind. I never have the headache or those dizzy spells any more, and have regained my strength until I can do all my own work with ease. I can truthfully say I believe Tanlac saved my life and I expect to praise it as long as I live."
Tanlac is sold in Los Angeles, Pasadena and San Diego by the Owl Drug Co.—[Advertisement.

Cincinnati man discovers drug that loosens corns so they left out.
Local druggists are having a tremendous call for freezone, the drug which is said to shrivel a corn, root and all, without any pain.
A few drops applied directly upon a tender, aching corn relieves the soreness at once, and shortly the entire corn, root and all, lifts right out with the fingers.
This new drug is being dispensed at small cost in quarter-ounce bottles, which is sufficient to take off every hard or soft corn from one's feet. It is a sticky substance which dries at once and does not inflame or even irritate the surrounding tissue or skin. There is no excuse for anyone inviting death by infection or lockjaw from cutting their corns now.—[Advertisement.

PARLIAMENT IN RUTHLESS RULE.

British Government Majority Never so Powerful.

Lloyd George Wields Immense Power as War Result.

Present Session Makes Record for Applying Gag.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Jan. 1.—The first session of the third Parliament of King George V, has made several records. It has made a record for one of the longest sessions, beginning on February 11, and continuing right up to Christmas. The most ruthless government majority in the history of Westminster has made a record for the most persistent application of the gag in the history of British legislation.

The election which returned the present government to power was the victory election. All sorts and conditions of men were swept into Parliament on the wave of popular excitement, which succeeded the victorious ending of the war. All that was necessary to secure the election of a candidate was the indorsement of Lloyd George and Bonar Law, or the "coupon," as it came to be known in British politics. All that was necessary to secure the coupon was the assurance that the candidate when elected would become a docile voting machine, who would march through the division lobbies at the crack of the party whip.

OVERWHELMING MAJORITY.

The result was a surprise even to Lloyd George himself. He expected a large majority, but it is doubtful if he expected anything like the overwhelming majority he received. He started the session with 525 members of his coalition party against 108 opposition members made up of free liberals, labor men and independents. In addition to these, there were seventy-three Sinn Fein members who refused to attend Parliament.

In such conditions it is natural to expect that the business of the mother of parliaments would be rather one-sided, but such one sidedness as has been displayed in this Parliament was beyond all expectations.

In the days of Czar Reed, Americans thought that they could teach the effete parliaments of Europe something about parliamentary government. Speaker Lowther, although not a party official, as is the Speaker of the U. S. House of Representatives, could give Speaker Reed points and then have a lot to spare.

SCRAPS OLD RULES.

There are several recognized methods by which a minority in the House of Commons can secure at least a hearing for its views. All these methods were ruthlessly scrapped by Lloyd George's ruthless majority. One, and the most usual and most effective, is the method of questioning various ministers.

Any member of the House has the right to question a Minister and to expect a reasonable answer. In the old days all sorts of information about Ireland, about Egypt, about Persia, and other parts of the world where Great Britain's policy is open to criticism could have been put on the question paper and ministers would have at least made a pretense of reasonable answer. Further information could have been extracted by the method of supplementary questions, and a debate might have been raised.

In this Parliament, in nine cases out of ten, when inconvenient questions were asked, the Minister blandly refused to answer on the ground that it would be inadvisable in present conditions to disclose the information required, or referred the questioner to an answer to a similar question a few months back to the same effect. Any protest was promptly ruled out of order by the Speaker, confident that he would be supported by an overwhelming majority of the House.

OPPOSITION GAGGED.

Another method of raising a debate on any question was to move the adjournment of the House. To do so requires the support of at least forty members, and, although the opposition nominally mustered 108 votes, it was seldom possible to get forty of them to support such a motion. The result of it all was that the opposition was effectively gagged.

Still another method was found by the government for keeping the House in order. From time to time even the coupon members revolted against some of the government measures and on one or two occasions there was an adverse vote. The next day Lloyd George called the rebellious members together and explained to them that they might come to him to dissolve Parliament, but that if they did, few of them would find seats in the next Parliament.

The British House of Commons, unlike the American House of Representatives, is not elected for a fixed term. It is elected for a maximum term of five years, but it seldom lasts that long. In theory the King, in practice the Prime Minister may dissolve Parliament and call for a new election at any time that he pleases and it is customary in England that when the government of the day is defeated in Parliament on any first-class measure it shall dissolve and take the vote of the country.

CANADIANS USE DEPOT FOR RAILROAD DANCE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MONTREAL, Jan. 1.—When the last train moved out of the Canadian Pacific Windsor-street station last night at 10:30 the floor of the great concourse was swept clean and waxed for the accommodation of 10,000 employees of the Canadian Pacific who made merry to the tunes of the waltz and a programme that for the last two weeks had been in preparation.

This is the only railroad station in the world that has been used as a ballroom. The large dining-room lunch counters and reception halls had been filled to receive and serve the guests of the evening, the employees.

ARIZONA WANTS MEXICAN LABOR

Needs Thousands of Aliens to Pick Cotton Crop.

Fears Peace will Compel Them to Leave State.

Temporary Importation Used as a War Measure.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Jan. 1.—Congress is to be asked to amend the immigration laws, to the end there may be temporary importation of Mexican pickers for the benefit of the southern and southwestern cotton interests. The allowance of permission to cross now given immigrants without means is a purely war measure, yet has been the salvation of the local cotton industry. With the declaration of peace will come annulment of the privilege, and trouble, consequently, looms for the next season's crop.

At least 15,000 aliens now are in this valley, but it will not be possible to hold all of them for the coming season.

It is probable that at least 120,000 acres will be in cotton around Phoenix in 1920 and the picking problem will be a serious one if Mexico may not be drawn upon. Strong opposition is expected from labor union sources in the event of an attempt to change the alien labor laws.

HIGH WATER BRINGS FUEL.

The rise of water level in the Roosevelt Reservoir has brought a mine of wealth to owners of lake launches in the floating of great drifts of wood that had been left high and dry by the decline of the waters. Now these drifts are being rafted down to Roosevelt and there piled for sale in an active and very lucrative market. There also has come down much drift from the streams at flood above, but the wood is hardly as dry or available as that of the old deposits. Farmers and ranchmen are utilizing their opportunity to secure fencing material and fuel.

High water time on all the streams of Northern and Central Arizona brought a degree of profit to many in the driftwood salvaged. This especially was true at Snowflake, where, without coal and with the roads in very poor shape for hauling, the stress of very cold weather was moderated by fuel that was flashed from the near-by streams.

SUPREME COURT MOVES

The Arizona Supreme Court is moving from the main floor of the south wing of the Capitol to its new quarters in the new wing on the floor above. The present quarters, embracing an office cut from the corridor, are badly needed by the Secretary of State, from whom they were taken. The new courtroom takes in the height of two stories, yet is not in the least imposing, and from the Justices comes criticism of the decoration scheme.

The State library occupies the opposite side of the wing, but with very inadequate quarters, according to Librarian Cronin. The clerk's office and several robing-rooms take the rest of the floor space provided.

NEW WATER SUPPLY.

There is belief that the new $1,400,000 city water supply system from the Verde will result in lower service charges to the householders. At present the water is pumped from deep wells and raised to the top of a 100-foot standpipe. Fuel costs latterly have been high and the plant is not earning what it did several years ago, despite a tremendous increase in the number of connections.

The new plant will be almost entirely of gravity flow, giving added pressure and a triple supply at very much lower operating costs. In addition, the water secured will be free from alkaline salts and, therefore, much better suited to manufacturing uses.

CLAIMS JAPAN SHOULD COLONIZE IN SIBERIA.

SPEAKER SAYS NIPPONESE HAVE JUSTIFIED THE ANNEXATION OF KOREA.

TOKIO, Dec. 29.—(Delayed.) Charles M. Sherrell, formerly Adjutant-General of the State of New York, who spoke before the American-Japanese Society here on November 30 on a "ladies' agreement" regarding the so-called picture brides, today addressed the Yale Club in this city on points of friction between the United States and Japan.

He declared that Japan had justified the annexation of Korea, her Shantung claims, and possible permanence of power in Siberia, where, if she substituted government for anarchy in Eastern Siberia, next to her own possessions, she would not meet with any serious opposition from abroad.

He declared that Japan had the right to expand, but warned against her expansion in the direction of America. Rather, he asserted, she would take advantage of the opportunity to readjust her relations with the United States.

He suggested that Japan transfer the Caroline and the Marshall Islands to America, to Great Britain or international control and thus remove a possible cause of suspicion of Japanese designs on the Philippines; that she abolish duel citizenship, and the Japanese school system in Hawaii, and remove all suspicion of Japanizing attempts.

"Would you not rather have Eastern Siberia plus American friendship, plus business co-operation and limitless American capital?" he asked.

ONE-HALF OF LILLE FACTORIES WORKING.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LILLE, Jan. 1.—Production has been resumed in about one-half the factories of northern France, where battles raged for four years. About 13 per cent. have been at work only a month. Figures examined today by the correspondent of the Associated Press, who is visiting the war zone under a special dispensation of the government, showed that in this region 30,000 plants employing 800,000 workers were razed by gunfire, looted or badly disorganized.

Officials consider the work done during the last year as very creditable.

ARIZONA NOTES.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GLOBE, Jan. 1.—The Mexican consulate for Globe and Miami has been closed and Consul Gustavo Hernandez has left for New York, where he will be attached to the staff of the Consul-General at that point. All international affairs affecting the Mexican people of this district hereafter will be handled through the Tucson consulate.

NOGALES, Jan. 1.—Beginning January 15, tremendous shipments of ripe tomatoes will start through this port from the Mexican State of Sinaloa mainly to far eastern points. The season's shipment is expected to approximate 1500 carloads.

CHANDLER, Jan. 1.—Ross McNeil Winters, for a month acting postmaster of Chandler and prospective postmaster through examination, is dead of heart lesion, death being almost immediate after return home from the office.

FLAGSTAFF, Jan. 1.—Flagstaff has lost an unvalued resident in the warning out of one Antonio Tallin, who had been arrested as he was organizing Indian sewer ditch diggers to strike for pay of $4 a day. He was advised that if he failed to leave there would be prosecution in the Federal court on a charge that he was living in violation of the Edmunds act, with a woman not his wife. He drifted at once.

DOUGLAS, Jan. 1.—The county seat of the ninth Sonora judicial district is to be returned soon from Cumpas to Moctezuma, from which it was taken after the fall of the Diaz regime. The Cumpas equipment is reported most meager and the jail unsafe, while at Moctezuma are ample buildings, provided many years ago.

PHOENIX, Jan. 1.—Though 21,000 brands were on the books of the Live-stock Sanitary Board of Arizona, only about 5000 have legally been registered under the late legislative act, and only these are to be recognized.

GLENDALE, Jan. 1.—The whole of the Glendale business section is to be paved and bids are to be called for soon for pavement for the frontage of seven city blocks, the cost to be charged against an assessment district. There is to be provided also, in the City Park, a new municipal building that is also to house the Chamber of Commerce.

The suburban town of Peoria has installed a municipal lighting system, with streets and public buildings given the first of the illumination. The cost of the improvement is to be borne through the sale of property formerly used for school purposes.

HOLBROOK, Jan. 1.—The taxpayers are to be asked to pass upon a proposed $150,000 bond issue, the proceeds to be devoted to provision of water, lighting and sewage systems for the municipality. It has been figured that the improvement would raise the present 27-cent tax rate to 54 cents, but that the increase would be more than compensated for by the decreased cost of light and water and the greater convenience. A similar centralized plant costing $150,000 has just been installed at Fort Apache, under the supervision of Engineer A. M. Nicholson, who has submitted figures for the local improvement.

MAYER, Jan. 1.—An association of local residents has provided $15,000 for the erection and furnishing of a modern hospital building, to be under charge of Dr. James B. Van Horn, late surgeon at the Whipple Barracks Military Hospital.

Divorced, Kills Herself at Reno.

RENO, Jan. 1.—Mrs. Winifred Marie Whitner, divorced wife of William C. Whitner, a New York business man, was found dead in her apartments here yesterday. The police believe she was despondent over financial and domestic troubles and ended her life. A note addressed to her physician stating she was "tired of it all" was found in her desk and two empty bottles said to have contained poison were found in the room. The police say she was 23 years old. Her father, W. C. Carliss, at Greenfield, Mass., has been notified.

MAN ROBBED BY BRIDE STARTS DIVORCE SUIT.

PHOENIX CITIZEN IN REMARKABLE TANGLE—OTHER DIVORCES SOUGHT.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Jan. 1.—Edmond Ettlin, in a suit for divorce filed locally gives in his complaint details of a very short and yet remarkably eventful marital experience.

In Phoenix, August 9 of last year, occurred the wedding of Ettlin and Frances Berline. The honeymoon trip was to Los Angeles, where adjoining rooms were occupied in a hotel. The next morning the bride was missing, as well as $1250 in cash that had been in Ettlin's pockets. He spent a fortnight searching the city, but could find no trace of the woman or of his money. He now alleges that the marriage merely was a ruse by which the money better could be stolen.

There has been resort to the Phoenix courts for annulment of a child marriage that occurred in India years ago. Moola Singh, Hindoo, in his complaint in a divorce action, details that he was married, at the age of 11, in Pondoris, India, to a child-wife who thereafter, according to custom, went back to her own people for a term of years. After a married experience of six months the wife refused to accompany Moola to America, and he has heard nothing of her for years past, and has no idea where she might be found.

Divorce has been asked by George H. Richardson of Phoenix from Birdie Richardson, on the ground of cruel and outrageous treatment. The couple were married in Santa Ana, Cal., in January, 1913.

On the ground of non-support, Florence Carlson has asked separation from E. R. Carlson, now understood to be a resident of Los Angeles.

BOMB AT PUMPING STATION EXPLODES.

OAKLAND, Jan. 1.—A bomb placed on the porch of the East Bay Water Company's pumping station exploded last night when it was picked up by James Hamilton, an employee of the company.

The station is in an exclusive residence district. The noise of the explosion was heard for several blocks, but New Year's revelers in the neighborhood took it to be a part of the night's celebration.

Hamilton was badly burned about the hands, face and eyes.

Investigation has developed no explanation of the presence of the bomb, and the police are uncertain whether it was the result of a boyish prank or of someone who wished to damage the company's property.

NITTI REVOLTS FROM ITALIAN DIPLOMACY.

STARTLES SENATE WITH NEW POLICY OF STRAIGHTFORWARD DEMANDS.

ROME, Dec. 30.—(Delayed.) Nitti gave further notice yesterday in a debate in the Senate, of his purpose to cut loose from the old Italian diplomacy, and go to Paris prepared to tell the Allies exactly what Italy can and cannot do.

Heretofore the game has been to claim everything in the hope of getting a part. For example, the Italian method was to demand everything on the Adriatic, expecting really to get much less. Nitti is clearing the way to put his cards face up on the table.

He notified the Senate yesterday that he was not going to build an Italian policy on a rotten foundation of lies. His branding as false the statement that the Fiume demand had been struck out of the pact of London because of Russian opposition puts an end to the fable that has passed current in Italy for months.

All Americans with whom I have talked enthusiastically approve Nitti's blunt honesty and believe it will make friends for Italy in the United States.

FRIDAY MORNING.

JUDGE BLOCKS CABRERA GAME.

Kansas City Jurist Refuses to be Bail Catspaw.

Inside History of Jenkins Release Leaks Out.

Mexico Uses Trick to Defeat American Intervention.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—Judge Albert J. Haff of Kansas City, it was reported here today, was the man American appointed by Luis Cabrera, Mexican Minister of Finance, to furnish bail for William S. Jenkins, American consular agent held in jail by Mexican authorities at Puebla.

American visitors, who have just returned from Mexico, declare that the situation arising from the imprisonment of Jenkins became so serious that Cabrera, realizing that he had reached a point of possible break in the friendly relations between Mexico and the United States, sought means to bring about a close of the crisis without strict compliance with the demands of the American government.

It is reported that he felt this could be accomplished by getting an American citizen to produce bail for Jenkins and by making it appear that the United States government had ordered the giving of bail.

Judge Haff was in Mexico City at the time, according to the reports, and it is said, that he was appointed by Cabrera, first through an emissary and then by Cabrera personally. Judge Haff is said to have realized the significance that would be attached to his giving the bail. Accordingly, it is asserted, he told Cabrera that he did not care to be implicated in the matter, and refused to act in accordance with his request. The Finance Minister is reported then to have approached several Americans of means in the capital with similar results.

Finally, it is stated, Cabrera made the desired arrangements with Walter Hansen who, after a lengthy conference, agreed to furnish the bail and did so.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—What American corporations can do through the export finance bill which has just become a law, in building up trade for this country abroad, and at the same time helping foreign nations impoverished by the war, to get on their feet again industrially and commercially, was pointed out today by Senator Edge of New Jersey, author of the bill. He asserted that under this act it would be possible for a group of business interests in this country to finance Europe for more than a billion dollars without to strain on their resources and with profit to themselves.

WILL OPEN MARKETS.

The financing of impoverished foreign purchasers of American goods, he declared, will open the world markets which the United States must have to maintain its high pressure production. On the production of finished goods, he said, depends the demand for raw materials, while even the land and water transportation system of the country will be directly affected.

"Europe must have credit," said Senator Edge, "and the American vendor must have cash to keep American industry working; and the export finance act is designed to provide this credit and transmute it into real money.

"During the war, as is well known, the United States government extended to Europe approximately nine or ten billion dollars, and today we cannot get even the interest on it. Some persons want us to waive this interest. I am not one of that class; but I do believe we should help Europe and not sidestep our responsibilities in peace any more than we did in time of war; and especially as now we can meet them without hardship, but rather with real profit to our own people.

TOO MUCH EASY MONEY.

"To keep lending American money is poor policy. Such easy money melts and does no good to the lender or the recipient, and also it is axiomatic that 'the best way to lose a friend is to lend him money.' Instead of the worse than eleemosynary prodecure of lending Europe more money, let American business men and financiers help the foreigners reconstruct their devastated factories and reclaim their devastated fields and mines by converting their credit into cash, then, in time they can pay the interest on their debt to us and gradually pay off the principal. Selfishly the new act is an 'America-first' measure; but also we must remember that the hope of the world turns with confidence to the constructive genius of the United States and we must not disappoint it."

CLAIM MIRACLE CURE BY DIVINE HEALING.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 1.—Two little colored girls in the house of St. Michael and all Angels 605 North 43rd street, are declared to be living examples of the potency of the gift of divine healing, practiced by James Moore Hickson of the Church of England.

The girls are Agnes Warren and Geneva Norman. Agnes, who is 9 years old, lives in Princeton, N. J. She has been a sufferer from infantile paralysis. The fingers of both hands were clenched tightly across her palms, so tightly that force was required to pull them out straight.

Geneva, 11 years old, had tubercular hip disease.

Last June Mr. Hickson laid his hands on Agnes and Geneva and prayed for their recovery. Having finished his prayers, he walked out of the little chapel. The children have not seen him since.

On the following morning there was a stir among the children. Agnes Warren came running into Sister Kathryn, crying, "See, sister, see; I can open my hands!"

And Agnes's hands were cured, or almost cured. The fingers of her right hand no longer closed like a vise over her palm. She could stretch them out and close them in a natural manner.

Scarcely had Agnes reported her good news when yells of delight came from the bathroom where Geneva had removed her brace, prior to stepping into the bath tub.

"Look, I can stretch out my leg and it doesn't hurt me. I'm cured; Oh, Sister, Mr. Hickson, has cured me."

A physician said that Geneva's leg was healed but it had not healed right, he said, so he broke the leg again and set it to his own satisfaction. And today Geneva is using her leg like any other child.

FRENCH CRACK A.E.F.'S SAFES.

Only Way to Open Strongboxes Sold by Americans.

Officers Forget to Turn Over the Combinations.

Convicts, Skilled in Such Things, Deftly Save Day.

PARIS, Jan. 1.—When the French government bought all the property of the American Expeditionary Force it got a number of safes installed in the paymaster's office in the Elysees Palace and in various other A.E.F. offices. But when the Americans turned over this property to the French they forgot to give the new owners the combinations of the strong boxes, in many cases. As a result, the French government found a lot of closed and locked safes on its hands and did not know how to open them.

There was long correspondence between the French and the American liquidation commission. The French wrote and asked the Americans to tell them the combinations to open the safes. The Americans investigated a while and found, in most cases, that the men and officers who knew the combinations had long since been sent back to the States and demobilized.

FEW REMEMBER CIPHERS.

Efforts were made to trace these men and in a few cases they were found in various parts of the United States, and occasionally one could remember the cipher to open the strong box which had been in his office.

But a number of big, valuable safes remained which the French could not open. They wanted to sell the big steel boxes, but could not do so without telling the customer how he could open them.

Finally, M. Vautet, in charge of the safes, thought of a way to get them open. He sent to the Fresnes penitentiary and borrowed two expert cracksmen, who were doing long stretches. He brought them to Paris where the safes were stored, and promised them 100 francs apiece for every safe they opened.

CRACKSMEN SUCCESSFUL.

The cracksmen refused to open the safes under supervision, but after the guards and M. Vautet and his staff had withdrawn to the opposite end of the room they went to work. In less than five minutes they swung open the big steel door of the largest safe, and in half an hour had opened five others.

Every time any one approached the convicts while they were opening the safes they stopped work and refused to proceed until the person had withdrawn.

The French authorities requested —since the censorship is abolished —that the local press publish nothing about the affair, as it fears that if it becomes known that all the safes had been cracked open by two convicts no one will want to buy one.

PORTLAND IRON MEN GO ON STRIKE TODAY.

OBJECT TO CUT IN WAGES AND "AMERICAN PLAN" OF SHOP OPERATION.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

PORTLAND, Jan. 1.—A strike of approximately 100 men employed at the Smith & Watson Iron Works here will be called tomorrow morning, it was announced today by Charles Kendrigan, secretary of the Portland Metal Trades' Council.

The strike action is the result, according to Kendrigan, of an announcement by the iron works management that wages would be cut 8 cents an hour, working hours increased from forty-four to forty-eight a week, and that the shop would be run on the "American plan."

The strike will be confined to the Smith & Watson plant, Kendrigan said today. He asserted that more than 100 men would be affected, but Alfred F. Smith, president of the firm, said only about forty men would be affected.

"If there had been a reduction in the cost of living within the past few weeks the union would be able to look upon a decrease in wages as reasonable," Mr. Kendrigan said today.

Mr. Smith declared that his firm could not compete with firms in other sections which were paying less wages. "If the plant is unable to obtain men on the terms announced, it will close," Mr. Smith said today. Smith is also president of the Columbia River Shipbuilding Corporation, and he declared today that the present wage scale was responsible for the closing of that plant.

RECEPTION FOR PERSHING.

LINCOLN (Neb.) Jan. 1.—The last of the semi-public functions for Gen. Pershing during his ten-day visit here was a New Year's reception this afternoon by the Woman's Relief Corps. Gen. Pershing thanked the women for two ambulances they sent to France.

Gen. Pershing was the guest of honor at an "old-fashioned Missouri" New Year's dinner given him and his staff by Gov. and Mrs. McKelvie at their home.

Found Dazed by Wood Alcohol.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 1.—John Burns, found dazed on the streets here during the New Year's Eve celebration, was declared by physicians to have been poisoned by drinking wood alcohol. Two bottles of the fluid were found in his pocket, it was reported.

GERMANY MAKES GLOOMY REPORT.

Says Industry is Worse as Winter Progresses.

Inadequate Railroad Service Paralyzes Trade.

Coal Shortage Ties up Manufactories Generally.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, Dec. 28. (Delayed.)—November reports to the Foreign Trade Office in Berlin indicate that the economic situation in Germany improved only slightly in a few places, and that generally it was worse on December 1 than it was thirty days earlier.

While, as previously, much of the bad condition is ascribed to the shortage of coal and raw material, the reports now place more emphasis on the inadequate railroad service on all parts of the country. There is some disagreement over the exact degree of benefit from the eleven-day shutdown of passenger service, but the general verdict is that it fell far below predictions and did not compensate for the sacrifice made.

FOOD SITUATION WORSE.

Food conditions, as a result of the early heavy snowfall, have grown considerably worse. Tons of potatoes, beets and similar vegetables, ungathered principally because of the shortened hours of the farm laborer, remained in the ground and the water resulting from the thaw rotted a large part of them.

Increased strictness in rationing is being demanded and both state and national food officials are coming to believe that new measures are unavoidable.

Extracts from the survey of the industrial and labor situation follow:

"The industries of Southern Germany, and, because of the Baltic blockade, those of East Prussia, suffer particularly under coal shortage. Many plants not within immediate reach of mines have been compelled to close.

THOUSANDS JOBLESS.

"The labor situation has grown worse. Reports from 115 cities, not including Berlin, Hamburg or Dresden, showed 183,004 jobless, most of these coming from the metal, leather and textile industries.

"Fifty-three out of 319 steel plants—one-sixth—are closed.

"Conditions in the machine and electro-technical industries have grown worse. Many plants have closed and others are about to. The situation in the vehicle factories is similar. Orders from abroad are increasing, but cannot be accepted and existing contracts with buyers in France, Switzerland and Norway have had to be canceled.

"The optical manufacturers are busy, but cannot promise deliveries except after long periods. Conditions in the chemical industry continue—because of the lack of coal, soda and other necessities—to grow worse. Here, also, only part of the foreign contracts offered can be accepted.

COAL SHORTAGE SERIOUS.

"The petroleum supply has benefited from the importation of 40,000 tons from America. Another 40,000 tons is expected. Twenty-two thousand tons of gasoline have come from America and Holland.

"There is no improvement in the glass and earthenware industries. Because of the coal shortage, the porcelain industry cannot reach the height of its peace-time production. Factories in Bavaria and Thuringia face shutdowns.

"The shortage of wood pulp for the paper mills is due to the fact that the river tugs are laid up because of lack of coal. The musical-instrument factories suffer from a lack of trained workers. The same is true of the furniture industry. The offer of raw material for the textiles has increased, but because of the rate of exchange large amounts cannot be bought.

"Wholesalers in several branches report that their present business does not amount to 10 per cent. of their pre-war business."

The headquarters are to be removed on Monday to the Coulter Building, 315 South Broadway, and in order to dispose of the crockery, tinware and other useful articles they are all to be placed on sale and everything realized from the sale will be used to swell the fund for returned British soldiers who are suffering from wounds or are disabled because of war service.

WERE PROFITEERING, SAYS HUERTA'S AIDE.

The order issued by Gov. Adolfo de la Huerta, of Sonora, requiring all Chinese residents of Cananea to leave that city by January 1, was issued at the earnest appeal of the miners and other residents of Cananea, who protested to the Governor that the Chinamen were profiteering. The order applies only to Chinese residents of Cananea and the rest of the State is declared open to them, according to Teodor Frezieres, personal representative of the Governor.

All of the Chinamen were given ample notice that they must leave Cananea, Mr. Frezieres stated. He stated the Governor's order was sent to the Chinese four months ago, and they were told to dispose of their stocks and to arrange to leave the city by January 1. The Governor gave the merchants this notice, he continued, so that their business would not be injured and they would lose nothing.

The order said, in part, according to Mr. Frezieres: "All of the republic of Mexico, with the exception of the city of Cananea, is open to the Chinese, where they may live and follow whatever occupation they desire in perfect safety."

Speaking of the reported outrages against the Chinamen, Mr. Frezieres declared that the matter was undoubtedly exaggerated. He stated there may have been a few cases where individual miners had grudges against Chinese, and small fights may have ensued, but he stated there was no general trouble.

Federal troops were ordered to Cananea to protect the Chinamen, he stated, and incidentally to see that the laws of the State were obeyed.

Gov. De la Huerta has also issued another order, temporarily prohibiting the marriage of Chinese and Mexicans, Mr. Frezieres stated yesterday. This order has been issued by the Governor to protect the health of the Mexican girls in Sonora.

PINE BEETLE MENACE.

KLAMATH FALLS (Or.), Jan. 1.—Lumbermen of this section are awakening to the fact that they have a serious problem on their hands in checking the ravages of the western pine beetle, which first became apparent in this county about three years ago and whose ravages have increased from year to year in proportion to its members and the spread of the colonies by migration until the pest covers a large infested area.

The New Year Need Is a Calendar —Let This Paper Give You One

It maintains in Washington an Information Bureau, the purpose of which is to supply certain personal needs of its readers—to co-ordinate them with their government. It gives them federal fuel books when coal is short, pamphlets on influenza when there is an epidemic, canning books in the fruit season—timely publications for every month in the year.

NOW IT OFFERS

A Free Calendar

The Navy Department made this calendar especially for our distribution. It is on stiff, white cardboard ready for hanging. The picture which it carries was drawn by J. C. Leyendecker, one of America's best-known artists, and is among his best. It is reproduced in four colors. The theme is patriotic and inspiring. The pads that show the passing of the days of 1920 are outstanding and effective. There could be no better calendar.

You have but to write to our information bureau at Washington, D. C., to get this art calendar. With it there will go two or three government publications of general interest that might be helpful. Fill out the coupon below and send it in as indicated. Get the habit of using our Washington Bureau. But get this calendar now for paper is short and the supply is limited. This calendar positively cannot be obtained from our Los Angeles office.

Frederic J. Haskin, Director,

Grip, Influenza

Hamlin's Wizard Oil a Reliable, Antiseptic Preventive

During influenza epidemics spray the nose and throat several times a day with one part Wizard Oil and two parts water, using an atomizer. If you haven't an atomizer, gargle the throat and snuff the mixture up the nose. This treatment sets up an antiseptic wall of defense against "Flu" germs.

Chest colds and sore throat lead to grip. Stop them at once with Wizard Oil before they can develop into dangerous influenza.

Get it from druggists for 30c. If not satisfied, return the bottle and get your money back.

Ever constipated or have sick headache? Just try Wizard Liver Whips, pleasant little pink pills, 30c at drug stores. Guaranteed.

BANDITS ADD TO RUSSIAN CHAOS.

Denikine's Armies Harassed by Mushroom Troops.

Machno, One of the Boldest Leaders, is Defeated.

Had 10,000 Men Who Pillaged Cities and Towns.

TAGANROD, Nov. 30 (by courier to Paris) Jan. 1.—One of the most serious difficulties met by Denikine's armies in South Russia is the various armed bands which spring up in the rear.

They rob individuals, villages, towns and even cities. They cut railroads, pillaging and destroying supplies. They are a continual menace to some lines of communication and at times the Denikine army has found its position between the Bolsheviats and the bandits almost as bad as being between the devil and the deep sea. The troops are pulled out of line to disperse raiders.

One of the boldest of these leaders, Machno, tried to take Taganrod, then the headquarters of Gen. Denikine. Machno, a man of 34 years, before the war was a schoolteacher in Guliaipol, province of Taurida. After the revolution he joined the Bolsheviats and became a commissary in Guiaipol. He might still be a commissary were it not for his strong dislike for the Jews. He found that a considerable percentage of the commissaries with whom he dealt were Jews. The friction between Machno and the Jews became so warm that early this year he split with the Bolsheviks. Using his influence among Russians in the community he organized a pogrom in his home town. Instead of a commissary he was a dictator.

POGROM FOR PRESTIGE.

The victory gave him a little prestige. He changed the name of the town to Machnograd. His force grew and with it he captured other villages near by. His operations widened and he took the city of Orokhov. This was late in the spring. The volunteer army of Gen. Denikine began to make its presence felt throughout Southern Russia about this time and before long part of it came in contact with Machno's band. It was split up but reformed after the volunteers had gone on ahead.

Machno captured Alexandrovisk and lost it to the volunteers. He had the same experience at Melitopol. Then the volunteer army started its grand offensive against the Bolsheviats in August and neglected Machno. He had time to reorganize and strengthen his army which grew until he had 10,000 men about October 1. With these he started south for the coast of the Sea of Azov.

TAKES DENIKINE BASE.

He captured the port of Berdiansk, where the Denikine army had a large base and several special schools for officers. Machno killed all the Jews and all officers of the volunteer army which he could get his hands on, it is said. Wives, children and parents of the officers were murdered. About sixty officers put to sea in a small boat. It was overcrowded, capsized and all hands were drowned.

At Berdiansk, Machno obtained clothing, food, munitions and some transportation for his army. What he could not take with him he destroyed. Before the pillaging of Berdiansk was complete some of his troops were marching on Marinpol, another port on the Sea of Azov and only fifty miles from Taganrod. The best division in the volunteer army was withdrawn from the front and sent to Marinpol. It defeated Machno decisively and drove his army back through the town of Machnograd which was destroyed.

The division is back at the front. The Machnoviks were divided. One outfit is near the coast of the Sea of Azov close to the railroad which runs north from the port of Kafi in Crimea. The other has worked north and was last reported near Poreikasiav, about fifty miles southwest of Kiev.

SAY OPERATORS ONCE WANTED COMMISSION.

MINERS DECLARE THEY THEMSELVES FIRST DEFEATED PROPOSAL FOR ONE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 1.—Bituminous coal operators of the country were charged with inconsistency in their attitude toward the commission appointed by the President to settle the coal miners' controversy, in a statement issued today by William Green, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America.

Calling attention to the operators' statements, that they had not been consulted about the agreement between Attorney-General Palmer and officials of the mine workers to have the miners return to work, Mr. Green quoted from a stenographic report of the last joint conference of the operators and miners, at which the operators offered and supported a resolution favoring appointment of a tribunal to settle differences between the employers and employees. All the operators present, Mr. Green said, voted for the proposal, but the miners voted against it and defeated it.

"The miners were opposed to arbitration until the proposition was made by the President," Mr. Green said, in conclusion. "The vote of the operators shows they were in favor of just such a commission as the one created by the President, but when the miners accepted the plan the operators suddenly changed and announced they were opposed to it."

BURGLARS AT VENICE.

Money and Valuables Missing from Business Houses.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, Jan. 1.—Thieves who broke into the safe at the Wollman grocery store last night, stealing $150, followed up the crime by taking $50 from the safe of the drygoods company of I. N. Berkley, and some valuable blankets from the Montgomery Drygoods Store.

Though it is evident that the robberies must have taken place last night, they were not discovered until noon today, when Berkley entered his store and saw that his safe had been ransacked. Police investigation discovered the other robberies. Officers say that though the doors of the safes were hammered off, the robbers were to a certain extent skillful and displayed indications of being professionals.

PROVES IDENTITY.

Body Washed up by Sea is Evan Davies, Says Friend.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, Jan. 1.—That the death of Evan Davies, whose body was washed ashore at the foot of Colorado avenue yesterday, will be the cause of much grief to his sweetheart, Elsie McNary, of Houston, Penn., was asserted today by J. M. Fife of North Orange avenue, Glendale, who came to identify the body this morning. Fife stated that Davies, who was living at the Bible Institute, Los Angeles, had been ill for some time and that he undoubtedly ended his own life. Fife was an old time friend of the man.

Funeral arrangements will not be made until word is received from the Knights of Pythias, of Connonbery, Penn., of which order Davies was a member.

HOLIDAY CROWDS VISIT BEACHES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, Jan. 1.—In spite of the fact that there was a sudden change in the weather that Santa Monica Bay has been enjoying, thousands of pleasure-seekers came to Venice today to celebrate the first day of 1920. Special entertainments at the Venice dance pavilion and a special concert by the band were provided for the many guests.

From the car line down the length of Windward avenue, and out to the end of the pier the walks were carpeted with the confetti that played such a big part in the New Year's frolic which lasted until 4 o'clock this morning.

CHARGE COAL CURTAILMENT.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 31.—Federal authorities announced today they would investigate complaints of union officials that the Keystone Coal Company had violated the Lever Act by curtailing production. The company, according to union leaders, granted their men the 14 per cent. wage increase, but, they said, the concern has refused to re-employ union miners, resulting in lessened production.

ROSE TOURNEY BEAUTY'S EPITOME.

Thirty-second Floral Fete at Pasadena, a Flowing Stream of Sheer Loveliness, Opens to Vast Crowd Unknown Vistas of Enchantment.

The Tournament of Roses was a deluge of satisfaction. It descended upon Pasadena as the morning mists, lifting their shimmering shrouds, disclosed a mighty innundation washing away the walls of skepticism. The city was flooded at early dawn. From the foothills, from the valleys and from distant cities 200,000 lovers of things that are beautiful flocked to see Pasadena's annual festival of flowers. Over the boulevards, like mighty, black, wriggling serpents, thousands of automobiles wended their way. On the electric lines other tens of thousands of beauty-seekers jammed the hurrying cars. And some of the gathering host were pessimistic. They had seen the same thing many times before; they would see the same thing yesterday, they said. But there were no pessimists as the last section of the long pageant vanished around the last street corner.

It was Pasadena's greatest day. Thirty-one similar rose tournaments had rolled on before, fading in the mists of the past as each succeeding year brought a bigger and better pageant. A few may have been bigger, one may have been more spectacular, but no floral pageant more beautiful than yesterday's, or more nearly perfect in the vision of an artist has ever before threaded its way through the streets of Pasadena.

RIVER OF BLOSSOMS.

Slowly flowing, the floral pageant—a veritable river of perfumed blossoms—passed through the cheerful throngs of appreciative humanity, that lined the streets for miles and miles, as a generous sun smiled down upon them. It was a masterpiece of composition of color, not only, but colors that pleased and were restful to the eye. No shouts or rah-rah cries burst forth from the throngs that bordered the line of march. They only smiled and laughed and applauded.

They had waited for hours, most of them since dawn, but they were patient. Calmly they waited for they knew they would soon be repaid for their hours of patience. And when the head of a lone horseman pranced around the bend of Orange Grove avenue at Colorado street, they did not break through the lines and run pell-mell. It was the most orderly throng. By their numbers the police knew they constituted the largest crowd that had ever been in Pasadena—fully 100,000 more than had ever witnessed a tournament in the past.

Then the distant call of a bugle announced the start of the pageant. Far to the westward, on the corner facing from Orange Grove avenue, the river of wondrous colors came in sight, sweeping before it all boredom and skepticism.

TRIUMPHANT SMILES.

First came the Elks' Band, garbed in white, then twenty smiling girls bending to the weight of a huge American flag. Next, crowned with golden smiles confessive of the success of the efforts of the directors of the Tournament of Roses passed majestically by, nodding their thanks to those on the sidelines. Even Mayor Snyder's smile could not be obscured in the profusion of poinsettias that almost hid him from the view of the spectators. And, hiding beneath the famous two-quart hats that made them so conspicuous when the Pacific Fleet entered western waters, were discovered the notables of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

Then came the floral floats, gliding silently along, their decorations swishing on the pavement. They were loaded with pretty girls and chubby children, and they typified everything — industry, happiness, commerce, home life, pleasure, folklore and history. There was nothing shoddy about any of them. In the pageants of the past, which had often been smirched by commercializing for the sake of advertising certain products and industries, probably any of the floats in yesterday's tournament would have received a prize.

GIRLS AND BLOSSOMS.

More flowers, tons and tons of them, were used in the decorations yesterday than ever before. And the girls were pretty, if not prettier. It may have been the generosity of the elements that made it seem so; nevertheless, they looked more beautiful than in years past. Nor was the recent sacrifice of the nation forgotten. Sprinkled throughout the long line of beauty were veterans of the war, in the bands, on the floats; and these husky youths marched side by side with the aged patriarchs of the Civil War. Nor was the part of woman in the world war overlooked. There, on the Salvation Army float, an overseas lass, four gold service stripes on her sleeve and on her face the same priceless smile that cheered so many battle-wearied lads in the darker days, embraced the biggest doughnut the eyes of doughboys ever feasted upon.

The entry of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce typified industry—a replica, in flowers, of one of the city's harbor dredges. It was a message to the tens of thousands of visitors that Los Angeles holds the power to accomplish big tasks.

FROM VALLEY AND BEACH.

Practically all the community floats, the more gorgeous ones in size and beauty, conveyed some story of the accomplishments of Southern California cities. From Burbank came the message of opportunity in that thriving little city—an immense key to "Opportunity." From another valley city came the message of "Valley Happiness" that awaits the coming of those who wish to forsake the eastern icicles. "Valley Happiness" was portrayed by four laughing girls, swaying rythmically on floral tester-boards.

Of the beach cities, Redondo Beach presented the welcome of the sea—a huge airplane constructed of seaweed and piloted by four blushing aviatrices. Catalina Island told of its advantages for the sportsman, portrayed by a floral launch on a miniature ocean, with a group of jolly fishermen casting their flies for six mermaids, who dared to enter the streets of Pasadena while garbed only in the most abbreviated of bathing suits.

FROM THE SNOWS.

Not alone were the all-year-round summer charms of Southern California paraded before the admiring crowds. Down from the heights of the snow-bound San Bernardino Mountains came an honest-to-goodness bear, escorted by four mountain girls in khaki and snowshoes, who delighted themselves and the spectators by waging a real snowball battle all along the route.

Nor did the Women's Christian Temperance Union let slip the opportunity to "rub it in" that January 1 had arrived. On a lavish float stood a W.C.T.U. member bearing aloft the banner of "Victory."

The pageant would not have been complete had not the Civil War veterans been present. As in the years gone by, they again triumphed yesterday with their simple float, which passed along the line amidst a thunder of applause. Yet it was not the float that was cheered; it was rather the platoon of grizzled warriors of the '60s who stood, with bayonets fixed, atop a simple though neatly decorated car.

Pasadena's industrial float was heard long before it hove into view, for when it did glide over the horizon near Orange Grove avenue, it bore a vigorous youth who with distended muscles bared was pounding upon an anvil. "Pasadena Welcomes Industry" was the message its banner bore.

BANDS AND RIDERS.

The parade was not made up alone with Maurice Agnew as director; the Elks' band of Pasadena, with thirty-eight players and H. G. Simpson as leader; the Municipal band of Long Beach, arrayed in white and gold; Al Borah band, brilliantly arrayed in red and purple and blue and gold; the Tomassino band of Los Angeles; a combination Salvation Army band of fifty-six players; Pasadena High School Girls' band and Hopkins Saxophone band of Claremont.

DIRECTORS IN AUTOS.

The directors of the Tournament of Roses Association rode in two automobiles, which were covered with pink carnations. Arches arose from the corners of the cars, and from each standard there hung gracefully-embellished baskets of carnations and smilax.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

The Board of County Supervisors rode in their float of poinsettias, mounted on pepper boughs. Golden acacia showed through the mass of red and green at intervals and afforded an attractive display.

MAYOR SNYDER.

The car in which Mayor and Mrs. Snyder rode had a background of snowy-white California cotton, against which were massed very effectively poinsettias. The lines of the car were trimmed in smilax and asparagus plumosus. A large American flag was festooned across the back of the car. Mayor Snyder carried with him a "top" hat, so as to be

HISTORY, SCIENCE AND ART REPLACE WAR THEMES.

Rose Tournament Pageant Surpasses All Past Efforts in Artistic Conception—Parade in Detail.

The tournament parade, moving yesterday over the historic route, South Orange Grove avenue and Colorado street, excelled all previous efforts in artistic conception. The color schemes comprised for the most part poinsettias, violets, carnations, pink, white and red roses, Scotch heather, pepper boughs and asparagus ferns. The designs this year were historic as well as typical of the present times, portraying art, science and education in sharp contrast to the warlike themes predominating in recent years.

Frank G. Hogan was the grand marshal. The parade moved with military exactness at 10:30 a.m. Mr. Hogan's assistant marshals were M. S. Pashigian, second division; S. B. Marston, third division; William Easterbrook, fourth division; Henry Thayer, fifth division; I. J. Waterman, sixth division.

Following is the parade in detail in the order in which it came:

MANY FINE BANDS.

Probably never before has the musical feature of the Tournament of Roses parade been so emphasized as it was yesterday. Bands of many pieces, brave in spick and span uniforms, played all along the way, amid loud applause. Among these bands were those of the Pacific Fruit Express, with twenty-eight instruments, and W. M. Buckley as director; the Pasadena High School band of forty-eight instruments,

DID POISONED WINE KILL WEALTHY PAIR?

AUTOPSY ON SINCLAIRS MAY CHANGE THEORY OF GAS BEING CAUSE.

A small bottle of port wine from which two glassfuls have been taken may change the police verdict that George B. Sinclair, 63 years of age, and his wife, Margaret F. Sinclair, 58 years, who were found dead yesterday morning beside the breakfast table in their homes at 1609 South Wilton place, died of carbon dioxide gas formed by a small gas heater in their closed kitchen and breakfast-room. The bottle of wine is held at Central Police Station and will be turned over to the city chemist for examination today. An autopsy and inquest have also been ordered by County Coroner Hartwell.

The wine, which was found by Police Detective Herman Cline on a sideboard near the breakfast table, may have been poisoned by accident or intent. Only analysis of the wine, and an autopsy can dispose of this theory, the police say.

Striking with deadly suddenness, carbon dioxide gas, formed by a small gas flame beneath a hot water heater some time Wednesday morning, is believed to have caused the death of George B. Sinclair and his wife, Margaret F. Sinclair, as they sat finishing a meal in the breakfast-room of their residence at 1609 South Wilton place. The two bodies were found at 11 a.m. yesterday by Mrs. Sinclair's brother-in-law, Melvil L. Severy of 431 South Berendo street, when he called with his son, Victor, to learn why Sinclair had failed to answer the telephone.

Severy broke open a rear door when no one answered the front-door bell. He discovered Sinclair's body beneath the table where the man had rolled from his chair when

The Cad.

BY JANE DIXON.

We all know him—the cad.

Too bad it should be so, but the fact is every girl who has graduated from pigtails and pink hair ribbons does at one time or another come face to face with that most insufferable of all crawling creatures—the cad.

I always hope, for the sake of her woman's future, the girl may feel the lash of experience in cadism while she is very young, so that the welt it leaves across the fair face of her faith will be nothing more than a surface bruise.

If by some God-given decree all sarcastic cads could be made into one long chain gang and the gang started on a nonstop march in the direction of the tallest cliff overhanging the deepest ocean, at least one-half the woman's tears of the world would be wiped away.

Eliminate the cad and mother love is robbed of the sting of fear for the safety, the honor of its daughters.

Label the cad, brand him if need be, so that all women everywhere will recognize him for the social pestilence he really is.

The fruits of the brand will be fewer of those helpless little unknowns who populate our charitable orphanages.

There will be a falling off of pale, drawn faces and eyes dark with the shadow of sin.

The cool breast of the river will not pillow so many sodden souls.

The boundaries of the suicide plot will shrink.

There will be less sobbing, less pain, less parasitic pandering, less disillusion, degradation and dishonor.

Were it not for the cad the possibilities of the world for becoming a real bona-fide antechamber to paradise would increase a full hundred per cent.

Dr. Osler made a grave mistake. It is not age which unfits us for association with our fellow-men. It is behavior. The doctor should have passed the ether to the Ignoble Order of Cads first, thereby jotting himself down in history as the saviour of womankind.

"But what," asks the neophyte, "what is it constitutes a cad? How may we know him? He may be near us even now, unsuspected."

Yes, it is true; he may be. But not for long.

The cad can no more conceal his cloven hoof than the rattler can conceal his lance or the woman of the streets her hideous trade beneath a cloak of carmine.

You will know the cad, curious maid, too often to your sorrow.

It is impossible to offer any hard and fast rules for searching him out. He is of such infinite variety. He is as versatile as sin, as conscienceless as crime. He is in the cabin of the cobbler and in the palace of the kings, in the money mart, in the pleasure haunt, in the circle of the church and in the circle of the fireside.

He is here, there and everywhere—is the cad.

I am at a loss to know just when he reaches the depths of his dishonor, this creature of fire despicability. Such a decision must be of necessity based on personal experience or close and careful observation. Every girl believes her particular cad is the worst, and every girl is right.

Here is one example of the cad elbowing for first mention on the roll of dishonor.

A certain man set out to win the love of a girl. He succeeded. The girl broke her engagement with a boy she had known "back home." She did not want to love the cad. She fought against it, but in the end his persistence won.

And having won his objective the cad started in to make the life of the girl one long vale of tears. He lied and cheated and flouted. He made a fair promise today and broke it tomorrow. The girl went on loving, because she had made her mistake in the face of opposition and she hated to hear the "I told you so" chorus chant its familiar dirge.

At last the affairs of the cad and his victim reached a definite crisis.

"This is your big chance," said the cad. "Prove to me that you really love me."

Her big chance!

Of course the girl took that chance, for she was very much in love and she did so hate to lose in the greatest game on earth. And of course she lost. It was inevitable she should, with the cad dealing the cards.

The man took advantage of the girl's trust, of her love, to smash the conventions, to hopelessly compromise her. He abused the hospitality of her home. He belittled and besmirched her with certain of his friends, maintaining the while the mask of decency and devotion among certain others.

In the end, ruming true to form, he walked out, coolly leaving the girl to face the storm of public disapproval.

"What!" you exclaim. "He didn't have to pay? He got away scot free?"

Yes, scot free—for the present. You see, the cad is conscienceless. He can embrace one woman with his left arm while he is striking another with his right.

The girl?

Why the girl has gloriously recovered. Her only offense aginst the moral law was in loving too well, so time has effected for her a complete cure.

"No, I don't hate him," she says when the past bobs up, which is seldom enough. Hate is for the strong. I only despise him. I have the same contempt for him a soldier has for a coottie."

"But don't you feel like doing something to get even, to balance the score?" insist interested friends.

"Mercy, no," answers the girl, and there is a smile of peculiar twist that goes with the words. "I am leaving that to Fate. It may take time, but I have never yet heard of a debtor who escaped."

The girl is wise with the wisdom of suffering. She knows the eternal balance can deal out recompense beyond her dreams of suitable payment.

The note indorsed with forged promises and broken faith will fall due some day in the future—and the cad will pay.

Do not imagine the man who tricks and deceives another girl will be on the level with you. It is impossible to be a traitor and an honest citizen under the same flag.

Cadism is ingrained. It is a part of the human make-up, like blue eyes or bow legs.

A cad counts toward the happiness of a woman only to the extent that she is willing and able to forget him.

GASOLINE ALLEY—A FEW DETAILS OVERLOOKED

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES."

Wants a Vote on It.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 31.—[To the Editor of The Times:] This morning I noted with pleasure your article regarding the drastic prohibition laws actually in effect in our beloved Country of the Free.

Just as you said, the prohibition element promised that when prohibition would go into effect that there would be no more drunkeness, no more crimes committed, no more suffering, no more family troubles, that half of the police force would be discharged, no more violence of any kind, jails hardly would be necessary, taxes would be reduced to hardly nothing, etc. Now, according to your publication; since prohibition went into effect more crimes have been committed, more divorcec have been filed and granted, more police are needed, more automobile accidents occuring every day, more people becoming addicts to the drug and dope habit every day, the necessity to build an additional jail, and in a word, drastic prohibition according reports, instead of being a benefit is bringing detriment and misery to the community and in my opinion the said editorial is one of the best articles that I have read in any paper for a long time.

As an American citizen and in my opinion and as best as I can judge, prohibition will take away the personal liberty. For instance we take China, India and Turkey; the three together represent about one-half of the world and for centuries have been deprived of the use of any alcoholic beverage. Tell me what kind of morality has been conducted? What progress have they made? What industrial or commercial enterprises have they successfully handled? The backwardness of all these nations is attributed to the oppression and privations to which these peoples have been subjected.

G. PIUMA.

Film Propaganda.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 31.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Formerly all moving-picture films were vouched for, in the prologue, as having been approved by the "National Board of Censorship. It is assumed that the "censors" are still on the job and either wish the public to forget that some of the trashy films were ever passed on by said "board," or possibly may wish to pass doubtful films, withholding approval so that, in case of severe criticism, they may be able to prove an alibi.

Being very fond of clean, educative or laugh-provoking pictures, I might be called a film chaser, but must say that the predominating idea of producing so much of the exceptional, sad and painfully cruel phases of human, or rather inhuman nature, makes it a sort of wild goose chase most of the time.

A favorite theme is to show capitalists and corporations as the source of all evil and misery to the people, as scheming enemies of their employees, to show as the only laborers and producers by their labor, to be those whose labor soils their hands and clothes at so much per day of as few hours as possible, while others, capitalists and stockholders, as employers are laboring often fourteen to twenty hours per day to make the concern go and to meet the payroll.

The government has been burning up much poisonous propaganda but the censors have passed many equally poisonous films which reach more people in a month than all the burned stuff would ever reach.

"A million-dollar film" by the queen of filmdom is now sweeping over the country like a prairie fire and the whole theme from start to finish is a capitalist and five corporations vs. an employee, delineating conditions and "tuation absolutely unnatural and impossible Even if based on facts, it would only be one case in a 100,000,000.

It is preposterous to assume that men on salary for a corporation will lie and steal for it, but there are men, "tolerably honest," who believe it is right to steal from a corporation, especially from railroads.

ERNEST C. JOHNSON.

Says They're Vandals.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 31.—[To the Editor of The Times:] This year, as usual, the friends of our landscapes are uselessly protesting against the acts of certain vandals in our midst who deliberately and at leisure destroy the shrubbery of our canyons and hillsides for the sake of carrying away a few sprigs of berries.

Not all of these undesirables are irresponsible and illiterate. Some are ex-students and graduates of some of our advanced educational institutions, where they have been thought or permitted to absorb their vandalic principles. It has been a part of their secondary education to climb up our mountain sides and uproot given places uproot, destroy or remove every speck of vegetation that is in a certain area, forming a living letter, the initial of their respective alma mater.

Visible for miles away, these letters, in a class with certain forms of advertising, pickle and other brands, are a disgrace to our communities. It is bad enough to have fire breaks—a necessity at times created by carelessness with fire, without further indulging in and sanctioning these fancy and useless scars.

With such acquired principles and practice of wholesale destruction it might be said that one is "born rusty" to be content with merely mutilating a few shrubs, or carving the trunk of a tree or boulder rock, and that the public is at fault when protesting against these diminutive rehearsals of "colossal stunts."

BALLADE OF CHANGING STYLES

BY HELEN ROWLAND.

Bodices high, and bodices low;
"Skirts will be frilly—skirts will be straight!"
You purchase your hat, by the noonday glow,
And, by night, you are "twenty minutes late!"
Fashion, you tyrant, importunate!
Your whimsies are driving me wild—insane!
Horrors! I'm almost out of date!
Presto! The styles have changed, again!

My! How the variants come and go—
Daring—modest—elaborate!
Fortunes, like leaves, to the winds we throw.
Woman MUST have her hook and bait!
Husbands? Oh, they will capitulate!
What are the frowns and the wails of men?
Wheedle, and coax, and prevaricate—
Heavens! The styles have changed, again!

Torment and torture we surely know!
Meekly we bow to each trick of fate,
Chiffons to wear in the winds and snow,
Furs, when the temperature's ninety-eight!
Freeze us, or squeeze us, or suffocate—
What do WE care for the cost or pain?
Pause we a moment to arbitrate—

L'ENVOI.

Goddess of fashion, insatiate!
Ever, we race to this mad refrain!
But just as we think we have CAUGHT you—wait!

Long Beach Lad in Serious Condition—Arrest Auto Driver.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONG BEACH, Jan. 1.—Herford Berry, 20 years old, of Atlantic avenue and Wardlow road, lies in the Seaside Hospital tonight in a critical condition, suffering from a fractured skull, as a result of an automobile accident on Bixby hill.

Berry was riding a motorcycle, and stopped by the roadside to repair a puncture when he was struck by an automobile, said to have been driven by F. H. Hackett, of 328 West Twenty-second street, Los Angeles.

Hackett says he did not realize he had hit anyone and continued on his way. He was overtaken by one of Berry's companions and taken to the Long Beach City Jail, where he was placed under arrest, charged with a felony for failing to stop. Later he was released on $1500 bail. Berry graduated from Long Beach High School with the class of 1916.

FOR BORDER CROSSING.

Assign Immigration Inspectors to International Rail Line.

To handle passports for patrons of the San Diego and Arizona Railroad, which crosses the Mexican border at four points, four officers of the immigration service have been assigned to duty at and near San Diego.

The four border crossings are between San Diego and Yuma, and are for but short distances. Inspector Burnett also announced that two inspectors have been ordered to Calexico to aid in preventing the smuggling of Chinese and Japanese across the border.

ALL TURN TRAPPER.

Entire Community Devotes Time to the Fur Business.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VICTORVILLE, Jan. 1.—The high price of furs, together with the generous bounties offered by the State for predatory animals has led to a revival of trapping in this district. At every gathering where the masculine element predominates trapping has become the chief subject for interest. There are more than 1000 traps, it is estimated, within a radius of twenty miles of Victorville, and probably fifty persons who spend part of their time in going over their trap lines.

Inquiries at the postoffice and express office indicate that the shipments of mountain cat, lynx, coyotes, civet, fox, badger and swift skins, from here to St. Louis and Kansas City fur houses can be conservatively estimated at $100 per week. One rancher stated yesterday that his fourteen-year-old son during the last year had supplied himself with clothing by the aid of his trap line.

By Mrs. Detwiler.

Her guests were mostly visitors from the East, including Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown of Minneapolis, Mr. and Mrs. John Reith of Sacramento; Mr. and Mrs. Davis Shoop of Wanseon, O.; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Mrs. Ezra Rust.

Word has just been received from Mrs. Ezra Rust of Ann Arbor, Mich., that she expects to dispose of most of her properties in the East and return to Los Angeles in the spring to make Los Angeles her permanent home. For years she and the late Mr. Rust, multimillionaire steel magnate, of Saginaw and Ann Arbor, who passed away here some two years ago, have been spending part of each year in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Rust, with her son and daughter, passed a short time here last fall, and numerous social functions were given in her honor. They are spending the holidays at Palm Beach.

By Mrs. Beckwith.

Mrs. Herbert Beckwith of Pasadena, entertained yesterday with a party at the Harvard football game in honor of Miss Dorothy Cooke, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Cooke, of Los Angeles, who is home from Mills College for the holidays. After the game Mrs. Beckwith gave a buffet supper for the party at her home on Grande avenue.

At Home.

Lieut. and Mrs. Leland Dotson Webb, who have recently returned from San Francisco, are now in their new home on Victoria drive. One of the charming affairs of the holiday season was the at home given by the Webbs in their pretty chalet, to a number of friends. Mrs. Webb was assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. Virginia Marshall Clopton. Guests included Capt. and Mrs. Chauncey Shackford, Commander Bemis of the submarine base, San pedro, Messrs. and Mmes. Eugene L. Spearman, Berry Page, Homer Boyd, Stephen L. Wiley, Mmes. W. J. Brodrick, Samuel Brown Thomas, M. Taylor, J. Cook, Misses Florence Marsh, Harvy Wallis, Lucy Brodrick, Eloise Bogdage, Anita Brodrick, Catherine Fess, Messrs Eugene C. William C. Foley, of Chicago, is one of the recent arrivals in Southern California for the winter. Mr. Foley stayed at the Hotel Alexandria over the Harvard game and from there plans to go to the Stratford Inn at Del Mar for a month.

From Del Mar he will motor to San Francisco to visit his sister, Mrs. Joseph H. Carrigan and the Joseph Hookers. Mr. Foley is a member of the Chicago Board of Trade.

Mrs. Ezra Rust,
Who has come here from Ann Harbor, Mich., to make her home.

ON EXTORTION CHARGE.

Man Arrested Here Must Face Liquor Accusations in North.

Joseph S. Williams, a former taxi-driver at Aberdeen, Wash., was taken into custody, yesterday, by Special Agent Connell, of the Department of Justice, charged with being a fugitive from justice. He is under indictment, with James J. Reed, formerly a deputy internal revenue colelctod, charged with conspiracy in extorting money from violators of the liquor laws.

Reed was arrested and on his plea of guilty was sentenced to five years in the Federal penitentiary at McNeil Island, with a fine of $1600. Williams left the scene of his asserted crime. He was picked up by Agent Connell on South Main street.

UNDER THE MANN ACT.

Two are Accused of Deserting Families in Westward Flight.

James A. Hickman and Mrs. W. C. Green, of St. Petersburg, Fla., were arrested, yesterday, by Special Agent Connell, of the Department of Justice, and lodged in the County Jail. They are wanted in Florida on charges of violating the Mann white slave law.

It is asserted that Hickman has a wife and six children in St. Petersburg, who were deserted by the husband and father, and that Mrs. Green left a husband and a son by a former husband. Both of the defendants will be arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Long this morning.

HOLD SERVICES FOR BROKER, LONG HERE.

Funeral services for B. A. Stockard, 2214 Eighth avenue, who died at his home, Monday, were conducted day before yesterday. Burial was in Hollywood Cemetery.

Mr. Stockard was well known in Los Angeles. For more than seventeen years a resident of the city, he was in the merchandise brokerage business up to the very end. He was born in Mississippi in 1859.

Mr. Stockard leaves a widow, Mrs. B. A. Stockard, and three daughters, Mrs. Glover Garland, of Altadena; Mrs. Sam Barry, 2271 West Twenty-third street, and Miss Margaret Stockard, who lives with her mother at the Stockard home.

FIRST MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Capt. Leland C. McAuley, of Indio, Tex., and Miss Clair P. Morris, 3437 Fifth avenue, Los Angeles were the first persons to secure a marriage license in this city in 1920. R. S. "Cupid" Sparks issued them license No. 1, yesterday, after which the young couple were married and started at once on a honeymoon trip to Texas, where the captain is stationed. Capt. McAuley and his wife have been sweethearts since childhood. They are both natives of this city.

The second marriage license was given to Arthur A. King, a merchant of Louisville and Miss Henrietta A. Roth, 5463 Fourth avenue, who left for Louisville after their union.

Both of the young couples were in a hurry and both were married between trains. Capt. McAuley arrived here yesterday morning and left last night. Mr. King arrived sometime yesterday and meeting his bride downtown, they hurried to the license clerk, obtained the necessary papers, then rushed to the home of a rabbi and were soon off on their trip half way across the continent.

Marriage licenses start with number one, each year, Mr. Sparks said. He said the last license issued by him during 1919 was number 9551, which represents the number of couples who applied to the marriage bureau during the year just closed.

MEDIATOR SEES PEACE AHEAD.

Says Both Capital and Labor Show Desire to Iron Out Differences.

Industrial peace in 1920 was predicted yesterday by Capt. Charles T. Connell, Federal labor mediator, in a statement issued here.

He pointed to the fact that last year at this time, there was much more industrial unrest than at present, and declared that both capital and labor are more inclined to cooperate in mediating disputes.

MEANS LITTLE CHANGE.

Paul Shoup to Retain Former Positions in Espee Reorganization.

Paul Shoup, who has been vice-president and acting head of the Southern Pacific during the past two years, is to retain the former position and the others he held in pre-war days, when William Sproule resumes his former duties as head of the Southern Pacific, was the word received here, yesterday, from the north. Mr. Sproule was district director for the Railroad Administration up to a few days ago.

It is common talk among local railroad men that Mr. Shoup is to remain in the position of vice-president with the Southern Pacific, at the same time continuing as president of the Pacific Electric, the Visalia Electric, and the other four electric lines of the Southern Pacific, as well as of the Associated Oil Company.

FOR CITY TREASURER.

Confirmation of the Mayor's reappointment of Ned T. Powell as City Treasurer was recommended by the Finance Committee of the City Council at its meeting Wednesday. Action on this subject by the council will be taken Monday morning.

ENOUGH WHISKY TO GO 'ROUND.

Many Thousand Gallons are Stored Here; Find Export Taxes are High.

There is still considerable whisky in Los Angeles—enough to go around for the thirsty—according to the estimate of internal revenue officers, who say there are 90,000 gallons in bond at the government warehouse and 200,000 gallons on which tax has been paid.

Efforts lately to take some of this out of bond to ship across the border to Mexico and to Central America, were somewhat discouraged by the discovery that the import tax of these countries, makes exportation from this country unprofitable.

FIVE LOTS OWNED BY CITY WILL BE SOLD.

The City Council will soon advertise for sale five parcels of land held by the fire department which were originally acquired for firehouse sites, but are not now needed because of the general change to motor-driven equipment, thus permitting one firehouse to serve a much larger area than formerly.

The Finance Committee of the Council will make an inspection trip of these properties next Wednesday and will set a valuation on each parcel.

SWEARING OFF.

It might be a bright idea to swear off buying a lot of fool things at fancy prices simply because the merchant has the nerve to ask them.

FALLEN FAITH.

The head of the Austrian peace delegation is in grief over the defection of America from the supreme conference. It was in America alone that they had deep faith. He exclaims: "The United States alone had pledged itself to those principles on which the peace of the world can be rebuilt. We have hope of fair treatment from the Allies, but we had faith in America." The bickerings of the United States Senate have practically destroyed the opportunity America had of making her unselfish ideals the basis of a world brotherhood. The nations have found that we are querulous and controversial the same as the rest. Instead of leading in the creation of a righteous peace we are going to be the tail end of the procession. The most glorious opportunity of the ages was wasted through the peevish wrangling of a group of Senators.

EXAMPLE CATCHING.

Los Angeles, which has led the way in not a few innovations, finds its example followed in the use of the self-controlled telephone. The Boston Transcript announces that the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company intends to install the automatic system by means of which each subscriber becomes his own operator. The newspaper intimates that the successful use of the dial with the ten digits in Los Angeles' homes and offices has had much to do with the decision to replace the manual system with the automatic in Boston. "The experience of Los Angeles is an important guarantee of its success," it remarks.

Interesting indeed is this news of the New England company's determination. It is an open secret that when the two companies in Los Angeles were merged recently it was the hope of telephone company officials that the manual system would gradually replace the automatic here. It would seem, however, that experience has proved the merit of the automatic, for otherwise such an important company as that of New England would hardly have decided on making so costly a change as it contemplates. The installation in Boston is to be done gradually, and it is stated that it may take ten years to complete the change. The officials of the company announce that after a thorough investigation and long-continued tests the mechanical system has demonstrated its worth and it is altogether likely that other large cities will follow Boston's example, thus emphasizing the debt telephone users owe to Los Angeles for being the first city to show the value of the automatic system.

REPORTING PROGRESS.

It is not certain that any lasting good will result from the deliberations of President Wilson's industrial conference, which has just made a preliminary report and recessed over to January 12. The conference made a serious effort to create machinery for the settlement of labor disputes, but it is doubtful if anything could be devised that would be acceptable to the Federation of Labor less than the undisputed dominion of that organization and the surrender of the open shop. However, the conference emphasizes one point that will appeal to all. That is the importance of getting quick action in reaching agreements. Lots of strikes would never be heard of if the machinery for impartially considering and settling trade disputes were ready at hand for use with the first hint of friction. It is proposed to create a regional system something after the pattern of the Federal reserve, with a chairman and board ready and in waiting in each district. It is also urged that there be a national tribunal, which is patterned after the manner of the Supreme Court, to which appeals would come for final review or decision. It is provided, however, that the judgment of the latter tribunal must be unanimous in order to be effective. As the tribunal is made up of nine commissioners it might be difficult to reach a unanimous agreement. It is not required of the Supreme Court. The national tribunal is to be composed of three members representing labor, three for the employers and three for the public. It would seem that an agreement reached by a majority of each class would be acceptable to public sentiment and should prevail. The conference was absolutely of one mind that policemen, firemen and others in the public service should have no affiliation with any organization which recognizes the strike as a trade weapon. Concerning the status of railroad men the conference promised a further report. It is at least proper for all men to cogitate over the preliminary findings of the conferees. It at least constitutes a report of progress.

Doctors now claim that wonders can be accomplished in therapeutics by the extraction of one's teeth. There have been other periods of enthusiasm over supposed panaceas. There was a time when bloodlettings was supposed to be the cure-all. George Washington was a victim of that fad, if history is correct.

RATIFICATION PROSPECTS.

Something of the holiday spirit seems to have percolated through the animosities awakened by the discussion over the ratification of the peace treaty; and the message of "peace on earth" is nearer universal acceptance than at any other time since it was delivered nearly 2000 years ago. Senators who have been at home during the Christmas season have encountered an insistent demand for early ratification. They have found that it is not a party peace, but a people's peace that is desired.

Great Britain and France have given informal notice in advance that they are willing to accept American ratification with such reservations as the majority of the United States Senate may deem necessary to fully protect American interests. They have disclaimed any desire to "put something over" on the United States and have pointed out that both the much-criticised Article X and the clause referring to the Monroe Doctrine appear in the treaty in the precise form submitted to the conference by the American commission.

Our allies say frankly that they seek American co-operation in enforcing the terms of the peace treaty. They desire our moral encouragement and support in peace as sincerely as they sought our military assistance in breaking the resistance of the Central Powers. Their silence under the hostile criticism of the "bitter enders" shows that they have not lost faith in the American people.

Mr. Taft pointed out in an admirable article which appeared in The Times on Wednesday that Senators Johnson, Borah and the other "bitter enders" represent only the minority factions in the country, opposed to American participation in the war from the beginning; that there are ample votes in the Senate to ratify the treaty with reservations without them; and that the only real obstacle to early ratification is the uncompromising attitude still maintained by President Wilson. The President's utterances to the present time show him to be as irreconcilable a "bitter ender" as any in the Senate.

Our allies have intimated in advance that they are willing to accept American ratification with the reservations for which a majority of the Senators voted in November. If President Wilson and the Democratic minority would accept them the controversy would be quickly ended. Mr. Taft says frankly that he prefers a modification of those reservations, that they go farther than is necessary to guarantee the sovereignty and protect interests individual to this country; but he holds that it would be infinitely better for the United States to include them all in the ratification than not to ratify the treaty at all.

Mr. Taft displays more confidence in the League of Nations than the President himself. He believes in getting the League functioning first and ironing out minor differences afterwards. Mr. Taft has both faith and vision. He is fully confident that the League will quickly justify its creation by bringing order out of the present confusion of international relations. He is sanguine that the doubting Thomases will be convinced when they see the deliberations of the League actuated by a spirit of justice and fair dealing with all peoples. He holds that civilization is so far advanced that no people nor combination of peoples will seek to obtain unfair advantages over the rest of the world.

The President's skepticism is a deep disappointment to those who hailed with delight the enunciation of his famous fourteen points. He seems to have lost faith in his own people, to fear that America will take advantage of some technical reservation and will fail to do its duty when the next world crisis arrives. His isolation during recent months has apparently put him out of touch with public sentiment. The American people gave evidence of their confidence in his handiwork when they brought to bear the pressure of public opinion that caused all amendments to the peace treaty to be rejected; but he should be aware by this time that they are not willing to follow him to the extreme limit of rejecting the peace treaty in its entirety, of abandoning the League of Nations to its fate, rather than have it accepted with reservations which will probably never be heard of, once the treaty is formally ratified.

Public sentiment in the country does not indorse the President's declaration that the blame for failure to ratify the treaty rests wholly with the Republican opposition in the Senate. All the Republican Senators but the few inconsequential "bitter enders" voted for ratification in a form that our allies have accepted in advance. For the President to continue to hold out is to display a narrow egotism that is wholly out of keeping with the spirit of his famous war messages.

The public in general indorses the opinion of Mr. Taft that the attitude of the "bitter enders" in the Senate is without consequence. The great mass of the Republican voters are not dismayed at the threats of Borah and Johnson to found a new party which will be powerful enough to endanger Republican success next year. Mr. Taft pertinently asks where they could go if they did bolt, and continues:

> They could hardly go to the Democrats on the score of the treaty and the League. Their only refuge would be a third party of radical laborites, pro-Germans, nonpartisan leaguers and Sinn Feiners. Such a party would be likely to draw quite as much from the Democrats as from the Republicans and would not make the Republican victory any the less complete. The regular Republicans who favor ratification with compromise reservations are thus more important to the party than radical dissentients.

Referring to the speaking tours of Johnson and Borah against the League, Mr. Taft says:

> The anti-League meetings which Mr. Johnson and Mr. Borah addressed were very enthusiastic and were mistakenly supposed to represent a strong opposition to the treaty. These meetings merely indicated the intense purpose and interest of pro-Germans and extreme Irish revolutionists to beat the treaty.

Mr. Taft is here expressing a conclusion which The Times reached early in the anti-treaty campaign. There have been elements in the country working sedulously but secretly to defeat the treaty ever since it was written. A peace of justice is an intolerable thought to the anarchists, the Bolshevists, the exponents of German militarism and the extreme radicals of all denominations. There are enough of them in every large city to fill a public hall to overflowing, to cheer to the echo any demagogue who will espouse their doctrines; but they are but a small minority of the people. The voters of Milwaukee are not representative of the American people as a whole; neither are Senators Johnson and Borah. Mr. Taft has judged the American people aright.

ART AND ADVERTISING.

Human nature runs to dark and moody colors in certain sectors of the noble profession of architecture in Los Angeles. Some of its gifted sons—belonging perhaps to that solemn age before Art learned that life's sweetest fluids are drawn from the sustaining hand of Business—are disposed to look with unfeigned disfavor on their professional brothers who have come to understand that profitable commissions may be successfully courted through that unfailing tap-spring of friendly public response—advertising in the daily press.

To those sensitive souls of the architectural calling who think of their handicraft not as the guide-post of a building job, but as a kind of glorified fresco hanging too high in the inspirational heavens to be associated with the grosser elements of life, there is something dreadfully impious in the thought that architecture could win distinction through publicity. Architecture and advertising! It jars them out of their art-proud poise, this suggestion of marrying the two to achieve the blissful aims of better business. Biscuits and buttons, chewing gum and cheese cloth—yes, flaunt them high in the media of paid publicity. Their selling message, to get across, must have it. But to emblazon the architect as a "salesman" in the world's marts—holy of holies—never!

Architecture and commerce—not by the serenity of the heavenly skies! Think only of the art to which the gift is consecrated; too precious a thing it is to suffer exposure to a gaping, curious crowd. Architecture belongs to the arts, as a subject for delineation by architects for architects, but for a misguided brother to proclaim his "selling" aspirations to a listening world at so much per line of paid advertising—well, crepe is still worn for somber reasons. The drone which issues from the disapproving quarter sounds like high priestly lamentation. No, architecture must not wear the ebullient dress of advertising. No proclamations must accompany it. Its masters must remain white and chaste in their sepulcher of silence. They must stand, as they have from time immemorial, on their inspired creed, "art for art's sake," now and forevermore.

Attempt to get over an anti-pro bono publico doctrine with the average business man and you hit the hard places. You'd get about as much sympathetic understanding as if you sought to put over a lecture on Sanskrit to the elephants at the zoo. Noli me tangere! It simply wouldn't do.

The chances are, if his morale for the day wasn't low, he'd send for his advertising agent and order fresh copy for the morning paper. You see, he has no account to square with that gloomy specter known among the shrinking violets as "professional ethics." No such fiction prevents his ideas from coming to full fruit. To him publicity is but the other way of pronouncing magic. He banks on it, dreams over it, nurses and nourishes it—calls it the sure cure for idle workshops. To him its merit is axiomatic—the quick-step from one job, sale or commission to the next.

But, strange as it may seem and as rapidly as the world moves in other ways, there are still to be found in their sky-dimmed corners of Los Angeles office buildings a few hangover members of that gloomy architectural Philistia that flourished in the age of silence before newspaper columns illumined old Mother Earth. They are a vanishing race, but they die hard. They still cling to their ancient, much-wracked drawing boards and their mouldy fetiches concerning the sacredness of architecture. They say it belongs to the somber sciences, that it disdains affinity with that newer art which would bring it closer to the common mind.

They lack fellowship with publicity—decline to understand that it will bring meat and gravy to the family table and fattened substance to the purse. Their attitude toward that lowly servitor, the advertising solicitor, is that of a king dealing hardly with a knave. When told that this is not a day of subcellars and self-pities, but of pen-pictures and lurid ink, they fail to see the point.

In this present building renaissance the desperate rush of the world to get under roof, of course they are lonely and aloof. They are thinking of the beloved Art in Architecture—and are not supplying the needed roofs. Whether it be due to poise or pose, they say they are "too idealistic" to advertise and too much engrossed in nebula of exalted things to descend to the gross temptation of offering their handicraft in the public marts. Theirs, be it known, is a strange case.

Abe Potash seemed to have it right when he asked of friend-partner Morris Perlmutter:

"Mawruss, what would you do with a fellah like that?"

Closed Shop Doomed.

Seattle, which has been one hot bed of labor radicalism, has had a remarkable change of public sentiment in the last thirty days.

Those in control of union labor went too far in their efforts to enforce the "closed shop" order.

The building trades strike has been called off by carpenters and mechanics, with an admission of complete loss. They lost requested advance in wages; they go back to an open shop instead of an absolutely closed shop which they had when they struck, and they work half a day Saturday instead of taking the whole day as a holiday as they had been doing since early last spring.

The gas strike lost out and the tailors will meet with the same fate as the carpenters and this applies to other strikes now under way in Seattle and Tacoma.

Seattle civil and industrial organizations are backing the stand of the Associated Industries of America, which provides for employers dealing with employees and hiring and firing of men, subject only to employer's understanding with his own men and not the local union or walking delegates.

Seldom is such a change seen in public sentiment in so short a time. Radical agitators may be thanked for opening the public's eyes to the danger threatening.—[Aspen (Colo.) Democrat-Times.

"TO OBLIGE ALEX."

The Kansas miners, who lost about $175 wages apiece since going out on strike November 1, threw their hats in the air when word came that they could go to work Friday morning—that the strike was over. Just then a wire came from their Czar Howat to "wait till he got home." So they meekly did as they were commanded and lost another day's pay, to oblige Alex. It would be interesting to know how many days' salary Howat has lost (?) since November 1.—[Columbus Advocate.

MUSIC AND BOMB-MAKING.

Music and the making of bombs do not go together, and the man who is radically against his government has no music in his soul. These facts are both evident, say reports of those who have investigated the homes of "suspects" for the government.

"No musical instrument, not so much as a harmonica, has ever been found in a home that was raided by government authorities in connection with Bolshevism," says M. M. Roemer, member of a music goods sales corporation.—[New York Mail.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

THE LIBERTY BOND.

I've a hundred-dollar bond that I bought from Uncle Sam when the war across the pond gave this universe a slam. It's a document I prize, with its coupons twenty-four; and I wish, with heartfelt sighs, that I had a dozen more. People try to get my bond, handing me all kinds of bunk, but it won't be sold or pawned or be swapped for any junk. "Come and buy a motor car," says the dealer, bold and brash; "I will take your bond at par, if you'll pay the rest in cash." "I have acres of blue sky in the distances beyond," says the faker, strolling by, "and I'll trade it for your bond." "I've an underwater farm where all kinds of fish are spawned," says the skate whose accents charm; "you may have it for your bond." All the get-rich-quickly sharks come and yammer at my door and I smile at their remarks till their talk becomes a bore. Then I say, "You've cringed and fawned and you've argued and you've lied, all to get my cherished bond with its coupons down the side. But your game's a flimmy flam, and a futile rag you chew; I will trust my Uncle Sam, but I cannot bank on you. Of that document I'm fond," I exclaim, in thunder tones; "no one gets that little bond, which is worth a hundred bones."

FANTASTIC.

Elsie Janis, back from England, said at Bar Harbor:

"Visits to London dressmakers at present are painful affairs. There is really no limit to the fantastic prices they ask."

"A chorus girl friend of mine called on her Dover-street dressmaker before the Ascot races, and, this, she claims, is a true account of their interview:

"'What can you make me an afternoon dress, like the model on the dark manikin, for?'

THE SLUSH VOGUE.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

Well, anyway, that gory war did not make us hard and stern and practical did it? Not on your life. We are all so nice and soft and slushy—sentimentality on a wild and mushy rampage. We adore having our emotions harrowed—preferably over something that doesn't call for any tangible intervention, however. We had to be careful what we waxed slushy over during the war, as it meant backing our emotions with greenbacks and service, which was altogether too exacting.

But now—oh, isn't it thrillingly ghastly? We can get worked up for days together over mentally deficient boy murderers and the baring of the life secrets of their hapless female appendages. We can wallow in the messy lurid details of past immoralities and the sob-sisters are having the time of their lives oozing "psychological" surmises anent the innermost lugubrious dramatic remorses of otherwise mediocre females.

When it isn't murderers, it's bandits. Popular chaps, bandits. Even Doug Fairbanks visits 'em in jail and clasps their hands. And the very newest kind all have wives and innocent babes and sweethearts who insist upon being heroically loyal to the dashing robbers and explaining their innermost heart-throbs to an avid, hungry public.

Fancy fussing over a silly problem like the League of Nations or the high cost of living when the sanity of a rather unpleasant young man is in doubt. Think of the hectic arguments accruing when an episode like his having stolen a piece of plum pie in prison and having eaten it without saying a word is first-class evidence for the defense that his mind can't be normal. And we don't even know who made the pie, at that. It is perfectly thrilling to think that the whole machinery of the law is to be brought to bear to settle this utterly vital matter.

And when it isn't murderers and bandits it's love pirates luridly unfaithful husbands, cheap philanderers, seduced maidenhood, dope fiends, paranoiacs—or triplets. Triplets, under sufficiently adverse circumstances, are good for quite a lengthy emotional shimmie. If they are not, the afternoon papers stand ready to help 'em out with all the imaginative melodramatic sentimentality at their command. Childless millionaire yearners for adoption can be conjured up at a moment's notice.

Love pirates are a delicious form of inexpensive public relish. There is always such a stirring "psychological" problem attached thereto. Did the young woman deliberately set out to rob the wife of the frightfully valuable affections of her erring spouse, or did said erring spouse seduce the otherwise sweet and innocent maiden with his wicked and persistent fascination? The affections of erring spouses, either sex, are always so giddily, dizzily valuable—$50,000 is a conservative estimate. No wonder they make such delectable news heroes and heroines. We love high-priced commodities. I don't believe we should vouchsafe them a quiver if their wronged better half assessed the value of their lost affections at the cost of the last Christmas tie donated in the fullness of faith.

And when there are not enough murderers, bandits, love pirates or triplets to furnish our emotional meat we take to spiritualism, ouija boards, table-rapping — messages from the harassed dead, who can't defend themselves and get saddled with all sorts of dubious sentiments and opinions which they would probably repudiate if they had the chance. Lots of quite reputable ladies and gentlemen who would scorn to enter the tray in a psychological discussion of the comparative morality of the lady friend of a bold bad bandit have taken up communion with the more celebrated residents of the other world as an outlet for the vogue for slush. They simply must be in the movement and there is less social hazard in associating with the departed. One still has to be just a leetle particular about one's visiting list in real life, but there are no such snobby restrictions in spiritualism. All sorts of dubious relatives that one did not necessarily parade in this world for one's social undoing may accord us their ghostly guidance after they have indubitably changed their mortal state. Also, of course, one can meet many of the great celebrities of the past on an equal social footing if one is fortunate in acquiring a really stylish medium. I myself once shared a cryptic message from Gladstone, although I will truthfully admit that Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone never once invited me to a party, although I must have been at least a debutante when the Grand Old Man passed away.

Jolly, isn't it? It would have been perfectly horrid if the war had left us all stern and practical, desperately logical, with a passion for essentials, for righting big national wrongs, for getting down to work and cleaning up the mess without any nonsense; if we had all absorbed a righteous scorn for cheap sentimentality, set our faces against tawdry philandering, developed a grim penchant for law and order—in short, maintained our consciences in high-tension working order and lived up to 'em. Oh, very exacting.

Argument.

Six-year-old Fred was still playing with dolls and father decided to break him of that habit. So one evening he began a long argument on boys who were not manly but insisted on being like little girls and playing with dolls. "Now John A— doesn't play with dolls any more," he ended, "and he isn't as big as you are."

Little Fred clutched his beloved doll still closer in his arms. "But his father don't play with their baby and you do with ours," he returned.

Father smiled. "That's because they haven't any baby," he explained.

"And John hasn't any doll, either," retorted the victorious six-year-old.—[Indianapolis News.

Nineteen-nineteen passed into history, and we must admit it has been a good year for chestnuts.

Among the joy announcements the year 1920 is that the famous blanks for 1919 are ready for distribution.

What a lot of folks are going loose in the community whose sanity is never suspected until they are charged with a felony!

When the result of the vote on Fiume doesn't suit D'Annunzio he simply orders another plebiscite. Takes after the American politician for all the world.

Possibly William Gibbs McAdoo did not care to wear those new pants at the 8th of January inaugural jinks. Since Mac has joined the movies he is a stickler for fine clothes.

The bones of a dinosaur with a neck five feet long, have been discovered covered in Utah. Possibly belonged to some old Mormon trying to keep the low-cut dresses of the time in style once over.

Secretary Lane will accept a position with a Boston firm when he quits the Cabinet, which, it is claimed, will pay him $50,000 a year. Imagine Frank Lane a Bostonian! Can it be possible.

New Zealand must be a real live Ohio sort of place. One day the "wets" win and the next day the "drys" do the clean-up act. Some day we shall know just what we vote on prohibition was.

If President Carranza wants a tire, why don't he start? Surely we are able to see nobody is after him. Carranza, when it comes to quitting a good thing, is a regular like the average Democrat.

The old soldiers are dropping rapidly, Maj.-Gen. Thomas W. Hyde and Rear-Admiral John E. Pillsbury dying in a single day. The Spanish blue is becoming thinner every year. Room for the patriots.

Hope springs eternal, as typified by the statement that old Champ Clark has it in mind to make another attempt for the nomination. A lot of water has passed over the political wheel since 1912. James Beauchamp Clark came near to getting the prize.

Senator Watson of Indiana has his friends must not nominate him for the Presidency. All right, but we heard you the first time he spoke. Possibly Watson has been talking to the political dream book and assured that there was nothing to it so far as his candidacy is concerned.

If the rush continues it will be necessary to organize an additional Federal court to try the alleged violations of the war-time prohibition law. The United States commissioner and the courts are accumulating enough "evidence" to fill the ocean liner. But so much of it evaporates!

The United States Supreme Court is now worrying because it has divulged advance information as to certain decisions has been furnished the public. There always will be leaks in this world. Why does not some of the "evidence" in war-time prohibition prosecutions evaporate through glass bottles?

Mrs. Nellie M. Burger, mother of Harry New, and Mrs. Alice Jones, mother of New's victim, are both distraught and distressed by the terrifying experiences of their sons. Harry New. But Freda Lonergan is mute; from her cold, marble, compressed lips there comes no sound of protest; she is resting in the eternal silence of the stars.

That new Secretary of Commerce, Joshua Willis Alexander, starts out as if he understands business. He declares himself for privately-owned American merchant marine able to carry 60 per cent of the country's foreign trade. He is in favor of sound and conservative methods of building up foreign trade. Congress from Missouri and has some things, it would appear.

The latest thing is to explore terra incognita unmapped regions by means of an airplane. It is announced that in an experiment in Africa the observer got better results with the camera in an hour than a ground party could get in a whole week. It will be interesting to see if at all until the mysteries of the dark continent will be solved. Livingstone, Stanley, Du Chaillu and the rest of them lived too early. The intrepid Andre, who lost his life while trying to solve the story of the Arctic regions with a balloon, was a pioneer in the new achievement.

GOD KNOWS.

There's many a sorrow that can't be told;
Many a tear drop the eyelid must hold,
But a smile like a curtain of blue may hide
The sorrows that also must ever abide.
He has promised to thin, for it shall be sure;
"That round they must be rocks shall endure;
Water ne'er failing in thee shall be given,"
As though from the chalice the rock it were riven.

"Go bury thy sorrows," He bids them all,
As well as He minded the rows that fall.
If thy burdens are heavy or great thy care,
He is ever beside them, to share.

Possibly William Gibbs McAdoo did not care to wear those pajama pants at the 8th of January high jinks. Since Mac has joined the movies he is a stickler for style in clothes.

The bones of a dinosaur, with a neck five feet long, have been discovered in Utah. Possibly belonged to some old Mormon trying to get the low-cut dresses of the time at once over.

Secretary Lane will accept a position with a Boston firm, when he quits the Cabinet, which, it is claimed, will pay him $50,000 a year. Imagine Frank Lane a Bostonian if possible.

New Zealand must be a regular Ohio sort of place. One day the "wets" win and the next day the "drys" do the clean-up act. Some day we shall know just what the vote on prohibition was.

If President Carranza wants to retire, why don't he start? So far as we are able to see nobody is holding him. Carranza, when it comes to quitting a good thing, is a good deal like the average Democrat.

The old soldiers are dropping off rapidly, Maj.-Gen. Thomas W. Bullard and Rear-Admiral John E. Pillsbury dying in a single day. The line in blue is becoming thinner year by year. Room for the patriots, run.

Hope springs eternal, as indicated by the statement that old Champ Clark has it in mind to make another attempt for the nomination. A lot of water has passed over the political wheel since 1912, when James Beauchamp Clark came near to getting the prize.

Senator Watson of Indiana and his friends must not nominate him for the Presidency. All right, Jim, we heard you the first time you spoke. Possibly Watson looked to the political dream book and figured that there was nothing doing so far as his candidacy is concerned.

If the rush continues it will be necessary to organize an additional Federal court to try the alleged violations of the war-time prohibition law. The United States commissioner and the courts are accumulating enough "evidence" to float an ocean liner. But so much of it evaporates!

The United States Supreme Court is now worrying because it has alleged advance information as to certain decisions has been furnished the public. There always will be leaks in this world. Why does one of the "evidence" in war-time prohibition prosecutions evaporate through glass bottles?

Mrs. Nellie M. Burger, mother of Harry New, and Mrs. Alice Lemmon, mother of New's victim, are prostraught and distressed by the horrifying experiences of the trial of Harry New. But Freda Lemmon, mute; from her cold, marble, unmoving lips there comes no sound of protest; she is resting in the eternal silence of the stars.

That new Secretary of Commerce, Joshua Willis Alexander, starts out as if he understood his business. He declares himself for a privately-owned American merchant marine able to carry 60 per cent of the country's foreign trade and in favor of sound and constructive methods of building up foreign trade. Alexander served seven terms in Congress from Missouri and learned some things, it would appear.

The latest thing is to explore hitherto unmapped regions by means of an airplane. It is announced that in an experiment in Africa a observer got better results within an hour than a ground party might do in a whole week. It will be some time at all until the mysteries of the dark continent will be solved. Livingstone, Stanley, Du Chaillu and the rest of them lived too early. The intrepid Andre, who lost his life trying to solve the story of the Arctic regions with a balloon, was a pioneer in the new achievement.

GOD KNOWS.

There's many a sorrow that cannot be told;
Many a tear drop the eyelids will hold,
But a smile like a curtain of love may hide
The sorrows that else might pierce ever abide.
He has promised to thee, thy burden shall be sure;
"That round thee munitions of rocks shall endure;
Water ne'er failing in thee shall be given,"
As though from the cleft in the rock it were riven.

"Go bury thy sorrows," He knows them all,
As well as He mindeth the sparrows that fall.
If thy burdens are heavy or grow with care,
He is ever beside thee, thy troubles to share.

COULTER'S—Seventh Street at Olive — JANUARY WHITE SALE — Seventh Street at Olive—COULTER'S

Roads of Whole Southland Overflow with Throngs Drawn by Crown City's Floral Fiesta

GREATEST OF PASADENA CROWDS VIEWS PAGEANT

of a galaxy of beautiful floats. Twenty bands—municipal bands, military bands, fraternal bands, school bands, bands of girls and bands of Scotchmen, were scattered throughout. And in each of the six divisions were troupes of horsemen and horsewomen of all nations. In the divisions were the following aggregations:

First division: Standard bearers, band, grand marshal, president and directors of the rose tournament, Mayor and Mrs. Snyder, Board of Supervisors and Pasadena Commissioners.

Second division: Band, floats entered by civic bodies.

Third division: Band, Board of Trade, merchants' associations; Tournament of Roses officials, and entries made by hotels.

Fourth division: Band and entries of a score or more schools.

Fifth division: Private decorated autos, commercial floats and floats other than commercial.

Sixth division: Novelty floats, historical floats, horse vehicles, pony vehicles, saddle horses, pony riders and the Pasadena fire department.

Rose Tournament and police officials estimated the crowd was the greatest that has ever witnessed any tournaments of the past, greater by from 50,000 to 100,000 people.

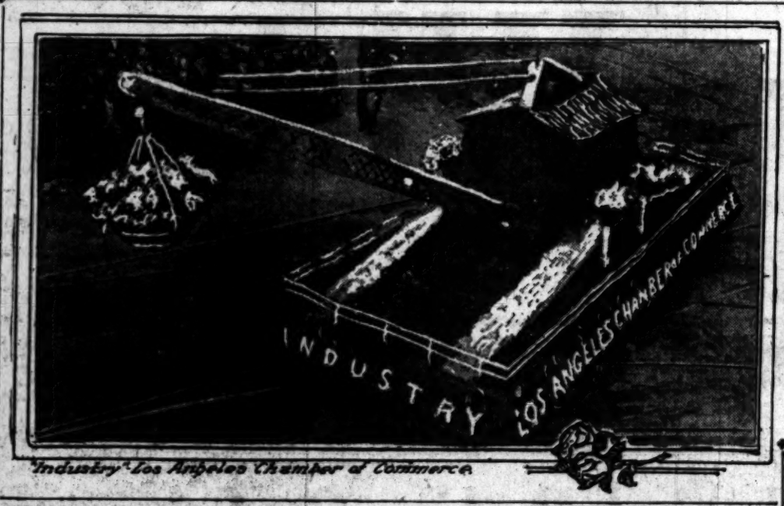
Automobiles of the visitors occupied almost every available space and untenanted lot on the side streets from the Orange Grove avenue district to Tournament Park, where the Oregon-Harvard football game was played.

Crowds lined the streets from the formation points in the lower sections of Orange Grove avenue to Tournament Park, where the parade disbanded. Store display windows, the upper stories of buildings, roofs, temporary reviewing stands and private lawns and verandas were packed.

One hundred uniformed police officers from Los Angeles assisted the Pasadena police in handling the traffic. The Los Angeles police were commanded by Capt. McDowell of Central station. While tens of thousands of people were arriving by motor in the morning, three-car electric trains were discharging passengers in Pasadena every few minutes up to the time of the parade.

In the interval between the parade and the football game, the Pasadena restaurants and hotels were jammed to the doors, while every few feet were the ever-present hot-dog venders. Many of th tournament visitors spread table cloths in the parks for picnic lunches.

And at the close of the day of pleasure, every pilgrim of the cult of beauty was thoroughly satisfied.



"Industry" Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

Cleopatra's Barge, Pasadena Auto Dealers' Association.

THE PAGEANT IN DETAIL.

Here are the Rose Tourney Entries in the Order in Which they Came.

Prepared for any situation that might arise, but found that members of the Council appeared in their ordinary "Kelly" and so he didn't undo the bandbox.

CITY COUNCIL.

Two cars carried the nine members of the Los Angeles City Council. Each car used pepper boughs for body covering, and in this background of vivid green were placed poinsettias and yellow dahlias. American colors were used for streamers at the standards, which bore royal purple banners carrying the wording, in old gold, "Los Angeles City Council."

In these cars were Councilmen Cheney, Criswell, Farmer, Fleming, Langdon, Mallard, Sanborn, Wheeler and Boyle Workman.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce entered one of the most elaborate floats in the procession. A huge crescent of gold and dusty millers swung from side to side as it went through the streets. The powerhouse in the center was of flowers and St. Helena's plant with two roads leading up to the sides. These represented commerce and industry. From the end of the frame hung a large basket filled with poinsettias. On each end of the float the words, Commerce and Industry.

BURBANK PLEASES.

One of the sensations of the parade was the float entered by Burbank. On a base of sweet peas rested a massive key about to enter the keyhole. The key was in the center of potted ferns and tropical plants and on it was emblazoned in pink carnations on a white background the word "Burbank." Over the keyhole was the word "Prosperity." The float was greeted with applause along the line of march.

EAGLE ROCK.

On two lattice-work swings covered with smilax sat four little girls from the City of Eagle Rock. The words "The Valley of Happiness" were set in the base in pink flowers. Dusty miller furnished the background dotted with acacia. Silver acacia made linens for the base.

FOOTBALL HEROES.

The float of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce featured the husky and victorious football players of the Long Beach High School, who held State honors. The float had a base of smilax, dotted with brilliant poinsettias. From this arose a stairway on which four pretty girls represented the four great victories of the Long Beach team this year. The football players were on benches or lying on the sward in characteristic poses. Green and gold, the high school colors, predominated the generald decorative scheme.

WHEEL OF PROGRESS.

One of the most elaborate floats in the great parade was that entered by the Lamanda Park Board of Trade and Parent-Teacher Association. It represented the forward movement of the wheel of progress. The float had a base of pepper boughs. A pyramid of smilax arose in the center of the float, surmounted by a great American eagle. The wheel of progress was emblasoned with brilliant blossoms and greenery, and at the rear of the float a horn of plenty poured forth its riches.

Lillian Melick and Frances Webster, clad in white, represented allegorical figures on this float, supporting the horn of plenty and holding forth trays of rare blossoms. On the side of the float Chinese lilies were used to work out the wording "Lamanda Park."

AIRPLANE OF KELP.

A large airplane of kelp swept down the street filled with beautiful girls. The machine was entered by Redondo Beach. The seaweed hung from the sides and glistened in the sun. The representative maids of the beach city were Misses Carmelita Bruno, Edna Richardson, Isabell Springer and Ines Bryson. All were dressed in aviator costume.

CATALINA ISLAND.

Three things in which Catalina excels the world were represented on the float entered by the Avalon Chamber of Commerce. They were bathing girls, fishing and holly. Four of the sea nymphs, Misses Esther Albert, Dorothy Windle, Margaret Lockhard and Helen Briesno, sat on the side of the machine in bathing suits. Two men sat in a large floral boat of white, fishing. Sprays of Catalina holly decorated the end. The ship of white was the reproduction of the fishing launches used on the island.

NATIONAL ORANGE SHOW.

San Bernardino Board of Trade entry called especial attention to the national orange show, which is an annual feature of that city. The float carried a pergola with the timbers entwined by smilax. The same material was used for the base. A lattice of gilded work enclosed portions of the pergola, and in this, admist the smilax, were hundreds of pure white carnations. These flowers were also used in the wording, "Orange Show" and "San Bernardino."

Four young women in costumes of orange and blue, and wearing broad-brimmed hats of the same colors, were stationed on this float. They were Estalle Starks, Martha Stuckie, Laura Andersen and Verna Herkelrath.

FROM SIERRA MADRE.

Five of Sierra Madre's fairest, dressed in yellow, sat in the center of the float entered by the foothill city. The machine in which they rode was covered with separated ferns which effectively set off the yellow decorations of marigold.

MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION.

Carrying out their slogan of "Pasadena First," the Merchants' Association of the Crown City used the words on the side of their float, which was one of the most elaborate in the parade. The crown and the key, the two typical marks of the city, were worked out in flowers. Carnations, poinsettias and white roses were the most prominent decorations.

MARYLAND HOTEL.

The Maryland Hotel's entry was an automobile with a mass of green covering. Flowers artistically arranged lent color. In the machine, dressed in white, were four members of Pasadena's winter colony, Misses Helen Rahne, Norma Keech, Marion Sellhimer and Lillian Coulston.

HUNTINGTON HOTEL.

Lavender and green made a most effective combination in the float of the Huntington Hotel. The same colors were used in the costumes of the girls riding in the float. Masses of smilax and other greenery were used for the base of the float, and hundreds of clusters of Scottish heather bloom were interwoven.

HOTEL RAYMOND.

The Hotel Raymond brought the twitter of birds to spectators as its splendid entry passed along the route. The central figure on the float beside the pergola was a huge gilt bird cage containing thirty-six canary birds. The pergola contained the birds' heads. Each young woman sat in a swing. They came from the Agnes Woodward Whistling Schol of Los Angeles and whistled bird calls.

The horses drawing the float were decorated with smilax. The young women were Nina Kellog Norris, Mary L. Hand, Gladys Krafft, Ruth Dougherty, Irma Richter and Leola McDowell.

FAIRMONT AND GREEN.

The Fairmont and Green hotels were beautiful creations of the designer's art, containing women who threw roses and carnations along the route, typical of the prodigality of the Southland.

PASADENA SCHOOLS.

The schools' entry was magnificent. The class of 1923, Pasadena High School, symbolized Emerson's advice to hitch your wagon to a star by a large silver star which seemed to draw the flora wagon. Blue and white, the sophomore class colors, were used in the decorations. Two pages heralded the approach of the float. They were Elizabeth Wheeler and Margaret Foster. The arts were represented by five symbolic figures. Ruth Quigley was Painting; Margaret Sears, Literature; Helen Pfusch, Justice; Katherine Wornfell, Music; Ruth Thompson carried a trumpet.

"The Ship of State" was the name of the entry of the Longfellow School. Green and gold, the class colors, were augmented by the rich display of marigold and greenery. Two pages announced the passage of the float. The ship carried as passengers Dolly Fitzsimmons, Bernice Norton, Eunice Erickson, Hazel Kay, Frances Scoville, Ruth Ferguson, Louise McKinney, Ruth Baxter, Enid Aumick, Lois Greenlee, Grace Thompkins and Lois Shackleford. The pages were Marvin Kane and Walter Musselman.

The John Muir School was represented by a huge floral canoe of marigolds and greenery draped with purple tulle. Four girls were white middies with yellow collars, purple ties and yellow Tam O'Shanters. They were Alleen Struble, Vera Pratt, Zeruah Stratton and Eva Puffer.

CAMPING SCENE.

The Jefferson School had a float and twenty-four marching cadets. The entry typified a camping scene in California. A tent was erected on the float, and there was a campfire around which were grouped these girls: Virginia Carpenter, Pauline Chapon, Linnie Gibbs, Dorothy Gipe, Katherine Cougar, Dorothy Huff and Florence Paddock. Geraniums formed the floral background.

The car entered by the Junior Board of Trade of the High School was a blaze of white and pink carnations. The girl occupants were white frocks and white picture hats. They were Lehmann Hisey, Jane Black, Alice Thorngreen, Esther Larson, Sop'a Black, Charles Ambler and William Bickley.

The High School Commissioners carried a bulldog in their handsome car, which was decorated with white and red carnations. Dainty ribbons were artistically looped over the car.

JAPANESE FLOAT.

The Seniors, handsome girls, gave a Japanese effect to their float. The floral effect was due to pink carnations, Japanese lilies and greenery. The outriders wore pink.

The Juniors represented butterflies in a dainty manner. Jane Walker, 3 years old, was the fairy driving a butterfly. Four girls composed a floral bouquet. A dainty conceit was a cocoon in which fluttered human butterflies.

The class of 1923 had a baby carriage effect for their float, the color scheme being pink carnations and greens. Two girls sat in the float dressed in baby bib and tucker, wearing the typical baby stare. Six girls walked, rolling hoops. One was a nurse.

The Grant school went back to the time of George Washington for an inspiration. The float was decorated in heather, acacia and greens. The occupants wore dresses of the time of Washington.

ALTADENA'S FLOAT.

Altadena's float was a beautiful floral basket of roses, containing four little girls. The name was picked out on the side of the basket in pink.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL.

The Washington school's entry was in blue and silver. Pepper branches dyed a brilliant blue with lines in silver magnolia leaves were the principal decorations. Children of the school were on the float.

BOARD OF TRADE.

A large float of yellow chrysanthemums dotted with bunches of violets and blue corn flowers was entered by the Pasadena Board of Trade. Beneath a canopy of flowers and smilax were four young women of the Crown City. They were Misses Marjorie Test, Helen Barker, Suzanne Wadsworth and Dorothy Nay. A herald carried the board's banner in front of the float.

PASADENA PIONEERS.

Gold and gray were the prevailing colors in the two floats entered by the Pasadena Pioneers. Desspt holly and marigold were used to striking advantage and the American colors were given a most effective setting. Over each car arose a silver star of the west. The Pasadena Pioneers date back to 1874.

In one of the vehicles rode patriarchs of Pasadena, and in the other were pioneer Pasadena women, holding parasols of smilax and marigold. In the floats were Mrs. Helen A. Elliott, recently made president emeritus of the association; Ethelyn Brown, Mrs. Jannie Ford, Mrs. Jessie Crank, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Giddings, Maj. C. M. Skillen, J. H. Baker, W. E. Cooley, Prof. M. M. Parker and J. A. Blumve. The committee in charge of this effective entry was composed of Mrs. Fred Harris and Mrs. J. A. Elms, wife of the new president of the association.

OCCIDENTAL COLLEGE.

A huge bronze tiger, quite lifelike, typical of the tenacity of the students of that institution, was prominently displayed on the float of Occidental College. Seven girls in cap and gown symbolized the student life. The float was artistically decorated with pepper boughs. The college flag, orange and black, was prominently displayed.

GLENDALE'S ENTRY.

A float that was greatly admired all along the line of parade, winning first prize in class A, was that entered by Glendale. Mountains formed the background, violets, purple sweet peas and other dark flowers being used in this effect. There was a real waterfall, and in the valley was a charming bungalow, surrounded by flowers and bearing orange trees, while a fountain played in the foreground. Snow peas in the background were made with white carnations.

THE VENETIAN BARGE.

The yellow and red of marigolds and carnations was used with masses of green in the Venetian barge float of the Tournament of Roses Association, while along the sides of the barge 10,000 bunches of violets were placed. On the prow of the barge a floral bird of paradise rested on a gilded branch of a tree, and lighted lamps were suspended with ropes of pink carnations from the standards at the four corners of the float.

Standard bearers preceded the float, carrying the banners of the Tournament of Roses. The Venetian women were Miss Martha Switzer, Miss Kathryn Pattee, Miss Marjorie MacDonald, Miss Mary Dunn, Miss Grace Pike, Miss Ethel Landreth and Miss Orissa Van Brekion. The garland bearers were Robert Waterhouse, Elmer Beckman, Howard Walker, Shelton Gordon, Fred Marshall, Howard Stranahan, Truman Johnson and Howard Morgan.

CITY EMBLEM.

One of the most attractive auto entries was that of Will M. Glass. A ladder of white was erected at the rear of the vehicle, with a crown and key near the top of the ladder, emblematic of Pasadena, crown of the valley. Vivian Glass, the little daughter of the owner of this float, appeared as the "Health Angel," robed in pink and with pink wings.

Red and white roses, carnations and orange blossoms were combined effectively with masses of green in the decorations. Others in the car were Mrs. Sallie L. Davis, Miss Eleanor Eleeth and Miss Emma Bates, in costumes of pink and with orange blossoms and roses entwined in their crowns, and with Mr. Glass sat Charles Harris and D. H. Bradley.

ART COMPANY'S FLOAT.

Five girls dressed as artists rode in the float of the International Art Company. The float was of smilax with quantities of pink carnations arranged about it.

HUGE FLOWER BASKET.

The entry of the Pacific Coast Furniture Warehousemen's Association was a huge basket of poinsettias and smilax. The handle of the basket was of green with a line of the red flowers.

PEPPER AND BERRIES.

The machine of P. H. Georghigan was covered with pepper boughs and the red berries reflected the brightness of the sun. On the running board sat a beautiful dog.

FILM COMPANY'S ENTRY.

The entry of the Prisma Film Company was decorated in sweet peas, roses and red carnations over a body of smilax. The name Prisma was in bright red and was effectively displayed on the green. A little fairy and a Scotch laddie sat in the center of the float.

IN ROSE SUNBURST.

A large float made of sunburst roses over a mass of dusty miller and white sage proved a very effective float. Bows of purple tulle gave an added touch of color. In the machine were Walter Wilson, Mrs. Wilson and their two daughters, Betty and Wilma.

ELECTRIC COUPE.

In a beautifully decorated electric coupe, covered with smilax and asparagus fern dotted with pink carnations, sat Mrs. Arthur Kendall, driving the entry of the Kendall Auto Company. With her were Mrs. Kenneth Newell and Mrs. Tyler Parker, Jr.

HEATHER AND LILIES.

The Misses Lincoln of Pasadena, drove an automobile decorated with Chinese lilies, with a background of Scotch heather. The lavender and the white and gold made a very effective combination.

AMERICAN LEGION.

Members of the Pasadena Post, American Legion, marched in uniform, carrying the banner of the Legion and the American colors. They were greeted with applause all along the line.

G.A.R., MEN.

The Pasadena G.A.R. had an elaborate float, carrying numerous veterans of the Civil War, and honors were divided between these men and those who have lately returned from the world war. Carnations, roses and smilax were used in profusion on the G.A.R. float. Leading was a fife and drum corps playing martial music. On the float was a drill team composed of veterans, including Robert Lyon, post commander; J. M. Burlingame, F. Nelson, C. M. Pratt, W. M. Smith, W. S. Springer, R. C. Conert, and O. D. Heald. W. H. Stevens was the flagbearer, and C. F. Seamon carried the banner.

"MISS PASADENA."

Industrial progress was the theme set forth by the float of the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce. Red and white carnations by the thousands were used in the float, which was twenty feet in length. The body of the float was of desert grass, edged with smilax and potted plants. On a raised section "Miss Pasadena," Miss Minnie Born, sat gowned in white and wearing a golden crown. She held the key to "The Crown City of the Valley."

Miss Helena Price, in pink, represented "Beauty;" Miss Marie Jeanperette, in lavender, "Culture;" Miss Margrite Bean, in yellow, "Plenty;" Miss Helen Shafer, in blue, "Progress." Workmen in typical costume, posed as the various industries. Owen D. Hale was the representative of "Industry."

BY THE Y.W.C.A.

"The Blue Triangle and Girls from All Nations," was the subject of the float entered by the Young Woman's Christian Association. Corn flowers, forming a large blue triangle, gave the key to the float. Miss Fern Bouck, dressed in white and wearing a crown of blue corn flowers, represented the spirit of the association. All nations were represented on the float by men and women in costume.

Girls walked beside the float, carrying the association banner. Four outriders represented the four directions in which the association work has been extended. From Miss Bouck's hands through the triangle extended long streamers of blue representing the various nations.

SAN DIEGO'S ENTRY.

Dr. V. C. Heilbron was in charge of the entry from San Diego, a dainty basket formed of yellow roses. The name, San Diego, was picked out in white carnations along the side of the car.

VETERANS IN LINE.

The United War Veterans, commanded by Capt. W. H. Reeve, rode in a handsomely decorated car. They typified all branches of the service. The eagle was represented in all his glory, and the American flag gave a splash of patriotic color to the float.

VALLEY AND MOUNTAINS.

Glendale's valleys and mountains were splendidly symbolized in that city's float. A miniature mountain was capped with snow, water trickled down its side, and a fountain bubbled on the front of the float. A bungalow in California style occupied a part of the flort. Roses and other flowers seemed to grow right on the float. It was an entry that evoked applause.

NEEDLEWORK EXHIBIT.

The International Art Needlework Company entered a car through Miss Ella Nielson, head of the company. Five young women in costumes of a past age represented the teachers of the needlework in Sweden, Iceland, Denmark and Spain. Green velvet embroidery concealed the float, which was further beautified with pink flowers and roses.

BY LEADERS' CLUB.

The Y.M.C.A. entered a float on which rode members of the Leaders' Club. The decorations were poinsettias over a background of pepper branches. The red triangle of the institution was in poinsettias, with a boarder of Chinese lilies.

NOTED HORSES SEEN.

The exhibition of fine horses and splendid horsemanship was never excelled. Mrs. Anna G. Stevens rode Cochise, a prize winner in Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

R. L. English entered Sterling, ridden by B. S. Vinton, and Pilot, ridden by W. W. Hook. Mrs. W. W. Hook entered Flossie, who has taken many prizes.

The Glendora foothill school entered its mounts ridden by twelve boys in white caps. The riding teacher who accompanied them was Mlle. Naitta Ecarte.

Betsy Ross, a Kentucky horse, was entered by G. R. Wellbaum, and proved a splendid mount.

IN A STUNNING GARB.

A color scheme of brown and red and green was presented in the horsewoman's section of the parade by Miss Josephine Heifman of Los Angeles, who appeared in a chocolate-colored riding habit on a mount covered with a blanket of smilax ropes and dotted with brilliant crimson carnations.

DRIVES PRIZE HORSE.

Charles W. Winter of Alhambra had the honor of driving the famous brown stallion, Alhambra Prince, who was a prize-winner at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. The stallion wore a huge collar of roses and ivy, and the same materials were used in the decoration of the cart to which he was driven.

PRIZE-WINNING SHETLAND.

The brown Shetland pony of Hugh V. Harris, of 1212 West Avenue 63, Los Angeles, which has won first prizes in the last two tournaments, was again in the parade yesterday, and made a striking figure. The 15-year-old lad who owns this pony drove him to a buggy trimmed in smilax and roses, and had as his companion Hope Bailey, an 8-year-old neighbor.

HARVARD COLORS.

In striking green riding habit, Miss Mildred Raymond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Raymond, rode a white horse draped in crimson, in honor of Harvard. Red roses were used in abundance and the bridle was wrapped with strands of smilax.

PASADENA FIREMEN.

Closing the long list of entries was the float of the Pasadena firemen. Chief Coop's car was decorated in red and white sweet peas and smilax. Assistant Chief Fuller rode with Capt. Theodore Skallerud and William Fencher in a car decked with roses and red geraniums. Lieut. Beck was in charge of the engine, which was buried in flowers.

The squad wagon was in charge of Lieut. Reister. The eagle and the flag were used in the decorations. "Tom," the veteran fire horse, was driven by Al Anderson. He drew the old hose cart which had its scars concealed by flowers.

IN A VICTORY FLOAT.

Mrs. D. A. Terhune represented "Victory" on the float of the Southern California W.C.T.U. She wore a flowing robe and her bronze hair hung loose. In her hand she carried a flaming torch. A lamp in front of the float typified light to victory. The decorations of the float were white carnations, Chinese lilies and smilax. Three boys carried banners.

SNOW AND ICE.

Amid the profusion of roses and carnations, the entry of Big Bear Lake Tavern stood unique with its replica of snow and ice. A great mound of snow and ice, pine cones and boughs made the picture complete of the famous region in winter time. There was a toboggan, upon which sported Ruth Clement and Betty James. The front of the float contained a live bear, which rolled his head and seemed to enjoy being in the limelight. The spectators were pelted with snowballs. A hunter with a bag of ducks stood in the rear of the float.

PARADE NOTES.

The Salvation Army showed en route a huge doughnut, smaller samples of which were served to the soldiers in France.

Bertha Bolyard typified Cleopatra in an Egyptian entry. The float was in the form of a barge.

A handsome automobile exhibit was occupied by Mrs. Kenneth Newell, Mrs. Tyler Parker and Mrs. Arthur C. Kendler. It was a floral beauty.

The Bankers' Association decorated its car in pink carnations, smilax and heather. Eight young women rode in it.

Walter Wilson and the family automobile was ablaze with sunburst roses, white sage, dusty miller and roses.

P. H. Geighigan had his prize collie, "Boy," on his entry, which was loaded with pepper boughs, myrtle and asparagus ferns.

The latest thing in tractors was the entry of the Southern Border Motor Company.

Yvonne Jaeger typified the Oregon football team in a dainty creation suggestive of the gridiron.

The Crown City Riding School had an entry of sixteen horses decorated with roses and carnations.

BIG BALL ENDS PROGRAMME.

Pasadena's rose tournament was wound up in a blaze of glory, lights, wonderful gowns and beautiful women at the annual tournament ball last night at the Hotel Maryland.

The ball is always the concluding feature of the tournament and was marked this season by a greater attendance than in the past. Instead of being held in the hotel ballroom, the number of celebrants made it necessary to utilize the huge dining-room of the hotel, following dinner. The ball began at 9 p.m.

The hotel was gorgeously decorated for the occasion, colors of Oregon and Harvard being effectively used.

Preceeding the ball a tournament dinner was held at the Maryland, at which winter sojourners from many parts of the country and tournament visitors from Los Angeles, Long Beach, San Diego, Santa Barbara, Riverside, San Francisco and many other places, as well as Pasadena, entertained at dinner parties. Tables were set in the palm-room and the grill, as well as the main dining-room.

The Maryland has been the headquarters of the University of Oregon football team during its stay in Southern California and the members of that team and the members of the Harvard team, who have been stopping at the Raymond, were guests of the tournament directors at the dinner.

ACCIDENTS AND CRIME MISSING.

Few Untoward Incidents Mar Great Rose Tourney Day Despite Crowds.

Although Pasadena entertained her greatest New Year Day crowd yesterday, the occasion was marked by fewer accidents and less crime than on almost any other Rose Tournament Day in history.

Chief of Police McIntyre, of Pasadena, and the Nick Harris Detective Agency, in charge of the force of anti-pickpocket sleuths on the grounds, reported that up to 7 o'clock last evening there had not been one report of a pocket-picking nor of a house-burglary. Thirteen automobiles were stolen from the parking area around Tournament Park in the afternoon. No accidents were reported from the grounds or from the route to and from the park, in spite of the almost unprecedented jam.

But one accident occurred during the Rose Tournament parade, when Mrs. John Eels, of Anaheim, was thrown from her mount and slightly injured, a child near by also suffering small scratches. In spite of this mishap Mrs. Eels carried off first prize in the novelty mount class.

GLENDALE WINS FIRST PRIZE.

Rose Tournament Spectators See Finest Float Entries, History of Pasadena Classic; Announce Awards in Many Classes at Park.

The city of Glendale won the first prize for floats entered by civic bodies in the Tournament of Roses parade at Pasadena yesterday.

The prize awards in all the classes were made at Tournament Park, where the parade disbanded, and were presented by Mrs. R. C. Bartow, secretary of the tournament association. The names of the judges are never announced.

The number of entries was the largest in the history of the tournament, totaling 138. Unfortunately, many of the floats were late in getting to the mobilization points on South Orange Grove avenue, and therefore could not be included in the competition for prizes. Under the rules of the tournament, no entries not in their places at 9:30 a.m. are considered by the judges. Some of the floats among them extraordinarily beautiful ones, did not get in line until nearly 10:30 a.m.

NOTED JEW VISITOR HERE

"The Jewish homeland in Palestine is an established fact," said Yehudah Barak, of Jerusalem, official lecturer and representative of the Zion Organization of America who arrived here last night, and is at the Alexandria. He brings the latest news of the progress made in establishing the Jewish homeland and during his stay here will deliver several lectures.

"The greatest mass immigration ever known is now in progress," said Mr. Barak, "in the movement of Jews into Palestine. There are 8,000,000 Jews of Eastern Europe who have no other home open to them but Palestine. In the Ukraine alone since January 1 last, more than 100,000 Jews were massacred. The condition of the Jews under the Russian Bolsheviki is terrible, but if the reactionaries win, the Jews in Russia will be made the scapegoats, and their only salvation is to get into Palestine as soon as possible." Mr. Barak predicted that there will be a million Jews in Jerusalem within ten years.

Since Gen. Allenby entered Jerusalem in November, 1917, Palestine has been administered by the British military authorities, and Mr. Barak especially asked to have it clear to the people of Los Angeles that the Zionist movement is not concerned with the political situation in Palestine, that Zionists desire to have that country come under British mandate for the present, and that the sole object of the movement is to provide homes for the homeless Jews of Europe, that growth, development and success of the plan depends upon the present and aid extended by the Jews of America, Mr. Barak said.

CENSUS "HOME" HERE; LEGAL RESIDENCE DOESN'T MATTER

When the census enumerator comes to visit you remember your "usual home" is in Los Angeles, in spite of the fact that you may have a "legal residence" in your old home State.

The census doesn't care about your "legal residence"—it is concerned only with your present "home." Naturally, if you live in Los Angeles your "home" is right here for the purpose of the census.

Everyone is anxious to have every resident of Los Angeles included in the official count of the population. The census will start work today and in order to assist them the Chamber of Commerce has appointed a special committee to see that every resident of the city knows what answers to give to questions the enumerators are authorized to ask.

Thousands of persons who came here from other States maintain a "legal residence" elsewhere. Many of these have property interests back East or do not wish to change their legal residence because they want to avoid jury service or for other reasons of their own. This does not prevent them from having their homes in Los Angeles for the purpose of the census.

Your "legal residence" has nothing to do with the case. The enumerator will ask you where your "home" is. You should answer "Los Angeles" if you are now residing here.

Another point is that a canvass of voters, entirely separate from the census, will be started today, also. So in the next few days residents may expect a call not only from the census enumerator but from a representative of the Registrar of Voters. The latter is concerned only with those legally qualified to vote here and for the purpose of voting to do with the census. You may tell the census enumerator that your "home" is here and the representative of the Registrar of Voters that your "legal residence" is in your old home State.

Enumerators in past have had much difficulty with persons who refuse to answer questions. Arrests will be made where it is necessary to use such means to enable the enumerators to obtain answers to the questions they are authorized to ask.

HARVARD WINS BY A POINT.

Oregon's Showing a Triumph for Coach Shy Huntington and His Helpers.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Oregon lost but was not caught in a Crimson cataclysm and defeat as many had feared. Not [illegible] Harvard, oldest guardian of eastern football reclaimed the continental championship by a single point. Oregon, traditional Titan among [illegible], was forced to fight for football life.

LARGELY TECHNICAL.

Harvard, hoary with Goliathian [illegible] here, defeated these northern wonders of the West, 7 to 6, after bruising, exhausting battle in which honors were so even [illegible] victory seemed largely technical.

The Crimson line remained [illegible], and that in itself was [illegible] to an overwhelming [illegible] from the Harvard viewpoint.

An early three-point lead, was [illegible] when Harvard, on a pair [illegible] passes, Murray to Casey, and [illegible] run by Church, put [illegible] over the Lemon-Yellow goal. Oregon countered with a second-[illegible] kick, putting the score [illegible] to 6 basis. This was in the [illegible] half, and the score hung on [illegible] the balance until the end.

SUPERIOR KICKING.

Oregon owes its points to superior kicking. Without the skilled [illegible] of Steers and Manerud, each [illegible] drove a drop kick between [illegible] posts, it would have [illegible] tucked. And yet strangely, it [illegible] after a double failure in this department which cost Oregon victory. In the final quarter within [illegible] space of five minutes both [illegible] and Manerud missed drop [illegible] from an easy range. Had [illegible] of them succeeded his fame [illegible] have gone down through vales [illegible] history as the man who defeated Harvard, monarch of eastern [illegible].

The battle swayed uncertainly in the first quarter. Each team drove the ball down to a point within shooting distance of the goal posts, and each tried drop kicks which failed. Ralph Horween tried for a drop kick, and the kick was blocked by charging Oregon players who ripped through the heavy Crimson line. Soon after this the giant Horween went out with a splintered collar bone and dislocated shoulder. Bill Steers tried from the forty-yard line, and while getting the ball away with his foot, it went wide.

ANOTHER ATTEMPT.

He repeated his attempt. This was the second play of the second quarter. This time his aim was true, but his foot rather unsteady. He sent the ball over with a spiral, and was fortunate to make it. A few minutes later Steers was completely knocked out when heavily tackled by three men, and assisted from the field. "Skeet" Manerud, a midget in moleskins, shot into the quarter-backs position. After one failure from the fifty-yard line, Manerud duplicated the achievement of Steers, and sent the ball sailing over the bar from the thirty-yard line. In the interim, however, Harvard had scored. The kick by Steers which put Oregon in front goaded the Crimson athletes to an effort out of proportion to their now waning strength, and they took toll of the Lemon-Yellow for the only touchdown of the game, converting the goal.

TERRIFIC EFFORT.

Following the two tries at field goals by Oregon in the final quarter, Harvard gaining possession on its own ten-yard line, with a last Herculean effort drove and passed the ball until it rested on the Oregon two-yard line. With this distance to go and only one down remaining, the other Horween plank threw himself blindly at the line of deep blue. This line, which had been bending, suddenly became taut and unyielding. The catapulting colossus had

SAN DIEGO (Cal.) Jan. 1.—Pulling a stroke of forty-two to the minute, the crew from the United States scout cruiser Birmingham today defeated the crew from the scout cruiser Salem in a race of 1½ miles, for twelve-oared cutters on San Diego Bay. It is reported that more than $14,000 changed hands on the event and in addition to receiving 10 per cent. of this the winning crew will also get $2000 from their defeated rivals.

The Birmingham victory was accomplished through the superior condition of its oarsmen. At the finish line the victorious crew led the Salem's cutter by ten lengths, and the time was announced as 11 minutes and 45 seconds. Thousands of spectators watched the event and the finish was enlivened by the blowing of whistles on every craft in the harbor.

GAME'S COLORFUL SETTING.

Huge Crowd Turns Out for East vs. West Football Match—Military Touch.

BY CHARLES F. HAYDEN.

A total attendance of 32,000 people, officers and men of the army and navy, beautifully gowned women, a sea of eager faces, colorful pennants, waving in air, and a typical balmy Southern California midwinter day, contributed to make the annual football classic of the Tournament of Roses Association a brilliantly successful event.

AN INSPIRATION.

The occasion itself was an inspiration. Harvard University, departing from time-honored traditions of many generations, had sent its unbeaten football warriors more than 3000 miles across the country to compete with the sturdy sons of Oregon, the big northern university that three years ago sent back the pride of Pennsylvania decisively beaten.

It was an event and a setting that no other State in the Union could match. The game itself from the kick-off to the dramatic moment when the referee's whistle ended the contest a few inches from the Oregon goal line, with Harvard a winner by a single point, was filled with breathtaking thrills, but the event, as a whole, partaking of national importance, almost overshadowed the athletic contest.

MOST NUMEROUS.

Oregon supporters appeared to be most numerous and the Lemon Yellow pennants predominated. But Harvard was cheered on by thousands of Crimson rooters, led by yell leaders who graduated from the halls of Cambridge long since.

Interest in the game made it apparent a month ago that the demand for tickets would be far greater than the number of seats. The stands were extended to provide for 10,000 additional people, but every one of the 32,000 seats was taken and thousands of people were turned away.

Notwithstanding the size of the crowd there was little trouble or discomfort. This was partly due to the big force of ushers and policemen stationed all around the field and partly because a big percentage of people went early. Half an hour before the game began the stands were well filled. Bands were playing and cheer leaders were working up enthusiasm.

MILITARY TOUCH.

A strong military touch was given

Harvard's Crack Half Back Makes a Great Run.

Oregon's Defeat Centered on this Desperate Rush.

Northerner's Superior Condition was Apparent.

BY PAUL LOWRY.

Freddie Church, straddling through a mixed mass of players on a wide end run, snipped off the distance that meant victory for Harvard over Oregon yesterday. The score was 7 to 6. Church's dash was for only 10 yards, measured straight down the field, but before he had stretched his long limbs to a point directly behind the goal posts he had covered something like 70 yards.

Church's run was one of those thrilling occurrences that make football. Oregon had drawn first blood, when Bill Steers, standing on Harvard's 25-yard-line, had smashed the ball squarely between the uprights. Harvard immediately got down to business and packed the oval to the Oregon 13-yard-line by clever use of the forward pass, Murray to Casey.

STARTS ON TOUR.

A 3-yard gain by Arnold Horween and an Oregon offside put the leather on the 10-yard line, from where Church started on his tour around the Lemon-Yellow right end. The play began at a point about 15 yards from the west sideline. Church swung away behind a bank of perfect interference, and threaded his way through onrushing tacklers, crossing the goal line in the far corner of the field. Here he doubled back behind the last stripe, and, fairly leaking tacklers, as he bounced along, planted the ball between the posts, so that Arnold Horween had no difficulty in kicking goal.

It was this dash behind the line of Church's that made victory certain for Harvard. Had he been downed farther from the posts Horween might have missed the try for goal from a more difficult angle. Harvard's margin of victory was this one point, which Church's desperate run made possible.

Portland Delighted Over Oregon's Showing—Many Congratulatory Wires Sent Huntington

OREGON PROUD OF HER SQUAD.

Portland Fans go Wild Over Details of Game.

Showing of Lemon-Yellow Big Surprise in North.

Congratulatory Wires Sent to Coach Huntington.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Jan. 1.—Results of the Pasadena game were received in Portland and Eugene, the site of the University of Oregon, as a triumph for western football. Despite the fact that Harvard won, it is felt here by leading sportsmen and citizens generally that the close score and the fact that the easterners were played to a standstill really constituted a victory for the West.

Never before have returns from an athletic event been received in Oregon with such great interest. In front of newspaper offices and elsewhere where the details of the play were being bulletined, great crowds congregated and hung upon every move of the opposing elevens with an intensity that hardly could have been greater had they occupied the stands at Pasadena. Mention of every Oregon player was cheered to the limit and the final result was received with applause, although after the game was under way there was great hope for an Oregon win.

SAME AT EUGENE.

The same scenes on a smaller scale were enacted in many Oregon cities, and particularly in Eugene. At that place there was an impromptu demonstration that had all the spirit of a victory celebration. It is safe to say that when the Oregon warriors return they will be greeted with a reception that will convince them that the home folks are proud of their achievement.

The showing made by the Lemon-Yellow was actually a big surprise here. Reports from the south have been so eulogistic of the Harvard team and have so emphasized the strength and weight of the Crimson that Oregon supporters were prepared to face news of a real defeat. The best that was hoped for in most quarters was that Oregon would be able to hold down Harvard's score to a margin of one or two touchdowns. That Oregon was able to overcome the odds of weight against her simply shows that she was running true to form as one of the hardest-fighting elevens in the United States.

FIGHTING SPIRIT.

Oregon has offset similar odds so many times in the past that the fighting spirit of her athletic teams has come to be recognized by all institutions in the Northwest.

As soon as the game was concluded scores of congratulatory telegrams were filed to Coach Huntington and his squad. Football experts here express the opinion that the game will give a standing to western football in the East that it has never held before, and they predict continued national interest in the annual inter-sectional contest.

Greatest pride of all is expressed here in Oregon's great stand in the closing minutes of play, when they held the Crimson warriors from scoring with the ball almost at the foot of the Oregon goal posts.

MORRIS JOINS THE SELECT SOCCER CIRCLE.

By scoring five goals for West Bromwich Albion against Notts Country in the English soccer league matches recently, Morris joins the select circle of noted performers. The record holder for goal scoring in a game is Steve Bloomer, who got six goals for Derby Country team, in a league match against Sheffield Wednesday at Derby in 1899. Harold Halse (when playing for Aston Villa) and Harry Hampton each scored five goals in one match against Derby County and Sheffield Wednesday at Aston in 1912. Buchan scored five goals for Sunderland against Liverpool at Roker in the same season, and McGuigan has score five goals in a match against Liverpool.

CHURCHILL FIRST IN CROSS-CITY RACE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 1.—Willard Churchill of the Olympic Club, San Francisco, was winner today of the annual cross-city race conducted by the Pacific Amateur Athletic Association, under the auspices of The Bulletin. Churchill's time was 40m. 56 2-5s.

James Fuller of the Olympic Club was second, 42m. 18 3-5s., and Charles Hunter of the Unione Sportivo Italia, third, 42m. 28 1-5s. More than 100 of the 136 entries participated in the race.

The course was seven and five-eighths miles, extending from the Ferry Building to the Cliff House.

MOUNT CLEMENS TO HOLD WINTER RACING.

PLAY BY PLAY IN HARVARD-OREGON FOOTBALL CLASSIC.

At 2:30 o'clock the guards ordered "everybody off" and the motion picture men by prearrangement picked up their cameras and retreated to other strategic positions.

Every seat was filled except one small reserved block on the Oregon side, and the runways were still filled with a moving mass of eager enthusiasts.

EVERETT HOLDS SCOTT TO TIE.

Washington Lads Play Fast in the First Quarter.

Toledo Squad Comes Back Strong in Last Half.

Sea of Mud Makes Open Play an Impossibility.

EVERETT (Wash.) Jan. 1.—Everett High School and Scott High School, Toledo, football elevens, played a 7 to 7 tie game here today, contesting for the national preparatory school championship. The field was hard and firm when the game began, but a warm sun, melting the frost, developed slippery going, and the third and fourth quarters were played in a sea of mud.

The largest crowd ever gathered at a football game in this section, estimated at over 5000 persons, witnessed the contest. The Everett team played the easterners off their feet in the first quarter, rushing the ball down the field with Toledo's line failed to hold. Hickey carried the ball over for a touchdown. A try for goal failed, but Toledo was offside, and a second attempt by Sherman sent the ball between the posts. Score, Everett, 7; Toledo, 0.

Toledo retaliated in the second quarters. After a series of crisscrosses and line plays down the field, Andrews scored on a modification of the old crisscross, and Scharer kicked goal, tieing the score, 7 to 7.

Exchanges of kicks and line bucks featured the third and fourth quarters, the muddy field making open football almost impossible. Toledo brought the spectators to their feet a few minutes before the game ended, pushing the ball to within six inches of the Everett goal. The Everett team held solidly twice, the final whistle quashing the hopes of the eastern team of winning the game.

The line-up:

COACHES GIVE VIEWS.

The Harvard University football team, in defeating the University of Oregon eleven, played the hardest game of the season, Coach Robert Fisher, of Harvard, said last night.

"We came 3000 miles to lick Oregon," said Fisher, "and we did it. We had the better team. But Oregon had a better team than I expected. It was the first scrimmage Harvard had since its game with Yale and naturally the men weren't in good condition. The boys went through the game largely on pluck.

"I don't think the fact we outweighed Oregon had much to do with the result. We would have beaten Oregon if the weights had been Harvard's equal in every game."

The Harvard team will leave Cambridge this morning, arriving there January 6. Efforts to reach Coach Huntington or Capt. Brandenburg of the Oregon team with a statement were unavailing last night. Shortly after the Oregon team left the field, Huntington said he had no comment except "we played a hard and as clean a game as we know how and I think we made a good showing. Harvard has a great ball team."

It was expected last night that the Oregon team would start home today, reaching Eugene Monday.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Harvard finished the season without a defeat and two close calls. Princeton tied the Crimson, and Oregon lacked just a point of doing so.

Southern California football crowds could improve their ethics. At one point Harvard was booed, and another time there was a loud outburst of applause when the Crimson was penalized. True, this small-town stiff came from a scattering few, but might give a wrong impression to easterners, of whom there were thousands in the stand. Naturally it was a western crowd in its sympathies, but such demonstrations do not reflect the true spirit of the West.

It was a hard, bruising battle throughout, with plenty of rough work on both sides. Harvard was after Steers, and Oregon after Casey. That's part of the game, and seasoned football followers accept it as such.

Oregon missed winning the game by a scant foot. That is the distance by which Manerud's drop kick went outside the Harvard post.

The attempt of Steers which preceded that of Manerud could not be construed as close. Bill's kick was blocked. He just naturally kicked the ball into the Harvard line.

Reports of broken training rules while Harvard was in that city are drifting in from San Francisco. There are generally a number of leaks after every big game. Yet the newspaper men were assured that the Crimson athletes had trod the straight and narrow all the way out.

Oregon was forced to make only two substitutions, and these were on account of injuries. Most of the Harvard changes were due to sheer exhaustion.

Anderson and Howard, the Oregon ends, fully held their own, as did the other Oregon linemen.

Capt. Brandenburg proved one of the most consistent ground-gainers on the Oregon team.

In First Public Statement Details Gay Life.

Plans to Fight Charges of Murderous Assault.

Emphatic denials to accusations made by William M. Hunter, a wealthy oil operator, who was shot twice by his former wife in the lobby of the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, several weeks ago, were hurled back at him yesterday by Mrs. Agnes Hunter, the young attractive divorcee, in her first public statement on the case. Mrs. Hunter is at liberty on $1000 bail pending her trial on a charge of assault to commit murder.

Mrs. Hunter went to San Francisco on November 25, she says, to plead with her divorced husband to assist in the support of their 5-year-old son, William, Jr., and to help pay his tuition in a military academy. She found Hunter in the lobby of the Palace Hotel, where he was staying with his bride of two days, and who, Mrs. Hunter declares, is his fifth wife. When he refused to aid in the support of the child, Mrs. Hunter drew an automatic revolver, shot him twice and then swooned. Following her arrest, Mr. Hunter, in interviews in San Francisco newspapers, accused his former wife of forsaking their child to frequent cafes.

"GROSSLY DECEIVED."

Mrs. Hunter yesterday denied all the accusations. Her story is that of a young girl, who, raised and educated behind the stone walls of a convent, and ignorant of the ways of the world, says she was herself grossly deceived in Mr. Hunter.

"At the age of 13 I finished my education in a San Jose convent and started for the little country town of my birth in the East, where I was to marry a young man I had been engaged to and whom I had gone to school with in my childhood days," she said, yesterday, at the home of her sister, Mrs. F. E. Rogers, 2057 West Ave. 32.

"I stopped for a few days at Oakland to visit friends of my mother and through a friend's introduction I met Mr. Hunter, who was then a traveling salesman. This man, who later became my husband and has filled my life with grief and anguish since the day of our marriage, took me around to places that I had never before dreamed existed. He seemed to have a large sum of money and spent it lavishly on me. The life of cafes and joyrides that he introduced me to was new to me and interesting and I fell for it. He begged me to not continue my trip eastward, to cancel my engagement with my childhood sweetheart and to marry him, which I did a few weeks later.

"HE DETESTED CHILDREN."

"We were married in Orange county five years ago and up to the time of our wedding his promises to provide me with a home and give me everything that money could buy must have hypnotized me. We came to Los Angeles and he entered the real estate business. We had only been married a short while when he went away the first time. Three months before Billy was born he left me again while I was critically ill, nor did he return until two weeks before the boy's birth. Even as I lay in the hospital Mr. Hunter was absent in San Francisco, and not until he was informed over the telephone that I was near death did he return, arriving several hours after the baby was born. Following the birth Mr. Hunter remained at my bedside. He told me he was not pref... baby's ... night ... at ... not ... a hotel.

"I left ... a half years ... finally convinced ... longer bear it. He has not seen our son in two years, nor does he care, for when I talked with him recently in San Francisco he could not remember how old Billy was nor the date of his birth."

MEANT TO "SCARE."

Mrs. Hunter repeated the statement she made to the San Francisco police, that she only intended to scare her former spouse. "I knew he was cowardly and thought that if I scared him he would give me some money for the boy," she said. "I myself did not want any of his money for I receive enough from a wealthy uncle in the East to support myself. I also have $500 in a local bank in my boy's name, which Mr. Hunter says is his money, but I can prove it is mine.

Mrs. Hunter said she did not learn until after her wedding that her former husband had had three wives before he married her.

"I was told by Mr. Hunter's sister-in-law that he married one woman in the Dakotas, another in St. Louis and a third in Spokane," she said.

Mrs. Hunter stated she will remain in Los Angeles with her son until the time set for her trial in San Francisco.

TELLS TALE OF "GROSS DECEIT."

Mrs. Hunter Hurls Denials at ex-Mate She Shot.

Plans to Fight Charges of Murderous Assault.

Emphatic denials to accusations made by William M. Hunter, a wealthy oil operator, who was shot twice by his former wife in the lobby of the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, several weeks ago, were hurled back at him yesterday by Mrs. Agnes Hunter, the young attractive divorcee, in her first public comment on the case. Mrs. Hunter is at liberty on $1000 bail pending her trial on a charge of assault to commit murder.

Mrs. Hunter went to San Francisco on November 25, she says, to confer with her divorced husband and aid in the support of their 5-year-old son, William, Jr., and to help pay his tuition in a military academy. She found Hunter in the lobby of the Palace Hotel, where he was staying with his bride of two days, and who, Mrs. Hunter declares, is his fifth wife. When he refused to aid in the support of the child, Mrs. Hunter drew an automatic revolver, shot him twice and then swooned. Following her arrest, Mr. Hunter, in interviews in San Francisco newspapers, accused his former wife of forsaking their child to frequent cafes.

"GROSSLY DECEIVED."

Mrs. Hunter yesterday denied all accusations. Her story is that of a young girl, who, raised and educated behind the stone walls of a convent, and ignorant of the ways of the world, says she was herself grossly deceived in Mr. Hunter.

"In the age of 18 I finished my education in a San Jose convent and started for the little country town of my birth in the East, where I was to marry a young man I had been engaged to and whom I had gone to school with in my childhood days," she said, yesterday, at the home of her sister, Mrs. F. K. Rowe, 1057 West Ave. 32.

"I stopped for a few days at Oakland to visit friends of my mother and through a friend's introduction I met Mr. Hunter, who was then a traveling salesman. This man, who later became my husband and who ruined my life with grief and anguish since the day of our marriage, took me around to places that I had never before dreamed existed. He seemed to have a large sum of money and spent it lavishly on me. The life of cafes and joyrides that he introduced me to was new to me and interesting and I fell for it. He begged me to not continue my trip eastward, to cancel my engagement with my childhood sweetheart and to marry him, which I did a few weeks later.

"HE DETESTED CHILDREN."

"We were married in Orange county five years ago and up to the time of our wedding his promises to provide me with a home and give me everything that money could buy must have hypnotized me. We came to Los Angeles and he entered the real estate business. We had only been married a short while when he showed me for the first time. Even as I lay in the hospital Mr. Hunter was absent in San Francisco, and not until he was informed over the telephone that I was near death did he return, arriving several hours after the baby was born. Following the birth, Mr. Hunter remained at a downtown hotel. He told me and my family that he did not prefer to stay home for the baby's crying spoiled his rest at night. He always left word with the hotel clerk not to disturb him at night and no matter how anxious I was to talk to him it was impossible.

"Three months after the birth of Billy he left me again and went to San Francisco, he told me, on a business trip.

"During the first year of our married life I pleaded with him to buy a home, but he always replied that he didn't care for home life nor children. Once we did rent a bungalow for two months, but while I lived at the bungalow he preferred to live at a hotel.

"I left him permanently two and a half years ago, when his actions finally convinced me that I could no longer bear it. He has not seen our child in two years, nor does he care. For when I talked with him recently in San Francisco he could not remember how old Billy was nor the date of his birth."

MEANT TO "SCARE."

Mrs. Hunter repeated the statement she made to the San Francisco police, that she only intended to scare her former spouse. "I knew he was cowardly and thought that if I scared him he would give me some money for the boy," she said. "I myself did not want any of his money for I receive enough from a wealthy uncle in the East to support myself. Mrs. Hunter stated she will remain in Los Angeles with her son until the time set for her trial in San Francisco.

HARVARD WINS BY A POINT.

not made his distance. The ball rested within inches of the Oregon line, and it was Oregon's ball. But it never was put in play, the game ending with Horween's last rush.

This final stand of the sable-jerseyed line will live long in the heroics of the gridiron.

FAILED TO SUPE.

But as a super-classic the game failed to supe. It lacked that indefinable something that is wanting when two teams so finely-balanced battle to a close score of small denomination.

Oregon was in superb shape. Harvard's condition was little less than wretched. The game had been in progress not more than ten minutes when the Cambridge men were blowing like whales. Only by throwing in reserves and playing a cautious, safety-first game, were they able to stave off defeat. It was stated after the game that Harvard had not engaged in more than twenty minutes of scrimmage since Thanksgiving.

Huntington's men looked fit to fight for a kingdom. They were trained down to a solidity in striking contract to their more bulky opponents. There was something pulpy under the imposing appearance of Harvard. The Oregon linemen, outweighed twenty pounds to the man, worked like sappers, drilling drifts and tunnels through the great Crimson barrier through which the backs crashed for long gains. Time and again the Leslies, Brick and Spike, Williams, Mautz and Bartlett, flung back the Harvard forwards, or tore the Cambridge human wall asunder. There was something strangely yielding and putty-like about those formidable-looking forwards. The smaller westerners seemed to be of tougher fiber.

STILL THE PUNCH.

Yet the Crimson never yielded completely. Always they had something in reserve. Invariably the defense tightened when the Harvard goal line was threatened. Even when the Crimson athletes were gasping for the strength that seemed so slow to respond, they would become suddenly pulssant, and the line a huge surly thing which dulled and blunted for the instant the sharp, smashing Oregon attacks. With the score fixed as it was destined to stand, Harvard seemed concerned with just two things—to keep Oregon from kicking distance of the goal and to conserve its own strength. It is even doubtful whether that final sensational march down the field, which was not to end until the ball had been placed within inches of the western line, was started with any thought of a touchdown. Harvard after two narrow escapes from field goals wanted to drive Oregon back beyond range, but surprised at its own latent strength, avalanched on down the field.

Harvard's supposedly adamant and immovable line proved the least formidable part of the Cambridge machine. Invariably it was outcharged by the harder, faster and lighter Oregon forwards. Its one touchdown was due to the speed and open work of the backs.

NOTHING NEW.

The Crimson displayed nothing new in the way of football, and in this rather confirmed a spreading conviction that the game is similar the country over. In fact, man for man, they displayed hardly as much football as Oregon. During the practices some of the coaches referred to Harvard as a team of good, raw material, but nothing more. And that is the impression they gave. In fact, they displayed neither football instinct nor finesse in football technique. The backs, while fast, run too high, and the tackling at times was uncertain. Harvard's punting was hardly up to big-league standards, and were not as well followed as those of Oregon.

Casey, if in shape, doubtless would have performed up to the advance notices. He is extremely fast and elusive, and also strong on the defense. He hawked into the air and pulled down two forward passes for long gains which the average player would not have judged or touched with his finger tips. Harvard's gains, and the ones which lead up to the first touchdown, were due to forward passes. This play seems to be the Crimson's best bet, and yet was used with amazing infrequency. Only once did the forward pass fail, and if employed more liberally another touchdown might have been realized. Twice Casey was headed for the line with almost an open field in front of him, only to lose his footing on the slippery grass.

Harvard had more sheer speed in the back field, but the Oregon backs seemed more versatile. Captain Everett Brandenburg and Huntington made consistent gains either by direct attacks or by rounding the flanks, and rivalled Steers in this respect, while Manerud several times skirted the ends for good yardage. However, no finer exhibition of line plunging has been seen in the West this year than shown by A. Horween in the closing minutes of play. Time and again Horween was given the ball in that final offensive, and just as often he hurled his bulk through the dark-blue barrier. Several of those standing near the final play say that Horween actually carried the ball across the line on his last plunge, but was forced back by the massed strength of Oregon.

Oregon with Harvard's weight yesterday would have won by at least two touchdowns, and per contra, Harvard with Oregon's condition would have won by the same margin. The Oregon team of 1917 unquestionably would have defeated the Crimson.

This game was but another demonstration of the fact that an Eastern team cannot come West on short notice and be in anything approximating first-class condition.

Oregon's showing under the handicap of inferior weight is in the nature of a triumph for Coach Shy Huntington and his assistants. His men were as well-drilled as the easterners, and at times displayed even better football.

Harvard was first on the field. The Crimson debouched from the northeast corner, and spreading wide on the field engaged in twenty minutes of passing and punting. They were followed by the officials. A. Plowden Stott, head lineman, introduced an innovation in the shape of a small horn strapped on his wrist. He used it in place of the whistle of our forefathers. As there is no longer anything with which to wet the whistle, they are going out of style. A Klaxon horn worn on the pulse is the proper thing. Harvard retired after light exercise.

The Oregon substitutes came on the field at 2:15, trotting across the field to the bench on the east. The entire Harvard squad returned to the field at 2:20, and forming into two teams went through signal practice. Oregon followed a moment later. The Lemon-Yellow shaped up light, sinewy and fast. In the setting of the great arena both teams looked greatly reduced in size—almost pigmy-like in their proportions. Oregon did not engage in signal practice. Some of the men passed the ball, while Steers did some preliminary punting. Bill must have been nervous and off his stride, as he punted like a prep. His exhibition kicks went around forty yards, while he had been kicking sixty and seventy in private. However, his knee became stronger when the starter's whistle brought the action that was to relieve this tension.

A light wind was blowing in from the east. It was a neutral wind, and favored neither team. Above there was a leaden sky, and below a satisfactory football temperature. Harvard won the toss, chose the south end of the field and elected to receive the ball by the presence of many men in army and navy uniforms. Among these were Admiral Rodman and Gen. Liggett. There were men on the field who had played on Harvard teams and against Harvard teams in the past. There were others who had tested the mettle of the virile Oregon brand of football. Service men, as well as civilians, were divided in partisanship.

GAME HAS A COLOR SETTING.

Strikingly colorful and pleasing to the eye were the women. The fair sex, taking advantage of the fine weather, was represented many thousand strong, and their bright raiment vied with the roses and the lilies that had held the center of attention and admiration in the street pageant earlier in the day.

ENTHUSIASM.

There was enthusiasm. The stands were aglow with it. There was music and cheering. Several bands played during brief intermissions of play and between the halves four bands, one in the khaki uniforms of Uncle Sam's service helped the big crowd to pass the ten minutes without fidgeting. The holiday, merry-making spirit of the big crowd found an outlet between the halves with impromptu serpentine parades and other pranks.

Although Pacific Electric trains pulled out at two-minute intervals after the game, each one heavily loaded, it is probable that most of those in attendance went by automobile. The streets and vacant lots for many blocks were filled with parked cars. After the game every avenue leading from Pasadena was black with automobiles.

In staging the great intersectional contest, with such distinguished participants as Harvard University and Oregon the Pasadena committee eclipsed its past triumphs. The annual midwinter football game in Southern California has won nation-wide recognition. The East has again come out to the West and this time, represented by classic Harvard, emerges a winner.

SANTA BARBARA BEATS VENTURA ALL-STARS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CHURCH'S DASH BRINGS VICTORY.

the second period—Steers's drop kick, Church's touchdown and a drop kick from the 30-yard line by little Manerud, who had taken Steers's place at quarter when the latter was laid out.

Both teams had chances to score in the second half, but both just missed connecting. In the fourth quarter Steers missed a drop from the 23-yard line, and Manerud did the same thing a few minutes later from the 30-yard line.

The close of the fourth period was marked by a spectacular march of Harvard from their own 20-yard line to Oregon's 6-inch mark. Arnold Horween, the husky Crimson left half, contributed the major portion of this yardage. Once he bustled between Williams and Leslie for 25 yards—the only long gain that was made through the Oregon line all day long.

It was a heart-rending conflict for Oregon to lose because of the fact that up to the time of that Horween parade the Lemon-Yellow squad had gained about three yards to each of Harvard's one. For that reason Harvard's victory was far from impressive.

The superior condition of the Oregon team was at all times in evidence. Had the game been played on a day such as we had the early part of this week the Crimson could not have stood the strain in the last quarter. As it was the men dogged it into line, barely able to drag one foot after another. Harvard's famous wheel shift revolved in that last period, but it was mighty slow revolving.

CASEY WAS THERE.

The only thing that Oregon had difficulty in solving was the Crimson's aerial attack with Casey on the receiving end. Three times it worked for gains from 16 to 22 yards, but the peerless Eddie was never able to quite work himself free. Once Church was tried as a receiver, but the oval barely slipped off his fingers with a clear field before him.

Oregon gained 284 yards from scrimmage, and made thirteen first downs; Harvard 235 and ten first downs.

In the battle of boots between Ralph Horween and Church for Harvard and Steers and Manerud for Oregon honors were about even. Harvard punted eleven times for 495 yards, an average of forty-five yards to the kick; Oregon nine times for 390 yards, an average of forty-three yards to the kick.

Oregon excelled at running back punts, gaining eighty-two yards in this manner to Harvard's thirty-three. Harvard was penalized four times for a total of forty yards; Oregon an equal number of times and for the same amount of yardage.

Casey, counted on as the best offensive player of the Crimson, proved to be the best man on the defense that Harvard had in its line-up yesterday. Time and again he was called on to stop the crushing charges of the Oregon backs.

NOT ONLY STAR.

Bill Steers, while getting away for some dandy runs, could not be counted the lone Oregon star any more than Capt. Everett Brandenberg and Hollis Huntington. These last named hard-rock chaps durned in many a goodly-sized gain during the afternoon's pastime.

Harvard had much difficulty in solving the Oregon "dead-man" play. Steers tore himself loose several times for 10 to 25 yards at a crack, but it was this very play that sent him from the game. He was replaced by Church in the second quarter and gave way to Manerud.

OPEN UP HOLES.

Oregon crowded the oval down the field on its marches by good old-fashioned straightaway line hammering. Mautz and Bartlett opened up splendid holes on their side of the line and Brandenberg and Huntington took turns at ripping through these orifices. Oregon also found the center of the line a fine place to chase through. "Brick" Leslie doing his full share of paving track for his backs.

"Baz" Williams and "Spike" Leslie, at left guard and tackle, respectively, performed creditably, and Howard and Anderson, the Oregon ends, snowed little of their heralded weakness.

ONLY IN A PINCH.

Capt. Murray of Harvard ran his eleven in excellent fashion, using his best plays only in a pinch and when they were least expected.

Most of the Harvard plays were started from the fake-kick formation, which Percy Haughton made famous in the days when he was mentoring the Crimson. Oregon apparently was little confused by the formation.

Oregon had a wonderful chance to win the game via the drop-kick route. Steers and Manerud each had three chances, but were able to convert only one apiece. Ralph Horween, before he left the game with a chipped collarbone, essayed one from the 40-yard line, but his kick went astray.

The line-up:

Harvard.		Oregon.
Desmond	L.E.R.	Anderson
Sedgwick	L.T.R.	Bartlett
Woods	L.G.R.	Mautz
Havemeyer	C.	Brick Leslie

POLICE PLAY THEY'RE CHINESE; RAID GAME.

CLEVER RUSE ADMITS OFFICERS TO ANOTHER OF "PROTECTED" PLACES.

Police officers of the Metropolitan Squad fooled the Chinese lookout of a gambling den at 708 North Alameda street, last night, into thinking that the officers were Chinese, and, as such, he opened wide the doors of the place they to them revealing a fan tan game in full swing.

The officers raiding the place had figured that they would have trouble in gaining entrance and that force would probably have to be used to open the door. Led by Detective Sergeant Frank Williams they crawled up the stairs on all-fours and the sleepy lookout failed to see them trough his little window high in the wall overlooking the stairs. At the door Detective Davis said in excellent Chinese, "Ho-ye-mon," which means "open the door." And the door was opened.

About $300 was on the tables when they entered, the officers stated. Nearly fifty Chinese were gambling or watching the play. They made wild grabs for their money when they saw the police.

Ah Fong, proprietor of the den, gambling apparatus and $35 found on the tables, were taken into custody by the officers.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN JACINTO, Jan. 1.—Owing to the scarcity of quail during the season which closed last night the local hunters here are almost unanimously in favor of a closed season next year in order to give the birds a chance to regain a footing in this locality. Although this season, which opened on October 15, was one month shorter than usual, the decline in number of birds was even more noticeable than last year.

It is hoped that even if a closed season for the entire year is not established, that the short season of last year will obtain, as it will give the birds a chance to settle down before mating season arrives, as it is the opinion of a majority of hunters that birds that have been frightened just before the mating season will not mate at all.

Portland Delighted Over Oregon's Showing—Many Congratulatory Wires Sent Huntington

OREGON PROUD OF HER SQUAD.

Portland Fans go Wild Over Details of Game.

Showing of Lemon-Yellow Big Surprise in North.

Congratulatory Wires Sent to Coach Huntington.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Jan. 1.—Results of the Pasadena game were received in Portland and Eugene, the site of the University of Oregon, as a triumph for western football. Despite the fact that Harvard won, it is felt here by leading sportsmen and citizens generally that the close score and the fact that the easterners were played to a standstill really constituted a victory for the West.

Never before have returns from an athletic event been received in Oregon with such great interest. In front of newspaper offices and elsewhere where the details of the play were being bulletined, great crowds congregated and hung upon every move of the opposing elevens with an intensity that hardly could have been greater had they occupied the stands at Pasadena. Mention of every Oregon player was cheered to the limit and the final result was received with applause, although after the game was under way there was great hope for an Oregon win.

SAME AT EUGENE.

The same scenes on a smaller scale were enacted in many Oregon cities, and particularly in Eugene. At that place there was an impromptu demonstration that had all the spirit of a victory celebration. It is safe to say that when the Oregon warriors return they will be greeted with a reception that will convince them that the home folks are proud of their achievement.

The showing made by the Lemon-Yellow was actually a big surprise here. Reports from the south have been so eulogistic of the Harvard team and have so emphasized the strength and weight of the Crimson that Oregon supporters were prepared to face news of a real defeat. The best that was hoped for in most quarters was that Oregon would be able to hold down Harvard's score to a margin of one or two touchdowns. That Oregon was able to overcome the odds of weight against her simply shows that she was running true to form as one of the hardest-fighting elevens in the United States.

FIGHTING SPIRIT.

Oregon has offset similar odds so many times in the past that the fighting spirit of her athletic teams has come to be recognized by all institutions in the Northwest.

As soon as the game was concluded scores of congratulatory telegrams were filed to Coach Huntington and his squad. Football experts here express the opinion that the game will give a standing to western football in the East that it has never held before, and they predict continued national interest in the annual inter-sectional contest.

Greatest pride of all is expressed here in Oregon's great stand in the closing minutes of play, when they held the Crimson warriors from scoring with the ball almost at the foot of the Oregon goal posts.

MORRIS JOINS THE SELECT SOCCER CIRCLE.

By scoring five goals for West Bromwich Albion against Notts Country in the English soccer league matches recently, Morris joins the select circle of noted performers. The record holder for goal scoring in a game is Steve Bloomer, who got six goals for Derby County team, in a league match against Sheffield Wednesday at Derby in 1899. Harold Halse (when playing for Aston Villa) and Harry Hampton each scored five goals in one match against Derby County and Sheffield Wednesday at Aston in 1912. Buchan scored five goals for Sunderland against Liverpool at Roker in the same season, and McGuigan has score five goals in a match against Liverpool.

The course was seven and five-eighths miles, extending from the Ferry Building to the Cliff House.

EVERETT HOLDS SCOTT TO TIE.

Washington Lads Play Fast in the First Quarter.

Toledo Squad Comes Back Strong in Last Half.

EVERETT (Wash.) Jan. 1.—Everett High School and Scott High School, Toledo, football elevens, played a 7 to 7 tie game here today, contesting for the national preparatory school championship. The field was hard and firm when the game began, but a warm sun, melting the frost, developed slippery going, and the third and fourth quarters were played in a sea of mud.

The largest crowd ever gathered at a football game in this section, estimated at over 3000 persons, witnessed the contest. The Everett team played the easterners off their feet in the first quarter, rushing the ball down the field with Toledo's line failed to hold. Hickey carried the ball over for a touchdown. A try for goal failed, but Toledo was offside, and a second attempt by Sherman sent the ball between the posts. Score, Everett, 7; Toledo, 0.

Toledo retaliated in the second quarters. After a series of crisscross and line plays down the field, Andrews scored on a modification of the old crisscross, and Scharer kicked goal, tieing the score, 7 to 7.

Exchanges of kicks and line bucks featured the third and fourth quarters, the muddy field making open football almost impossible. Toledo brought the spectators to their feet a few minutes before the game ended, pushing the ball to within six inches of the Everett goal. The Everett team held solidly twice, the final whistle quashing the hopes of the eastern team of winning the game.

The line-up:

COACHES GIVE VIEWS.

The Harvard University football team, in defeating the University of Oregon eleven, played the hardest game of the season, Coach Robert Fisher, of Harvard, said last night.

"We came 3000 miles to lick Oregon," said Fisher, "and we did it. We had the better team. But Oregon had a better team than I expected. It was the first scrimmage Harvard had since its game with Yale and naturally the men weren't in good condition. The boys went through the game largely on pluck.

"I don't think the fact we outweighed Oregon had much to do with the result. We would have beaten Oregon if the weights had been Harvard's equal in every game. Oregon played a hard game."

The Harvard team will leave Cambridge this morning, arriving there January 6.

Efforts to reach Coach Huntington or Capt. [illegible] of the Oregon team for a statement were unavailing last night. Shortly after the Oregon team left the field, Huntington said he had no comment except "we played a clean and as clean a game as we know how and I think we made a good showing. Harvard has a great ball team."

It was expected last night that the Oregon team would start home today, reaching Eugene Monday.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Harvard finished the season without a defeat and two close calls. Princeton tied the Crimson, and Oregon lacked just a point of doing so.

Southern California football crowds could improve their ethics. At one point Harvard was booed, and another time there was a loud outburst of applause when the Crimson was penalized. True, this small-town stuff came from a scattering few, but might give a wrong impression to easterners, of whom there were thousands in the stand. Naturally it was a western crowd in its sympathies, but such demonstrations do not reflect the true spirit of the West.

It was a hard, bruising battle throughout, with plenty of rough work on both sides. Harvard was after Steers, and Oregon after Casey. That's part of the game, and seasoned football followers accept it as such.

Oregon missed winning the game by a scant foot. That is the distance by which Manerud's drop kick went outside the Harvard post.

The attempt of Steers which preceded that of Manerud could not be construed as close. Bill's kick was blocked. He just naturally kicked the ball into the Harvard line.

Reports of broken training rules while Harvard was in that city are drifting in from San Francisco. There are generally a number of leaks after every big game. Yet the newspaper men were assured that the Crimson athletes had trod the straight and narrow all the way out.

Oregon was forced to make only two substitutions, and these were on account of injuries. Most of the Harvard changes were due to sheer exhaustion.

Anderson and Howard, the Oregon ends, fully held their own, as did the other Oregon linemen.

Capt. Brandenburg proved one of the most consistent ground-gainers on the Oregon team.

TELLS TALE OF "GROSS DECEIT."

Mrs. Hunter Hurls Denials at ex-Mate She Shot.

Plans to Fight Charges of Murderous Assault.

Emphatic denials to accusations made by William M. Hunter, a wealthy oil operator, who was shot twice by his former wife in the lobby of the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, several weeks ago, were hurled back at him yesterday by Mrs. Agnes Hunter, the young attractive divorcee, in her first public statement on the case. Mrs. Hunter is at liberty on $1000 bail pending her trial on a charge of assault to commit murder.

Mrs. Hunter went to San Francisco on November 25, she says, to plead with her divorced husband to assist in the support of their 5-year-old son, William, Jr., and to help pay his tuition in a military academy. She found Hunter in the lobby of the Palace Hotel, where he was staying with his bride of two days, and who, Mrs. Hunter declares, is his fifth wife. When he refused to aid in the support of the child, Mrs. Hunter drew an automatic revolver, shot him twice and then swooned. Following her arrest, Mr. Hunter, in interviews in San Francisco newspapers, accused his former wife of forsaking their child for frequent cafes.

"GROSSLY DECEIVED."

Mrs. Hunter yesterday denied all the accusations. Her story is that of a young girl, who, raised and educated behind the stone walls of a convent, and ignorant of the ways of the world, says she was herself grossly deceived in Mr. Hunter.

"At the age of 18 I finished my education in a San Jose convent and started for the little country town of my birth in the East, where I was to marry a young man I had been engaged to and whom I had gone to school with in my childhood days," she said, yesterday, at the home of her sister, Mrs. F. K. Rogers, 2057 West Ave. 32.

"I stopped for a few days at Oakland to visit friends of my mother and through a friend's introduction I met Mr. Hunter, who was then a traveling salesman. This man, who later became my husband and has filled my life with grief and anguish since the day of our marriage, took me around to places that I had never before dreamed existed. He seemed to have large sum of money and spent it lavishly on me. The life of cafes and joyrides that he introduced me to was new to me and interesting and I fell for it. He begged me to not continue my trip eastward, to cancel my engagement with my childhood's sweetheart and to marry him, which I did a few weeks later.

"HE DETESTED CHILDREN."

"We were married in Orange county five years ago and up to the time of our wedding his promises to provide me with a home and give me everything that money could buy must have hypnotized me. We came to Los Angeles and he entered the real estate business. We had only been married a short while when he went away the first time. Three months before Billy was born he left me again while I was critically ill, nor did he return until two weeks before the boy's birth. Even as I lay in the hospital Mr. Hunter was absent in San Francisco, and not until he was informed over the telephone that I was near death did he return, arriving several hours after the baby was born. Following the birth, Mr. Hunter remained at a downtown hotel. He told me and my family that he did not prefer to stay home for the baby's crying spoiled his rest at night. He always left word with the hotel clerk not to disturb him at night and no matter how anxious I was to talk to him it was impossible.

"Three months after the birth of Billy he left me again and went to San Francisco, he told me, on a business trip.

"During the first year of our marriage I pleaded with him to buy a home, but he always replied that he didn't care for home life nor children. Once we did rent a bungalow for two months, but while I lived at the bungalow he preferred to live at a hotel.

"I left him permanently two and a half years ago, when his actions finally convinced me that I could no longer bear it. He has not seen our son in two years, nor does he care. For when I talked with him recently in San Francisco he could not remember how old Billy was nor the date of his birth."

MEANT TO "SCARE."

Mrs. Hunter repeated the statement she made to the San Francisco police, that she only intended to scare her former spouse. "I knew he was cowardly and thought that if I scared him he would give me some money for the boy," she said. "I myself did not want any of his money for I receive enough from a wealthy uncle in the East to support myself. I also have $500 in a local bank in my boy's name, which Mr. Hunter says is his money, but I can prove it is mine.

Mrs. Hunter said she did not learn until after her wedding that her former husband had had three wives before he married her.

"I was told by Mr. Hunter's sister-in-law that he married one woman in the Dakotas, another in St. Louis and a third in Spokane," she said.

Mrs. Hunter stated she will remain in Los Angeles with her son until the time set for her trial in San Francisco.

TELLS TALE OF "GROSS DECEIT."

Mrs. Hunter Hurls Denials at ex-Mate She Shot.

Plans to Fight Charges of Murderous Assault.

Emphatic denials to accusations made by William M. Hunter, a wealthy oil operator, who was shot twice by his former wife in the lobby of the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, several weeks ago, were hurled back at him yesterday by Mrs. Agnes Hunter, the young attractive divorcee, in her first public statement on the case. Mrs. Hunter is at liberty on $1000 bail pending her trial on a charge of assault to commit murder.

Mrs. Hunter went to San Francisco on November 25, she says, to consult with her divorced husband and assist in the support of their 5-year-old son, William, Jr., and to help pay his tuition in a military academy. She found Hunter in the lobby of the Palace Hotel, where he was staying with his bride of two days, and who, Mrs. Hunter declares, is his fifth wife. When he refused to aid in the support of the child, Mrs. Hunter drew an automatic revolver, shot him twice and then surrendered. Following her arrest, Mr. Hunter, in interviews in San Francisco newspapers, accused his former wife of forsaking their child to frequent cafes.

"GROSSLY DECEIVED."

Mrs. Hunter yesterday denied all the accusations. Her story is that of a young girl, who, raised and educated behind the stone walls of a convent, and ignorant of the ways of the world, says she was herself grossly deceived in Mr. Hunter.

"At the age of 18 I finished my education in a San Jose convent and started for the little country town of my birth in the East, where I was to marry a young man I had been engaged to and whom I had gone to school with in my childhood days," she said, yesterday, at the home of her sister, Mrs. F. K. Bowes, 1057 West Ave. 32.

"I stopped for a few days at Oakland to visit friends of my mother and through a friend's introduction I met Mr. Hunter, who was then traveling salesman. HARVARD WINS BY A POINT.

not made his distance. The ball rested within inches of the Oregon line, and it was Oregon's ball. But it never was put in play, the game ending with Horween's last rush.

This final stand of the sable-jerseyed line will live long in the heroics of the gridiron.

FAILED TO SUPE.

But as a super-classic the game failed to supe. It lacked that indefinable something that is wanting when two teams so finely-balanced battle to a close score of small denomination.

Oregon was in superb shape. Harvard's condition was little less than wretched. The game had been in progress not more than ten minutes when the Cambridge men were blowing like whales. Only by throwing in reserves and playing a cautious, safety-first game, were they able to stave off defeat. It was stated after the game that Harvard had not engaged in more than twenty minutes of scrimmage since Thanksgiving.

Huntington's men looked fit to fight for a kingdom. They were trained down to a solidity in striking contract to their more bulky opponents. There was something pulpy under the imposing appearance of Harvard. The Oregon linemen, outweighed twenty pounds to the man, worked like sappers, drilling drifts and tunnels through the great Crimson barrier through which the backs crashed for long gains. Time and again the Leslies, Brick and Spike, Williams, Mautz and Bartlett, flung back the Harvard forwards, or tore the Cambridge human wall asunder. There was something strangely yielding and putty-like about those formidable-looking forwards. The smaller westerners seemed to be of tougher fiber.

STILL THE PUNCH.

Yet the Crimson never yielded completely. Always they had something in reserve. Invariably the defense tightened when the Harvard goal line was threatened. Even when the Crimson athletes were gasping for the strength that seemed so slow to respond, they would become suddenly pulsant, and the line a huge surly thing which dulled and blunted for the instant the sharp, smashing Oregon attacks. With the score fixed as it was destined to stand, Harvard seemed concerned with just two things—to keep Oregon from kicking distance of the goal and to conserve its own strength. It is even doubtful whether that final sensational march down the field, which was not to end until the ball had been placed within inches of the western line, was started with any thought of a touchdown. Harvard after two narrow escapes from field goals wanted to drive Oregon back beyond range, but surprised at its own latent strength, avalanched on down the field.

Harvard's supposedly adamant and immovable line proved the least formidable part of the Cambridge machine. Invariably it was outcharged by the harder, faster and lighter Oregon forwards. Its one touchdown was due to the speed and open work of the backs.

NOTHING NEW.

The Crimson displayed nothing new in the way of football, and in this rather confirmed a spreading conviction that the game is similar the country over. In fact, man for man, they displayed hardly as much football as Oregon. During the practices some of the coaches referred to Harvard as a team of good, raw material, but nothing more. And that is the impression they gave. In fact, they displayed neither football instinct nor finesse in football technique. The backs, while fast, run too high, and the tackling at times was uncertain. Harvard's punting was hardly up to big-league standards, and were not as well followed as those of Oregon.

Casey, if in shape, doubtless would have performed up to the advance notices. He is extremely fast and elusive, and also strong on the defense. He hawked into the air and pulled down two forward passes for long gains which the average player would not have judged or touched with his finger tips. Harvard's gains, and the ones which lead up to the first touchdown, were due to forward passes. This play seems to be the Crimson's best bet, and yet was used with amazing infrequency. Only once did the forward pass fail, and if employed more liberally another touchdown might have been realized. Twice Casey was headed for the line with almost an open field in front of him, only to lose his footing on the slippery grass.

Harvard had more sheer speed in the back field, but the Oregon backs seemed more versatile. Captain Everett Brandenburg and Huntington made consistent gains either by direct attacks or by rounding the flanks, and rivalled Steers in this respect, while Manerud several times skirted the ends for good yardage. However, no finer exhibition of line plunging has been seen in the West this year than shown by A. Horween in the closing minutes of play. Time and again Horween was given the ball in that final offensive, and just as often he hurled his bulk through the dark-blue barrier. Several of those standing near the final play say that Horween actually carried the ball across the line on his last plunge, but was forced back by the massed strength of Oregon.

Oregon with Harvard's weight yesterday would have won by at least two touchdowns, and per contra, Harvard with Oregon's condition would have won by the same margin. The Oregon team of 1917 unquestionably would have defeated the Crimson.

This game was but another demonstration of the fact that an Eastern team cannot come West on short notice and be in anything approximating first-class condition.

Oregon's showing under the handicap of inferior weight is in the nature of a triumph for Coach Shy Huntington and his assistants. His men were as well drilled as the easterners, and at times displayed even better football.

Harvard was first on the field. The Crimson debouched from the northeast corner, and spreading wide on the field engaged in twenty minutes of passing and punting. They were followed by the officials. A. Plowden Stott, head lineman, introduced an innovation in the shape of a small horn strapped on his wrist. He used it in place of the whistle of our forefathers. As there is no longer anything with which to wet the whistle, they are going out of style. A Klaxon horn worn on the pulse is the proper thing. Harvard retired after light exercise.

The Oregon substitutes came on the field at 2:15, trotting across the field to the bench on the east. The entire Harvard squad returned to the field at 2:30, and forming into two teams went through signal practice. Oregon followed a moment later. The Lemon-Yellow shaped up light, sinewy and fast. In the setting of the great arena both teams looked greatly reduced in size—almost pigmy-like in their proportions. Oregon did not engage in signal practice. Some of the men passed the ball, while Steers did some preliminary punting. Bill must have been nervous and off his stride, as he punted like a prep. His exhibition kicks went around forty yards, while he had been kicking sixty and seventy in private. However, his knee became stronger when the starter's whistle brought the action that was to relieve this tension.

A light wind was blowing in from the east. It was a neutral wind, and favored neither team. Above there was a leaden sky, and below a satisfactory football temperature. Harvard won the toss, chose the south end of the field and elected to receive the ball by the presence of many men in army and navy uniforms. Among these were Admiral Rodman and Gen. Liggett. There were men on the field who had played on Harvard teams and against Harvard teams in the past. There were others who had tested the mettle of the virile Oregon brand of football. Service men, as well as civilians, were divided in partisanship.

URGE ATHLETICS FOR HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

GAME HAS A COLOR SETTING.

Strikingly colorful and pleasing to the eye were the women. The fair sex, taking advantage of the fine weather, was represented many thousand strong, and their bright raiment vied with the roses and the lillies that had held the center of attention and admiration in the street pageant earlier in the day.

ENTHUSIASM.

There was enthusiasm. The stands were aglow with it. There was music and cheering. Several bands played during brief intermissions of play and between the halves four bands, one in the khaki uniforms of Uncle Sam's service helped the big crowd to pass the ten minutes without fidgeting. The holiday, merry-making spirit of the big crowd found an outlet between the halves with impromptu serpentine parades and other pranks.

Although Pacific Electric trains pulled out at two-minute intervals after the game, each one heavily loaded, it is probable that most of those in attendance went by automobile. The streets and vacant lots for many blocks were filled with parked cars. After the game every avenue leading from Pasadena was black with automobiles.

In staging the great intersectional contest, with such distinguished participants as Harvard University and Oregon the Pasadena committee eclipsed its past triumphs. The annual midwinter football game in Southern California has won nation-wide recognition. The East has again come out to the West and this time, represented by classic Harvard, emerges a winner.

SANTA BARBARA BEATS VENTURA ALL-STARS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CHURCH'S DASH BRINGS VICTORY.

the second period—Steers's drop kick, Church's touchdown and a drop kick from the 30-yard line by little Manerud, who had taken Steers's place at quarter when the latter was laid out.

Both teams had chances to score in the second half, but both just missed connecting. In the fourth quarter Steers missed a drop from the 23-yard line, and Manerud did the same thing a few minutes later from the 30-yard line.

The close of the fourth period was marked by a spectacular march of Harvard from their own 20-yard line to Oregon's 6-inch mark. Arnold Horween, the husky Crimson left half, contributed the major portion of this yardage. Once he bustled between Williams and Leslie for 25 yards—the only long gain that was made through the Oregon line all day long.

It was a heart-rending conflict for Oregon to lose because of the fact that up to the time of that Horween parade the Lemon-Yellow squad had gained about three yards to each of Harvard's one. For that reason Harvard's victory was far from impressive.

The superior condition of the Oregon team was at all times in evidence. Had the game been played on a day such as we had the early part of this week the Crimson could not have stood the strain in the last quarter. As it was the men dogged it into line, barely able to drag one foot after another. Harvard's famous wheel shift revolved in that last period, but it was mighty slow revolving.

CASEY WAS THERE.

The only thing that Oregon had difficulty in solving was the Crimson's aerial attack with Casey on the receiving end. Three times it worked for gains from 16 to 22 yards, but the peerless Eddie was never able to quite work himself free. Once Church was tried as a receiver, but the oval barely slipped off his fingers with a clear field before him.

Oregon gained 284 yards from scrimmage, and made thirteen first downs; Harvard 235 and ten first downs.

In the battle of boots between Ralph Horween and Church for Harvard and Steers and Manerud for Oregon honors were about even. Harvard punted eleven times for 495 yards, an average of forty-five yards to the kick; Oregon nine times for 390 yards, an average of forty-three yards to the kick.

Oregon excelled at running back punts, gaining eighty-two yards in this manner to Harvard's thirty-three. Harvard was penalized four times for a total of forty yards; Oregon an equal number of times and for the same amount of yardage.

Casey, counted on as the best offensive player of the Crimson, proved to be the best man on the defense that Harvard had in its line-up yesterday. Time and again he was called on to stop the crushing charges of the Oregon backs.

NOT ONLY STAR.

Bill Steers, while getting away for some dandy runs, could not be counted the lone Oregon star any more than Capt. Everett Brandenberg and Hollis Huntington. These last named hard-rock chaps turned in many a goodly-sized gain during the afternoon's pastime.

Harvard had much difficulty in solving the Oregon "dead-man" play. Steers tore himself loose several times for 10 to 25 yards at a crack, but it was this very play that sent him from the game. He was tackled hard in the second quarter and gave way to Manerud.

OPEN UP HOLES.

Oregon crowded the oval down the field on its marches by good old-fashioned straightaway line hammering. Mautz and Bartlett opened up splendid holes on their side of the line and Brandenberg and Huntington took turns at ripping through these orifices. Oregon also found the center of the line a fine place to chase through. "Brick" Leslie doing his full share of paving track for his backs.

"Bas" Williams and "Spike" Leslie, at left guard and tackle, respectively, performed creditably, and Howard and Anderson, the Oregon ends, showed little of their heralded weakness.

ONLY IN A PINCH.

Capt. Murray of Harvard ran his eleven in excellent fashion, using his best plays only in a pinch and when they were least expected.

Most of the Harvard plays were started from the fake-kick formation, which Percy Haughton made famous in the days when he was mentoring the Crimson. Oregon apparently was little confused by the formation.

Oregon had a wonderful chance to win the game via the drop-kick route. Steers and Manerud each had three chances, but were able to convert only one apiece. Ralph Horween, before he left the game with a chipped collarbone, essayed one from the 40-yard line, but his kick went astray.

The line-up:

Harvard.		Oregon.
Desmond	L.E.R.	Anderson
Sedgwick	L.T.R.	Bartlett

POLICE PLAY THEY'RE CHINESE; RAID GAME.

CLEVER RUSE ADMITS OFFICERS TO ANOTHER OF "PROTECTED" PLACES.

Police officers of the Metropolitan Squad fooled the Chinese lookout of a gambling den at 708 North Alameda street, last night, into thinking that the officers were Chinese, and, as such, he opened wide the doors of the place they to them revealing a fan tan game in full swing.

The officers raiding the place had figured that they would have trouble in gaining entrance and that force would probably have to be used to open the door. Led by Detective Sergeant Frank Williams they crawled up the stairs on all-fours and the sleepy lookout failed to see them trough his little window high in the wall overlooking the stairs. At the door Detective Davis said in excellent Chinese, "Ho-ya-mon," which means "open the door." And the door was opened.

About $300 was on the tables when they entered, the officers stated. Nearly fifty Chinese were gambling or watching the play. They made wild grabs for their money when they saw the police.

Ah Fong, proprietor of the den, gambling apparatus and $35 found on the tables, were taken into custody by the officers.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN JACINTO, Jan. 1.—Owing to the scarcity of quail during the season which closed last night the local hunters here are almost unanimously in favor of a closed season next year in order to give the birds a chance to regain a footing in this locality. Although this season, which opened on October 15, was one month shorter than usual, the decline in number of birds was even more noticeable than last year.

It is hoped that even if a closed season for the entire year is not established, that the short season of last year will obtain, as it will give the birds a chance to settle down before mating season arrives, as it is the opinion of a majority of hunters that birds that have been frightened just before the mating season will not mate at all.

FLASHES.

CONNIE WOULD KISS.

FILM STAR REFUSES TO PLAY JAPANESE ROLE.

By Grace Kingsley.

From far New York comes the exciting word that Constance Talmadge has refused to play a Japanese role No, not from any racial feeling, or anything highbrow like that. Simply—well, to tell the truth, because there's no kissing in the picture. And it's not, either, that Connie is so overwhelmingly fond of kissing, even though she's an expert professional kisser on the screen. Oh, well, let her tell the tale herself.

"Just imagine those Japanese trying to show a genuine affection on the stage or screen with nary a kiss," declared Constance indignantly, in the course of an interview "I suppose they want to se the handsome hero win the beautiful maid by shaking her hand, kowtowing and playing a game of tiddle-de-winks with her. But they will want those things in vain if they look to America for their supply of film entertainment.

"Just picture for yourself how our movies would look after they had passed through the hands of the Japanese censors, the big, gripping love scene gone and the whole plot spoiled! Just imagine 'him' gazing ardently at 'her,' holding out his arms, and she all ready to lay her head on his manly chest, and bing—scene's cut, and they give each other a high handshake!

"Kissing is an art with me—with us," corrected Constance, "but with the Japanese it's a crime. I'll make love in the good old Yankee fashion or quit. There are situations when a kiss is an absolute necessity, I mean on the screen, of course. The audience expects it, and I'll never disappoint my audience if I can help it."

Sounds Reasonable.

Talk about perparedness! Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, sees no reason for missing any tricks. His New Year's cards read: "Mr. Carl Laemmle wishes you a happy Universal holiday season." That's fair enough.

Cissy Fitzgerald Settles.

Cissy Fitzgerald, she of the celebrated long-distance, non-skid wink, has commenced work under her United Picture Theaters contract, at the Horsley studio, on a picture entitled "See America Thirst."

Miss Fitzgerald's mother is with her, and she has taken a house at Ocean Park, where each morning before breakfast she takes her constitutional by the sad sea waves.

Mystery Note.

Colleen Moore, Hugh Dierker photodrama star, has just finished work on an eight-reel picture as yet unnamed, and concernnig the theme of which there is a deep, dark mystery, known only to a few hundred newspaper people throughout the land, all of whom have promised not to say a word about it until told they may.

Gale Henry Reports.

Gale Henry, Bullseye star, widely heralded as the homeliest girl in the movies, and glad of it, tells one regarding a recent experience in Arizona, where she went to make some comedy scenes. It was discovered necessary to have a few sets erected and the director, rather than wire back to his studio in Hollywood for the help, telegraphed a theatrical manager in a nearby Arizona town: "Badly in need of carpenters and property men for movie set. Can I hire your men for a day?"

The answer came back: "He will be there."

Screen Must Have Youth.

Antrim Short and Winifred Westover furnish a touch of youthful romance in the Screen Classic production of "Old Lady 31," being made by Metro.

Alice Lake's Helpful Hand.

When six persons were pinned under an overturned automobile on the Venice boulevard yesterday, Alice Lake, Metro star, assisted in extricating them. Then she washed and dressed cuts suffered by some of the party. On reaching home she found that playing Red Cross nurse without the regulation uniform was not profitable. Her new velvet gown had been ruined.

Bullseye Official Leaves.

General Manager Bruno J. Becker of the Gale Henry Comedy Company left Hollywood Wednesday to attend an important meeting of the Bullseye Film Corporation officials in New York.

Publisher Visits.

A. MacArthur, Jr., advertising manager of the Moving Picture World, has arrived in town for a two months' stay. Mr. MacArthur will visit Santa Barbara, San Francisco and other points before returning East.

Writers with Ince.

Thomas H. Ince announces having signed up two literary lights to write stories for his company. These are none other than Bayard Veiller, author of "Within the Law," "The Thirteenth Chair," and other well-known plays, and Louis Joseph Vance, whose adventure and mystery stories have entertained and thrilled millions of readers.

Real Cops' Expert Advice.

For some reason or other which might be explained by psychologists but is beyond him, says George Beban, actors don't make good police officers even in pictures. So after rehearsing a number of thespians for policeman in certain court scenes in "One Man in a Million," he sent down and obtained the services of two real live cops. Also he used booze in the picture. Of this the said cops suspiciously partook, afterward laughing delightedly. They both bore out Mr. Beban's declaration that it was only fake stuff.

Tally Announces.

T. L. Tally, jubilantly announces as the first big super production of the new year the old famous stage classic, "In Old Kentucky," with Anita Stewart as the star. It was directed by Marshal Neilan. The film will have its initial showing in this city at the Kinema Theater starting January 11.

June Mathis Returns.

June Mathis returned to the Metro studio from her vacation in New York City, and immediately started the scenario of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." On her way West the Screen Classic scenario chiefess stopped in Chicago to discuss with Vicente Blasco Ibanez the plans for filming his famous novel.

Injured Star Provided For.

After all, Marguerite de la Motte, Metro star, who was injured in an automobile accident one day last week, is not to be debarred from completing her role in "The Hope." Maxwell Karger, producing manager, has arranged the routine of filming the story so that the 14-year-old actress may do her scenes last of all, and she is looking forward with hope to the day when she will be able to leave her home and take up her work at the Metro studio.

Ethel Clayton's Treasure.

Ethel Clayton is the possessor of a fur coat of which she doesn't know what disposal to make—whether just to have it framed, or put under a glass, or sell it and live opulently on the proceeds the rest of her life. And the funny thing about it is that she only just learned its value.

The coat is one which Miss Clayton bought three years ago for $2500. Of late she has considered it shabby, and has been using it to motor in during bad weather. The other day her brother, Donald Clayton, took it to a furrier to have it relined or rebuttoned or something, and the man told Clayton he hoped Miss Clayton understood the value of the coat.

"Why, yes, she finds it very handy when she has to motor in rainy or muddy weather," replied Clayton. Whereat the furrier threw up his hands in holy horror.

"Why, that coat is worth $10,000 today, due to the increase in the value of furs during the past two years," he explained, and young Clayton hastily decided that if his sister didn't want it any more he'd have it cut up into bits to pay his cafe bills with

New Musician with "Bird."

When "The Bird of Paradise" is played at the Mason next week there will come with the show Big Ban Aeko, the only Hawaiian remaining from the original cast. Mr. Aeko has just returned from a trip to the Hawaiian Islands; he brought back a big collection of new properties, including calabashes and some gorgeously-colored feathers and tapi clothes. With him also came Eleune, the prize steel guitar-player of Hilo, who performs on that instrument during the Tully play.

Vita's Two New Stars.

Two new stars are about to glitter in the film constellation. Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, has returned from a visit to the West Coast actudio at Hollywood, Cal., with the interesting announcement that Joe Ryan and Jean Paige will be co-starred in the next Vitagraph serial, following Antonio Moreno's "The Invisible Hand," which is nearing release date. Joe Ryan, the best-known and loved "bad man" on the screen, has appeared in a number of Vitagraph serials, and Miss Paige has been leading lady in big feature productions at Vitagraph's Brooklyn studio.

The new serial is to be made under the tentative title of "Moods of Evil." It was written by Albert E. Smith and Cyrus Townsend Brady.

Meighan's Prize Letter.

Thomas Meighan Lasky star, has received what he believes to be the most unusual piece of fan mail ever sent to a member of the local motion-picture colony. The communication came to Meighan from a blind girl in Australia who uses the Braille system of writing, a series of points and dots raised on a sheet of paper. In the girl's letter, which is translated in ink by her mother, she writes that she has a perfect "mind picture" of Meighan, gained from minute descriptions supplied by her mother, and she adds that she goes to the motion-picture show not less than four times a week.

BUTLER TO HEAD HIS OWN COMPANY.

Fred J. Butler, stage director of the Morosco Stock Company, yesterday started his son, David Butler, the well known young actor of stage and film fame, on the highway to 1920 success, by presenting him with a New Year's gift in the shape of fifty-one shares of stock in the David Butler Films, Inc., a corporation that has just been organized under the laws of New Jersey.

And just to make the gift more than ordinarily acceptable, Butler, Sr., handed to Butler, Jr., a two-year lease on a Hollywood studio; a complete continuity of the first story to be produced and which will go to the film world as "Broadway, or Bust," a certified release from his five years' starring contract with the Universal Company, a framed copy of the charter of the new corporation, and a certificate to the effect that the projectors of the David Butler Films, Inc. have deposited with the Guaranty Trust Company, of New York, a sufficient sum to meet all of the estimated expenses of the eight pictures that will be made during the coming year.

Fred J. Butler will be personally interested, in a business capacity, in the new Butler company and will continue to direct the activities of the Morosco stage. A release has been arranged for with one of the important distributing organizations of New York and everything is in readiness for the director's order to "shoot."

The new Butler company will commence work on "Broadway, or Bust," January 30. During the year they will produce eight pictures.

David Butler's rise in the film world has been very rapid. Until about a year ago he was a member of the local Morosco Stock Company. D. W. Griffith for some time had had the young actor in mind for an unusual and important role and when he made "The Greatest Thing in Life," he gave young Butler his screen opportunity.

Last summer Universal, discerning starring potentialities in Butler, gave him a five years' contract, by the terms of which he was to be elevated to stardom at the end of six months' preparatory work. But Butler, pere, decided that if Butler fils, was to be starred, it ought to be at the head of his own organization.

The Butler organization has procured the eight stories required for the first year's output, it is announced.

MRS. T. E. ROWAN, LATE MAYOR'S WIDOW, DIES.

CAME HERE FROM AUSTRIA WHEN LOS ANGELES WAS SMALL TOWN.

Mrs. T. E. Rowan, widow of the late Mayor Rowan of Los Angeles, and one of the earliest pioneers of this city, died at her home, 460 South Virgil avenue, Wednesday afternoon. Funeral services will be held this morning at 10 o'clock from the W. H. Sutch funeral parlors. Interment will be at Hollywood Cemetery.

Mrs. Rowan was born in 1848 in Vienna, Austria. Her father was an Austrian army officer and left the Austrian service to take up arms with the Hungarian patriot Kossuth. The failure of the rebellion left her father and mother exiles and they came to America, landing in New York in 1854. Later they came to California by way of the Isthmus of Panama, crossing the isthmus on mule back.

They reached San Francisco in 1856 and settled there. In San Francisco, when 14 years old, Mrs. Rowan was married, she and her husband coming to Los Angeles in 1862 and finding a little town of about 2000 population. Mr. Rowan died in 1901, about two years after he completed his term as Mayor.

Mrs. Rowan leaves three children, Miss Josephine Ti Rowan, T. E. Rowan, Jr. and V. J. Rowan.

HERE'S CHANCE FOR MASH-NOTE EXPERTS.

The theater management states that the girl who writes the best love letter to Cody will be given a try-out at the Astra Studio in Glendale, and if she makes good will have a chance to become the star's leading woman in his next feature. It is further announced that the next best matrimonial missive will win $25 for its writer, while other prizes are also being offered. The letters are to be addressed to Lew Cody, Symphony Theater, Los Angeles and must reach the box office not later than Wednesday of next week.

BURGLAR RAID NETS FOUR

Following a gun battle in which Pasadena police participated early yesterday morning, Frank J. Norton, 20 years of age, was in the County Hospital last night, with bullet holes in one arm and a leg, three other men were in the Pasadena jail, and a hunt was being made in this city for associates of the quartette, believed to be the members of a gang of burglars that have entered a number of Crown City homes during the past two weeks.

Norton and the others were caught when a police cordon was thrown about the home of A. N. Johnson, 915 South El Molino avenue, Pasadena, after W. G. Close, 931 South El Molino avenue, reported to the authorities that burglars were in the Johnson house. The police say they recovered $1000 worth of jewelry, property of Mr. Johnson, from the suspects.

Mr. Close, who knew the Johnson family was away from home, saw a motor car standing in front of the place, and men inside. He telephoned to the police. Detectives O'Rourke and Berta joined him and the three rushed the house. In the ensuing scramble, Mr. Close seized Norton and two of the others were taken. Their names, with that of a fourth man, arrested about an hour later, are withheld by the police.

The affair was kept as quiet as possible, because of clews which the police to believe a burglar's organization of moment can be uncovered in Los Angeles.

MOTOR BANDITS ARE BUSY.

A gang of four highwaymen operating in a four-passenger "chummy" roadster—stolen for the night's operations—held up three pedestrians returning to their homes in the western part of the city last night.

First, the gang encountered Arthur R. Peacock, of 806 East Seventh street, while he was walking near Twenty-first street and Figueroa streets. From him they obtained $5 in cash, his gold watch and chain, and a black leather billfold.

Then they sped north to Tenth and Grattan streets, where they held up R. C. Jackson, of 942 Valencia street. They took Mr. Jackson's watch, pearl stickpin and card case, but spurned an amount of silver change in his pocket.

The third victim of the gang was S. M. Perrin, of 902 Grattan street, whom the highwaymen encountered while he was walking with his girl at Twelfth and Bonnie Brae street. The highwaymen got $15 from Mr Perrin and $2 from the young lady. They also took Mr. Perrin's stickpin but let ihm keep his watch when he pleaded with them for its possession, saying that it was an heirloom, given to him by his father.

In each robbery, three of the highwaymen dismounted from the car and surrounded their victims with leveled revolvers, while the fourth man remained in the car with the motor running. Good descriptions of the quartette were given by the police.

"The Pointing Finger" was adapted by Miss Clark from the well-known magazine story "No Experience Required" by Frank R. Adams.

NEW CASE NOW EXPERTS' FIGHT.

Expected to Declare Accused Suffering from Paranoia.

Long Hypothetical Question Ready on Mental Tests.

That the five alienists who will be called today by the defense in the case of Harry S. New, charged with the murder of Freda J. Lesser, will declare that New is suffering from paranoia of a dementia praecox type, closely allied to paresis, was the belief expressed yesterday by physicians who have followed the testimony in the case introduced by the defense to convince the jury that the man on trial should not be held legally responsible for his act.

The defense experts, Drs. Edward H. Williams, Ross Moore, E. D. Hoeg, E. O. Sawyer and Raymond Wendt, have all examined New and some of them has given any indication of his opinion. But the testimony already introduced by the defense is in itself the basis for a medical history of New, which begins with irrational actions when he was a child, as testified to by his half-sister, Miss Edna Clancey. It leads through his boyhood life in Indianapolis and his life as a street sweeper in Oklahoma City, and as a soldier on the Mexican border, up to and including his acts while living in Venice and, finally, by the testimony of H. P. Dixon, his last employer, of New's inability to drive a small truck, his gazing spells while on the car, his lack of understanding of orders given to him and his general lack of comprehension of facts.

EXPERTS' OPINION.

Neurologists who have followed the case said yesterday that this medical history would lead an expert to form an opinion that New is suffering from chronic mental unsoundness, beginning in his youth and leading to a general failure of his mental faculties. This, in the language of the layman, is the meaning of the terms paranoia or dementia praecox type, closely allied to paraphrenia.

Dr. Louis Weber, Dr. Charles L. Allen, Dr. D. H. Calder and other experts called by Dist.-Atty. Woolwine are expected to dispute this opinion of the defense experts and will hold that, while New is, in their opinion, harmed as a result of their examinations of him in the jail, of low mentality, a dullard, he is able to distinguish between right and wrong. It will then be for the jury to determine which position is to be adopted.

LONG QUESTION READY.

When Judge Craig calls the court to session at 9 o'clock this morning he will begin the twelfth actual day of the case before experts for both sides will be sent to hasten the reading by Attorney Le Compte Davis, chief counsel for the defense, of a hypothetical question of 5000 words, summarizing the evidence in the case as to New's mental state. This will make quite necessary the reading of the question as each expert is called to the stand.

The defense experts will, it is expected, occupy all of today and possibly a part of tomorrow, for the court has indicated that there will be a session of court on Saturday. Substantial testimony introduced by the prosecution will follow and it is expected that Mrs. A. L. Senner, a nurse at the Lesser home, and possibly Mrs. Alice Lesser, the mother of Freda Lesser, will be recalled to the stand.

The defense will then have the privilege of a sur-rebuttal, in which experts will be recalled, if any testimony has been introduced in rebuttal as to the state of New's mind, and this will carry the case probably through Monday and Tuesday of next week.

Allowing two days for arguments and the judge's charge to the jury to be considered likely that the case will be placed in the jury's hands by Thursday afternoon. Attorney W. L. Richardson of the defense said that it seemed now that the case will be completed by that time.

MOTHER VISITS NEW.

Mrs. Lillie M. Burger, mother of Harry S. New, visited her son as [illegible] yesterday at the County Jail and brought him carnations, of which he is very fond. Harry told his mother of the birth of three kittens to the jail cat, which has been a particular pet of New's since it was placed in jail last July. Mrs. Burger said that she placed her trust in God that all would come out for her son and that she had no fear of the verdict.

New's mother said that it Mrs. Freda's mother, made the statement, as reported, that she was sure New might escape the death penalty, Mrs. Burger said she could only feel a mother's sympathy for her and wish that she, too, might realize that God makes all things right and that one should trust in Him and lay aside all other thoughts.

ASK FOR FRANCHISE.

Company Would Furnish Gas to the Entire County.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, Jan. 1.—When the Board of Supervisors meets January 5 one of the principal items of business to be considered will be the petition of the Midway Gas Company for a blanket franchise to enable them to lay gas mains along all roads in Tulare county.

If the petition is granted, it is said, it will be the purpose of the company to start work immediately on a distribution system which will permit natural gas to all Tulare county towns.

It is assumed the petition will be signed by the Central Counties Gas Company of this place, which company is now furnishing gas to Visalia, Tulare, Exeter, Lindsay and Porterville.

NEW CASE NOW EXPERTS' FIGHT.

Expected to Declare Accused Suffering from Paranoia.

Long Hypothetical Question Ready on Mental Tests.

That the five alienists who will be called today by the defense in the case of Harry S. New, charged with the murder of Freda J. Lesser, will declare that New is suffering from paranoia of a dementia praecox type, closely allied to paranoia, was the belief expressed yesterday by physicians who have followed the testimony in the case rendered by the defense to con- vince the jury that the man on trial should not be held legally responsi- ble for his act.

The defense experts, Drs. Edward H. Williams, Ross Moore, E. B. Vose, E. O. Sawyer and Raymond Bush, have all examined New and none of them has given any indica- tion of his opinion. But the testi- mony already introduced by the de- fense is in itself the basis for a medical history of New, which be- gins with irrational actions when he was a child, as testified to by his landlady, Miss Edna Clancy. It runs through his boyhood life in Minneapolis and his life as a street car in Oklahoma City, and as a sailor on the Mexican border, up to and including his acts while liv- ing in Venice and, finally, by the testimony of H. F. Dixon, his last employer, of New's inability to run a small truck, his gazing fits while on the car, his lack of understanding of orders given to him and his general lack of comprehension of facts.

EXPERTS' OPINION.

Alienists who have followed the case said yesterday that this medical history would lead an ex- pert to form an opinion that New is suffering from chronic mental un- soundness, beginning in his youth and leading to a general failure of his mental faculties. This, in the language of the layman, is the meaning of the terms paranoia of dementia praecox type, closely al- lied to paraphrenia.

Dr. Louis Weber, Dr. Charles L. Bulla, Dr. D. H. Calder and other experts called by Dist.-Atty. Wool- wine are expected to dispute this opinion of the defense experts and will hold that, while New is, in their opinion, tainted as a result of their examinations of him with the jail, of his mentality, a dullard, he is able to distinguish between right and wrong. It will then be for the jury to determine which position is to be upheld.

LONG QUESTION READY.

When Judge Craig calls the court tomorrow at 9 o'clock this morning the twelfth actual day of the case the experts for both sides will be ready to listen to the reading by Dr. Lempte Davis, chief alienist for the defense, of a hypo- thetical question of 5000 words, covering the evidence in the case relative to New's mental state. This will make unnecessary the reading of the question as each expert is called to the stand.

The defense experts will, it is ex- pected, occupy all of today and pos- sibly a part of tomorrow, for the court has indicated that there will be a session of court on Saturday. Medical testimony introduced by the prosecution will follow and it is expected that Mrs. A. L. Senner, a friend of the Lesser home, and possibly Mrs. Alice Lesser, the mother of Freda Lesser, will be re- called to the stand.

The defense will then have the privilege of a sur-rebuttal, in which its experts will be recalled, if any new matter has been introduced in relation to the state of New's mind, and this will carry the case probably through Monday and Tues- day of next week.

Following two days for arguments on the judge's charge to the jury is considered likely that the case will be placed in the jury's hands Tuesday afternoon. Attorney Earl L. Richardson of the defense stated yesterday that the case will be completed by that time.

MOTHER VISITS NEW.

Mrs. Lillie M. Burger, mother of Harry S. New, visited her son as usual yesterday at the County Jail and brought him carnations, of which he is very fond. Harry told his mother of the birth of three kittens to the jail cat, which has been a particular pet of New's since he was placed in jail last July. Mrs. Burger said that she placed her hand on God that all would come right for her son and that she had faith in the verdict.

New's mother said that if Mrs. Freda's mother, made the statement, as reported, that she was sure New might escape the death penalty, Mrs. Burger said she could feel a mother's sympathy for her and wish that she, too, "might see that God makes all things right and that one should trust in God and lay aside all other doubts."

TULARE CORRESPONDENCE.]

TULARE, Jan. 1.—When the Board of Supervisors meets January 5 one of the principal items of busi- ness to be considered will be the petition of the Midway Gas Com- pany for a blanket franchise to en- able them to lay gas mains along all roads in Tulare county.

If the petition is granted, it is said, it will be the purpose of the cor- poration to start work immediately on a distribution system which will furnish natural gas to all Tulare and Visalia towns.

It is assumed the petition will be granted by the Central Counties Gas Company of this place, which cor- poration is now furnishing gas to Visalia, Tulare, Exeter, Lindsay and Strathmore.

DAILY TRADE TALK.

Another Side of High Clothing Cost; New Year Outlook.

BY CHAPIN HALL.

A Los Angeles clothing merchant of prominence locally and known nationally throughout the trade has filed an exception to a recent article appearing in this department in the form of an interview with Mr. John E. Mauer, of the Mauer Cattle Company, wherein it was claimed that the actual value of the wool in an average man's business suit selling for from $50 to $75 retail was only $5.27. The inference which the protestant and perhaps others, has drawn, is that the difference between $5.27 and $50 or $75 is rather more than enough to allow for tailoring and overhead. His argument accomplishes just what all thinking people like to see accomplished, and that is a full, fair and frank discussion of production and marketing problems, for it is only through such discussion and the application of the lessons learned thereby that permanent reforms may be effected.

This merchant takes the position that one might as well claim that the lumber in a beautifully carved table retailing for $200 represents an outlay of only $25. "As a matter of fact," he says, "a reduction in the price of wool of 50 cents per pound, with the present high cost of labor and other materials would make only a slight reduction in the actual cost of manufacturing, so that the intrinsic value of the cloth itself is a very small part of the total outlay for a suit of clothes. At least 80 per cent., he claims, is for labor from raw material to finished product. If this is true, and I have no reason to question the accuracy of this expert's statement, it only emphasizes a condition which is confronting the American consumer, and the fact that relief must be looked for first from the manufacturing rather than the producing end of the market.

Everyone wears clothing. Everyone is up in arms over the excessive charges which are being made for this necessity. Any man will tell you, if you will listen, that the latest suit of clothes he paid $50, $60 or $75 for has not the wearing qualities of clothes he could buy four or five years ago for $25 or $30. Here is the schedule of cost prepared by the authority being quoted:

The cloth in each suit averaging three and one-half yards at $6 per yard, and which could have been purchased in 1913 for $2 amounts to $21. The cutting, trimming and making he says is $24.50. Add to this a manufacturer's profit of 20 per cent. and we have a cost per average suit of $54.60 plus a retailer's profit of 30 per cent. equals a retail price in round figures of $70. While this estimate is based on a cloth price of $6 per yard, it is said in the making of good suits this cost is more often from $7.50 to $12 per yard. Worsted yarns today cost $4.10 per pound, against a pre-war price of $1.15.

It is, of course, out of the question for everyone to buy $70 suits of clothes so an example of a cheaper grade is given as follows:

Cost of three-and-one-half yards of cloth	$10.00
Cutting, making and trimming	15.00
Retailer's profit	15.00
Manufacturer's profit	10.00
Total	$40.00

A suit of this grade, he says, is about the cheapest that would be handled by any representative dealer. It costs just as much, it is pointed out, for labor on a cheap piece of cloth as it does on a good piece of cloth, the chief difference being a saving in lining, buttons, etc., all of which are extremely high, some having advanced as much as 300 per cent. in the last five years.

In addition to these charges there is the item of expressage, for freight deliveries are found too slow, uncertain and unsatisfactory under government direction; an average cost of $2.50 per suit for bushelling; delivery, alternations and the profit taking all along the line from the wool grower through the spinner, the dyer, the weaver, the manufacturer, the retailer, the railroad, the delivery company. The cost of labor in every department from salesman to bushelman has largely increased while the overhead expense is no insignificant item.

In concluding his very interesting argument for the defense this Los Angeles merchant prince says:

"Let's quit growling about high prices and know that when production again reaches its maximum, gold is not controlled as it is today the cost of production will automatically decrease, and thereby result in lower prices to the consumer. In the meantime let us continue to be good law-abiding citizens, teaching Americanism as we go along, and not trying to upset the laws of trade by remembering that the income tax must be paid by the ultimate consumer."

The New Year.

Because the new year begins at the end of the week with only one business day between the total suspension of the first and the Saturday half-holiday it is not to be presumed that the full stride will be caught before next week. Today and tomorrow will afford little opportunity to get an accurate line upon early year conditions. The local stock market is in good condition and it is likely that, in many of the listings, a higher level will be reached before long. In fact, this tendency was already well evidenced in the closing days of 1919. So far as the eastern market is concerned there can be no great activity so long as money remains as high as it has been this week, but there is a strong probability that call money will be easier very soon. At anything like a steady normal rate the market will very soon develop strength. The sale of stocks to establish losses prior to income tax returns ended Wednesday, and there will probably be a repurchasing movement. On the other hand, A. W. Coote issues the following bulletin signed by an eastern correspondent:

"The market continues to show extraordinary powers of resistance and sentiment is growing more bullish, but the situation has all the earmarks of artificial stimulation to facilitate distribution of stocks. The churning process is kept up and market looks good, but makes no headway except in the few oversold specialties. Prices of most active industrials are too high and the market is unusually dangerous. Rails are neglected and dormant, but low-priced bonds and stocks look safe and are the most promising bargains on the list. Look for an improved market in this group during January, but I am afraid of industrials."

Judge Gary says that he considers the business outlook satisfactory and denies that there is a disposition on the part of the U. S. Steel Corporation to advance prices. On the whole the trend of expert opinion is optimistic.

A Timely Offering.

In presenting a first preferred stock cumulative 7 per cent. offering of the Eastern Manufacturing Company security at 98 and accrued dividends to yield 7.14 per cent., E. H. Rollins & Sons call timely attention to the current shortage of news print for the company putting out this issue is one of the largest manufacturers of white paper in the United States. It produces all of its own raw material, and its net earnings are said to be over four and one-half times the annual dividend requirements of the first preferred stock, with net assets in amount equivalent to $250 for each share of first preferred stock, par value, $100.

Municipal Bonds.

William Cheadle Borchers has just issued an interesting pamphlet sustaining the argument that under present conditions municipal bonds are a superior investment because the financial strength behind a municipal bond affords the greatest degree of safety.

Hold Your Liberties.

"Daily quotations on Liberty Bonds which at present show them below par, have nothing to do with the maturity value of the bonds, and are of no interest to the ordinary bond holder," Governor John U. Calkins of the San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank, declared. "The U. S. government will redeem every Liberty Bond at its maturity date at face value plus accrued interest."

The reason for the decline in the price of the government securities is that speculators, anxious to win higher returns on riskier investments, have thrown their Liberty Bonds on the market, while subscribers who in some cases have found difficulty in completing payments, have let go of large blocks of the bonds. The daily quotations on Liberty Bonds reflect the action of these forces which fix market values. Market values, however, have nothing whatever to do with real values.

The man who sells his Liberty Bond now loses money. It is good business to buy more at the present market values rather than to sell what you have.

Hydro-Electric Companies in California

THE far-sighted men who drew up and caused the enactment of our Public Utility Act performed a service of inestimable value to the people of California.

They saw clearly that competition among hydro-electric companies could only result in a great loss to the public. Ruinous competition of public utilities has always been followed by combination, inefficient service and then higher rates in order to recoup the losses.

Under our law all public utilities are free from the fear of having a competitor enter the territory so long as efficient service is given at reasonable rates. By reasonable rates are meant rates sufficient to give a decent living to employes, provide adequately for depreciation and maintenance and provide a reasonable return upon the invested capital.

This freedom from competition is one of the basic reasons why we strongly recommend the securities of California hydro-electric companies to our clients.

Write, call or telephone for our current offerings of California hydro-electric securities.

TEXAS DEFINES GOOD OIL AREA.

Tests will Complete Map of Producing Fields.

Much Money is Being Spent in Wildcat Borings.

State Assisting Small Investors to Avoid Loss.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

AUSTIN (Tex.) Dec. 23. — Many dry holes have been the result of drilling for oil in wildcat territory during the last few weeks. Gradually the testing of various localities of the State is being accomplished and within the next several months the producing area will be probably well defined.

Some of the wildcat wells have cost enormous sums of money, due largely to their remoteness from the railroad and the heavy cost of transportation. In other instances, the formations have been found exceedingly difficult to penetrate. According to information received here, the first of the wells drilled by E. H. R. Green of New York, son of the late Mrs. Hetty Green, upon a large lease acreage that he owns about fifty miles north of Del Rio has been temporarily abandoned after approximately $100,000 was spent in drilling work. It is stated that drilling of this well will not be resumed until next spring.

MILLIONS IN WILDCATS.

Many millions of dollars have been invested by persons of small means in stocks of companies that are drilling wildcat wells. It is about the biggest gamble that one may well imagine. The State Railroad Commission, in an effort to lend assistance to uniformed investors of this character, offers to make an investigation and report upon the finincial standing and prospects of any oil company that is operating in Texas, when requested to do so by a stockholder. The fee charged for this service is seventy-five cents.

It is shown by a compilation of reports made to the Railroad Commission by five of the larger common carrier pipe line companies operating in Texas that for the month of October the total number of barrels of crude petroleum gathered by them was 5,986,089.75; number of barrels owned and held by pipe line companies, 5,284,837.90; number of barrels held for others, 2,827,198.35; unfilled storage capacity, 6,242,957.85 barrels; total storage capacity, 17,445,491.10 barrels.

PIPE LINES OPEN.

Comment on the reports was made by the oil and gas department of the Railroad Commission as follows:

"In giving publicity to the foregoing statement attention is called to the fact that the overwhelming proportion of the oil transported in this State by the pipe line companies is the property of the pipe line companies or their subsidiary producing companies. Under the item of 'barrels held for others,' indicated above, a very small proportion, as is shown by the more detailed statement on file in our office, is the property of independent producers; the subsidiary or affiliated companies of the pipe lines operating under different names being treated as oil held for others.

"It is significant that although the pipe lines are common carriers and have filed their tariffs, and although it has cost the Federal and the State governments great effort to impress upon pipe line companies of common carrier character, very few producers avail themselves of their privilege of reaching an independent market by using the pipe lines of this State.

"The Railroad Commission of Texas is doing all in its power to see that the independent shipper may use these common carriers on fair terms and without discrimination, but so far few have availed themselves of their privileges."

TRANSPORTATION BETTER.

At this time the daily pipe line runs from the Burkburnett district, including the Northwest extension pool, are approximately 92,000 barrels; which is an increase of about eight thousand barrels in ten days. In all of the shallow fields the total pipe line runs are now close to 103,000 barrels a day.

Everything points to a big improvement in transportation conditions by the beginning of the coming year. It will be surprising if the pipe line runs of the North Texas fields do not amount to 250,000 barrels a day by January 1. Large additions to the runs will be made about December 1, about which date the Sinclair Gulf Corporation is due to commence taking oil through its pipe line. The Gulf Pipe Line company will have its line finished to the Burkburnett field about that date.

It is stated that the wells of the shallow sand fields are decreasing very slightly from their initial production.

Roughly speaking, there are at this time twelve producing fields in Central West Texas, or Central North Texas, as the territory is sometimes designated. These fields are known to the industry as Electra, with a daily production of about 10,200 barrels; Burkburnette, 92,000 barrels; Iowa Park, 1000 barrels; Petrolia, 620 barrels; Holliday, 90 barrels; Stephens county, 42,000 barrels; Ranger-Eastland, 64,200 barrels; Desdemona-Comanche, 38,120 barrels; Strawn, 220 barrels; Moran, 160 barrels; Brown county, 380 barrels; Coleman county, 120 barrels.

In adjoining territory to the several counties in which these fields are situated there is some small production with prospects that good new fields may be developed any time.

made unconscious. Mrs. Sinclair's body was near her chair. One hand still clutched the table cloth. Physicians who examined the bodies say both died a painless death.

INQUEST TODAY.

Although it is thought the couple came to their deaths by gas the possibility of there being some other induced Coroner Hartwell to order an inquest. It will be held at the W. A. Brown undertaking establishment today.

Portions of the meal were still on the breakfast table when Severy entered the room and he says the heater was still burning. According to Mrs. W. L. Dusan of 1615 South Wilton, a neighbor, Mrs. Sinclair was seen about her home for the last time on the afternoon of Tuesday. At the time she discussed with Mrs. Dusan the planting of a rose hedge between the two homes and the women planned to purchase the plants. Early next morning Severy attempted to get the Sinclair home by telephone and failed. After repeated efforts had failed. Severy made up his mind that the couple had gone out of town. Early yesterday he again attempted to telephone to the Sinclair residence and then called only to discover the two bodies.

CAME FROM BOSTON.

The police learned during the investigation that the Sinclairs came to this city from Boston, Mass., about six months ago. Mr. Sinclair before coming resigned as vice-president of the Choralcelo Manufacturing Company, 24 Farnsworth street, Boston. Mr. Severy, who at one time was president of the company, says Sinclair was wealthy, being the inventor of the Choralcelo and other musical instruments.

The couple leave on daughter, Mrs. Anne Ferdinand of Gloucester, Mass. Mrs. Sinclair also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Emma Dunlap of Summerville, Mass., and Mrs. Mollie Malabar of Georgetown, Me.

Deceased was a member of the local Scottish Rite, and of Los Angeles Commandery No. 43, Knights Templar.

It was announced last night that owing to evidence clearly indicating that Mr. Brauer came to his death on Tuesday as a result of a gunshot wound self-inflicted, no inquest would be necessary.

J. MARGOLIN DIES, FUNERAL ON SUNDAY.

Jassay Margolin, who had been in the wholesale grocery business here for eleven years, died last night at his home, 2633 Budlong Avenue, at the age of 55 years. ARIZONA REPUBLICANS CONVENE ON JAN. 19.

KEEN FRIENDLY RIVALRY EXPECTED OVER CHOICE OF NATIONAL DELEGATES.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX, Jan. 1.—A call has been made for a meeting of the State Republican Committee at Phoenix, January 19, this being the opening gun of the fall campaign in Arizona.

The meeting will fix time and place for a State convention to select six delegates and six alternates to the Republican National Convention in Chicago next June.

Chairman Albert M. Sames, of Douglas, and Secretary Andres Baumert, Jr., of Phoenix, state they had expected at the opening meeting to have present chairman Will H. Hays of the National Committee, but word has been received that he has had to change his plans and that, after the meeting of the National Committee in San Francisco on June 12, he will return East by a northern route.

An unusual degree of confidence is felt by the Republicans of Arizona concerning the result of the fall elections. Already a number of party leaders have expressed a desire to go to Chicago, and a lively contest is expected for the six delegate places.

PHOENIX CRIME WAVE.

Several churches and societies have opened an attack upon jail conditions in Phoenix. Charges are that third degree methods are in use in the City Jail. Chief of Police Brisbois indignantly denies the strong arm allegations, though not denying that conditions in the jail are unsanitary, though disinfectants are in use daily.

Oddly, there has been a stiff increase lately of arrests for drunkenness, and the city now is passing through what the chief calls "the worst crime wave in its history," stimulated by resort to booze substitutes. Nearly 500 arrests have been made during January, compared with 127 in May.

Phoenix has followed the example of Tucson and has suppressed the petty gambling games of a traveling carnival show, now on its way to California.

IN VALLEY, COUNTRY.

Long Beach Men Plan Large Investment Near Blythe, 'tis Said.

For the purpose of arranging the details of a trip to Blythe, in the Palo Verde Valley, with the object of securing several thousand acres of land along the Colorado River, where cotton and cattle will be raised on an extensive scale, a luncheon will be given at noon today at the Hotel Virginia, Long Beach, by John Lynes, formerly a cotton grower and cattle raiser of West Texas.

Mr. Lynes has been in the Palo Verde Valley for the past thirty days in consultation with irrigation engineers and is enthusiastic over the possibilities of the valley for cattle and cotton raising.

About twenty-five retired capitalists have been interested in the valley lands Mr. Lynes stated yesterday and he is planning to take them to Blythe, Monday or Tuesday of next week. The luncheon today will be attended by prominent business men and representatives from the Chamber of Commerce of Long Beach. It is planned to spend several million dollars in the valley, according to Mr. Lynes.

WOULD INSTALL NEW IRRIGATION SYSTEM.

WILL MAKE PROPOSITION TO STATE AND NATION FOR WATERWAYS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TULARE, Jan. 1.—Officials of the San Joaquin Valley Water Conservation and Development Association have prepared for submission to State and Federal authorities a plan for a complete survey of the water resources of the district from the Tehachepi to Stockton, as a preliminary to adoption of a plan for an irrigation system which will cover the valley in its entirety.

This survey, if made along the suggested lines, would be a compilation of data on the annual run-off, as well as the probable available water from underground flood, and would include maps of the various watersheds.

When these data are available the association expects to be able to silence all opposition to the plan for valley-wide work with figures which will show plenty of water to guarantee all present vested rights and at the same time materially extend the irrigable area of the valley.

DOCTOR SCORES AUTO ZONE LAW.

Sees Danger to Patients in no Parking Ordinance.

Impossible to Answer Calls in Emergency Cases.

Unrestricted Use of Car is Imperative, He Says.

BY DR. HOWARD MOFFATT.

Physicians and other professional men are being heard from on the proposed ordinance to prohibit parking of automobiles in the business area. Heard now from nearly every angle, and with the most bitter of criticism, citizens have ceased to see the funny side of the proposed no-parking ordinance and who with the seriousness of sound minds are not only decrying their own hurts but see the future of this "city-cide" absurdity.

Do you live in the proposed no-parking area? If so, many say they will move out to a place of liberty and freedom. From a humanitarian standpoint and this should be, if it is not, one of the most important; do you carry with you an immunity from all forms of ill health, sickness, disease and accident? If providence is kind to you and your body and mind are above the average, probably the urgency, or need, of the doctor has never occured, but tried and true as these bodies of our may be, unforseen happenings may occur, which necessitate a visit of the surgeon.

FORCED OUTSIDE.

Do you realize that your busy doctor is almost of necessity forced to remain outside this busy and ever-moving section of our city, if this new proposition is put over our heads? Many people by circumstance or necessity spend the greater part of their time in this proposed "Garden of Eden" and truly it will be the garden spoken of, if the trend of thought of our city fathers continues, while we all stand back and allow an experiment to be tried which could not be gotten away with in other cities.

Although speaking from the standpoint of a doctor, we are by far the least concerned and it would be selfish if we spoke alone. It is only as we are caring for those whom we are called upon to see, and care for within these limits. It is not a discrimination against any class that I speak of, but against all those unfortunates who are there or who may be compelled to seek medical or surgical services at a time when this garden is not open.

HOW IT WILL WORK.

A physician is called, he drives to the boundry line. Here for blocks the same old trouble and congestion will be found, only shifted to another place, and worse. This busy man takes his bag and walks, no telling how far, but even for this busy man it is not the exercise and self-sacrifice he is thinking of, but his time is being shamefully and needlessly wasted.

It is not the doctor's time that this foolish idea is wasting, it is the time of some other poor suffering or dying person, to whom the doctor is delayed in reaching. He is the one who suffers. How many patients do you think could be seen in a busy morning's work by this ancient method of locomotion? Figure this out for yourself, figure out the hardships to thousands of people even from this one angle of viewing the problem.

Many whose opinions are valuable have stated that this no-parking plan will only increase our congestion, because of the fact that people will still enter this restricted zone, do their marketing and shopping while their drivers block traffic running back and forth with no place to stop and no where to go.

THE EMERGENCY CALL.

Just one more word. Have you ever called your physician during the hours of his office, and requested that he come at once—immediately? It may be poison, it may be accident or serious illness. How is the immediate part of it going to take place? His car is a mile from the office, or, more sensible, he has left it at home. Why not? With profiteering in all the front and back lots where a car can possibly be kept. By the time you see your patient by other means it may be that soft music and a white rose would be more in order. No, none of us, the professional or business man as the case may be is ready for such drastic measures until we are better protected with other means of public parking.

I am only asking those who read this—is the whole thing square to you? If so, speaking for myself and the busy doctor who is your friend, we will have to revert back to the pre-historic days and attend to the bulk of people who need us as best we can. If the professional man can't have his car with him, and it has become one of the great necessities of his profession, some one will have to loose out.

CASE AGAINST CASE GOES BY THE BOARD.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Jan. 1.—A case against Case proved to be no case at all yesterday, and as that was the case, said Judge Harry H. Mason in Police Court, the case against Case was dismissed, Case's case being the only case on the calendar, and as the judge had no other hard cases whose cases were to be heard, court was dismissed.

The case was that of Rev. A. B. Case of 870 North Gordon street, this city, who was haled into court on the charge of having no owner's certificate on view in his automobile. When Rev. Case appeared in court, however, he averred that such was not the case, and offered to prove it. The court detailed Officer Thomas to go outside with the minister and the latter triumphantly pointed out to the officer the certificate, which was attached inside the top of the machine.

The next time the officer who cited Case into court will look higher before attempting to make out a case against a man like Case.

AUTO ORDINANCE HEARING TODAY.

Protests Against No-Parking Districts to be Made at Council Meeting.

The City Council will sit as a committee of the whole immediately after the regular Council session this morning, to consider the proposed no-parking ordinance, which has been prepared by the City Attorney on lines indicated by the Council.

At the same time the Council will consider the communications received from many sources, protesting against the restrictions and suggesting various modifications.

It appears certain that the ordinance will be materially modified. At today's hearing, opportunity will be given for verbal protests and suggestions for remedying the traffic congestion, and it is quite possible the matter will be still further considered before a definite plan is adopted.

IMPERIAL VALLEY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CALEXICO, Jan. 1.—Because a corpse was fifteen yards across the international boundary an undertaker from Calexico today was unable to take the naked body of a man from the High Line ditch near Mt. Signal to Calexico.

The body was discovered and a call sent to the local undertaken. Upon his return he notified the Mexicali authorities, who secured the body. It is thought that the remains are that of an insane man who was known to have been in that vicinity several days ago. The body was taken from the ditch after the water had receded from a recent flushhead.

YOUNGEST DEPOSITOR.

IMPERIAL. — Robert Eugene Johnson is believed to be the youngest bank depositor not only in the Imperial Valley but in the State of California. Robert Eugene opened a savings account at a local bank yesterday. The amount was $2, a present from W. J. Bathrick, a contractor with whom Robert Eugene's father is employed. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Johnson, and is 18 days old.

EXPENSIVE RIVALRY.

BRAWLEY. — Religious differences caused two Hindus to bid on an ordinary barley fork at the auction sale of Kala Singh, four miles west of this city, until the price was run up to $24, at which the fork was sold.

The price is a record price for the Imperial Valley.

PREFERS THE VALLEY.

CALEXICO.—En route to Europe, Mayor Casey Abbott of Calexico stopped long enough while crossing the plains of Kansas to write Capt. Stevens of Calexico as follows:

"I wouldn't give one acre of old Imperial Valley for the whole State of Kansas."

When he reached New York Thursday and was on board the ship ready to sail he telegraphed that just before he had boarded the ship he had tried to communicate with Calexico friends, but that the long-distance companies were unable to establish connections all the way through.

EL CENTRO.—Dan Cupid was a busy fellow in the Imperial Valley during the past year, according to figures given out at the County Clerk's office. Four hundred and thirty-nine happy couples were given licenses as compared to 310 during 1919. The return of the soldiers is given as the reason for the increase.

DEATH THREAT'S LAID TO WOMAN.

Order "Big 'Bertha" to Court to Answer Charge.

Again Seek Negress Notorious in Henderson Case.

Said to Have Menaced Rival for Politician's Love.

Following the taking of the affidavits of Lulu Stapler, Justice Summerfield yesterday issued a warrant against Bertha Lowe, a negress, known, to the police as "Big Bertha," and an order that she be brought into court to answer charges that she had made threats to kill Miss Stapler. The latter lives at 1002 East Forty-first street.

The complaining witness charges that a year ago the same woman attacked and beat her. She now asserts that Bertha Lowe called her on the telephone and said that she "would cut her with a razor until soap and water couldn't take it off."

She further declares that the woman accused her of making a present of a silk shirt to George Henderson, a negro politician, who was recently tried on a charge of giving a bribe for police protection.

The warrant was placed in the hands of Constable Thomas for service. Bail was fixed at $5000.

KEEP ROADS FIT.

Woman Recommends System in Use in Europe.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Jan. 1.—Miss Olivia E. Phelps-Stokes, one of the wealthiest women of this country, who owns a palatial winter home here and a big summer home at Lenox, Mass., says that this country could very well adopt a few road-making ideas from Europe.

"In this country we have some of the finest roads that have ever been built, and especially is this true of California," says Miss Stokes, "but we are careless and do not employ men to keep them in shape all the time, and the result is that they deteriorate rapidly.

"In Europe they keep piles of broken stone at the side of the road. Men walk the roads and when they discover a break, no matter how small, in the pavement it is repaired before it is enlarged. As a result the roads are kept in the best of repair at the minimum of cost."

Miss Stokes says that there should be some system organized of repairing the roads after they are once built. "There is scarcely any road that is permanent," she says, "and the taxpayers' money will go farther if a stitch is taken in time."

Safety First.

"Hard work never killed any man," severely began the presiding elder.

"I reckon it didn't, if you say so, parson," politely replied Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, Ark. "But, personally, I never cared to—yw-w-wn!—take the risk.—[Kansas City Star.

SHIPS FOR ALL ORIENT

Three Pacific Lines on Coast by May.

Frequent Sailings to be Made from Los Angeles and Other Western Ports.

Shipping Board Assures Great Opportunity for Tremendous Commerce.

ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Three trans-Pacific lines from terminals on the Pacific Coast will be reality by next May.

This was announced today by Chairman Payne of the United States Shipping Board, in connection with the enunciation of a definite policy to sell all ships now owned by the board, together with those now building and those still to be built. Purchasers of the ships must guarantee to the government that they will maintain the trade routes designated by the Shipping Board.

COMMISSIONERS IN ORIENT.

Trade commissioners are to be appointed by the board and stationed all over the world. One of the first to be appointed will be one for service in Shanghai, and his duty will be to build up Pacific business for these new trans-Pacific lines.

This is the concrete result of the visit to the Shipping Board some time ago of executives from every Pacific Coast city waiting for the establishment of these lines of trade and travel for the great Pacific commerce that must be concentrated on the western shores of the United States.

The first route will be to China, Japan and the Philippines, the second will be to China, Japan and Vladivostok, and the third will be to China, the Straits Settlement and India, sailings on the first two routes will be weekly, five ships being designated for each of these routes. On the third there will be two ships and sailings arranged every three weeks.

The Pacific Coast terminals for these lines have not yet been determined, but they probably will be Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle.

CITIES NOT NAMED.

Which routes will be designated for the respective cities cannot be yet even surmised, but the greatest opportunity for Oriental trade ever opened to Los Angeles is assured by this decision of the Shipping Board.

There are or soon will be nineteen ships available for this service, some of them former German liners, but many of them new ships. They will have a minimum speed of seventeen knots, and the new ships will have a tonnage of 11,000 tons, a length of just under 600 feet, and probably be oil burners. They will have accommodations for 249 first-class and 200 third-class passengers.

With the great rubber-tire industries now developing in Southern California, and the tremendous coal output possible there from the port of Los Angeles, some of the greatest tonnage on the new routes should pass through the portals of Los Angeles Harbor, and its ships should show the name Los Angeles in every harbor of the Pacific.

GERMAN SHIPS FOR SALE.

Thirty-four German passenger ships, seized when the United States entered the war, including the Leviathan, largest vessel afloat, the Agamemnon, George Washington and others, were offered for sale today by the Shipping Board. Proposals which may be filed up to January 26 will be received only from American buyers and must include a pledge to use the ships on lines designated by the board.

Decision of the board to offer the former German liners for sale was determined principally by the cost of re-conditioning them for passenger service, Chairman Payne said. The cost of re-fitting them for passenger service has been estimated by Shipping Board officials at approximately $50,000,000.

By restricting sale of the ships to American interests and to permanent service on designated lines the board expects to accomplish the establishment of its proposed passenger-service programme to all parts of the world along the same lines that would have been followed had the board itself put the liners into service.

The ships are to be turned over to the successful bidder upon payment of 25 per cent. of the purchase price and satisfactory fulfillment of other terms of sale.

NEW CZECHO-SLOVAK LINE

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Increased passenger and freight traffic between the United States and the new Czecho-Slovak republic has resulted in the establishment of a steamship office at Prague by the Cunard, Anchor and Anchor-Donaldson Lines, according to announcement by steamship officials tonight. The offices will be opened January 15.
